LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 6, 1882.
How easily misunderstandings and errors arise is proven by the fact that, notwithstanding our carefully worded advertisements and the awarding of the prize for the best answer to the query of why "Musselman's Boot-Jack" is the most appropriate name for the brand of Sweet Cavendish Plug Tobacco, and the fact that we published far and wide that the prize, an elegant silver service valued at $175, was awarded July 1 to Bernard Bigsley, Algonac, Mich., who has acknowledged receipt of same, the answers are still coming in from every quarter, and we are also receiving numerous letters of complaint from tardy correspondents that they should have had more time, etc. We feel highly flattered by the extended notice our now famous "Boot-Jack" is receiving, not only from the regular gentleman chewer, but as well from the ladies who were disappointed in not getting their answers mailed in time for the Committee of Award. We have, therefore, determined, as so many of the answers lately received are so intelligently rendered, so pertinent, and the range of mental effort to this question so seemingly unlimited, to offer now two magnificent premiums: First, a Superb Royal Worcester Porcelain Dinner Service of 186 pieces, valued at $175, now on exhibition at Ovington Brothers', No. 146 State street, to the lady giving the best answer; second, a rare French Marble Clock and Bronze Bust, valued at $150, now on exhibition at Giles Bros.', corner State and Washington, to the gentleman giving the best answer. Competitors will bear in mind that the premiums are offered for the best answers as to Musselman's Boot-Jack being an appropriate name, and not for any specific solution of a conundrum; also, that all answers referring to the horse Boot Jack, or those exceeding twenty-five lines of printed matter in length, will be thrown out. The awards will be made Saturday, Sept. 30, by a committee of disinterested and competent judges. Answers accompanied by a Boot-Jack tag, to be addressed to W. P. HARRISON, General Agent, No. 5 Wabash-av., Chicago.

WASHINGTON.

All the Appropriation Bills Passed by Both Houses of Congress.

It Took Half the Night, However, to Accomplish the Work.

Republicans in the Senate Fought Hard for the Tax Bill.

It Was a Losing Fight, and They Were at Last Fairly Coerced.

Final Adjournment Is Confidently Looked For Some Time Tomorrow Afternoon.

Gen. Grant and Trescott Appointed Commissioners to Mexico—Arthur Invited to Chicago.

THE SENATE.

THE MAJORITY SAY THEY WILL PASS THE TAX BILL IF IT TAKES ALL SUMMER.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—The Republican Senators have set for themselves what seems an impossible task. Resort has once more been had to the caucus to stifle the views of the minority, and the majority say they propose to pass the Tax bill "if it takes all summer," but they say it in a conspicuously weak and languid voice. The minority of the Republican caucus, which was suppressed, and which pro forma was made to appear to agree with the majority, speak in a much stronger and more determined voice, and one of them said tonight, with rather fiery emphasis: "It is all nonsense, and we all know it. The Tax bill cannot be passed at this session. The Democrats yesterday announced—and their statement is on record—that, whatever may happen, before next winter. It is their purpose to keep it in the Senate until the report the Tariff Commission will make becomes known; and our folks cannot pass this bill or any other tax bill now, and they know it. This is all a figuring for position, and they won't deceive the people by it. They cannot fool a single voter by any position which is now being taken in the Senate. Besides, it is not fair to press it now. There are a good many Republicans who do not believe that the party will be very greatly benefited if we do pass the bill and are able to go home and say, 'We have taken off the tax imposed upon the Philadelphia manufacturers of imitation foreign perfumery'; and as to the question of sugar and tobacco, it is scarcely fair to compel Kellogg and Mahone to vote the way Morrill and Sherman want them."

THE BILL CANNOT BE PASSED

THERE IS ANOTHER VIEW

entertained by a good many in the majority as well as in the minority, which was well illustrated by a Republican Senator who said tonight: "I have told them this evening that I shall leave for the West Monday night anyway, whatever they may do or try to do; that I have no faith in their scheme; that the work of the session is at an end, and nothing is to be gained by prolonging this farce. It may be well enough for Daddy Morrill [that is what he called him], Sherman, and Windom, who have comfortable houses and carriages here, and plenty of servants, to say that the Tax bill must be passed, when they know it cannot be, and make a great demonstration of fidelity to principle and of zeal to take off the tax from cosmetics and bankers, but

IT IS ALL NONSENSE,

and cannot be done. These gentlemen do not think of some of us stowed away in the upper rooms of boarding-houses, unable to sleep in the heat, and with little to eat that we can endure in this hot climate. They cannot do anything certainly with the most rosy expectations unless all the Republicans stay here to follow the beck and nod of these tariff plutocrats, and I for one shall not follow their beck and nod after Monday night, so they will not have a majority, even if the Democrats would let them come to a vote."

I asked one of the leaders of this new departure what was really meant by it—whether the caucus was sincere, and whether anybody proposed to stay here all summer to accomplish what they know could not be accomplished, and expected to fool the people by it. He said:

"Of course we do not expect to stay here all summer, and there is

NO PROBABILITY THAT THE TAX BILL CAN BE PASSED,

but that we shall put ourselves in a better position by our perseverance, and shall probably stay here two or three days next week; but I have no idea we can keep Congress here later than Tuesday or Wednesday."

These are typical illustrations of the views of Republican Senators upon the action of their caucus today. Both parties are now playing the part of political jockeys in the Senate. They are serving to get the best position. They are maneuvering before the people with the polls in view, each of them trying to convince the public that they are the best friends of what they depict as the tax-ridden people; but no better position can be obtained by either party if they remain here until the December session shall begin. The Republicans are pressing a bill to relieve the tax burdens, and have made all sorts of

WISE AND EQUITABLE PROPOSITIONS.

They will take the caucus bill which they have presented. They will take the House bill just as it came to the Senate, or add to the provisions as to the reduction of tobacco tax and the rebate on tobacco, which the Democrats have so persistently demanded. To all this the Democrats say, "No; the Republicans shall not be permitted to appear before the public as the fathers of a successful tax-reduction measure. We will quibble and dispute till the voting begins before that shall happen, and, above all, we will have hours of talk." And the hours of talk ran on again today. Men who have a reputation in the country as statesmen and orators talked in the sweltering heat, mopped their faces, tugged at their moist and broken collars, and either said nothing or spoke the same hackneyed phrases over again. The discussion of the knit-goods bill had merit in it, but on the general question of tax reduction there was not a new word said.

AFTER THE MORNING BUSINESS

today it was expected the Senate would take up the Tax bill and continue the discussion of it without interruption; but by an arrangement made in the caucus Mr. Miller, of New York, called up the Knit-Goods bill in such a way as not to attract attention on the Democratic side. Beck, who would have noticed this call, was in attendance upon a conference committee; Bayard, on account of infirmity, does not hear as well as some other Senators, and did not hear the motion; and Cockrell, who takes the place of watch-dog in the absence of Edmunds, also failed to hear it, and, before the Senators knew that the Knit-Goods bill was before the Senate and under consideration, Mr. Miller was making the opening speech. When Mr. Cockrell discovered what had happened he was and declared that the motion to take up had been put in such a way that it could not be heard.

EXTREMELY INDIGNANT,

This annoyed David Davis very seriously, and he shook his head in protest.

"No such thing!" shouted Mr. Cockrell, and he repeated that the motion had been put in that way. He had not heard it.

Mr. Davis again remonstrated, and said the Senator from Missouri made a reflection upon the Chair.

Mr. Platt and Mr. Morrill both declared that the motion of the Chair had been very distinctly put.

Mr. Cockrell challenged any one in the Senate to state they had heard the motion put.

Mr. Morgan, of Alabama, said he had heard it, as also did Mr. Davis, of West Virginia, and Mr. Cockrell was compelled to desist from his shouting.

Mr. Bayard made the opening speech against the knit-goods bill, and at the close of his speech that the duty on wool should be only 25 per cent ad valorem after Nov. 1, 1882, and the duty on goods manufactured from wool should be 50 per cent.

HE SUBMITTED AN AMENDMENT

On this Platt spoke in advocacy of the bill before the Senate without amendment as a necessary act of relief to embarrassed manufacturers.

The Bayard amendment was rejected by a vote of 22 to 29, Brown, Davis of Illinois, and Mahone voting against it.

Mr. Harris then offered an amendment providing that on and after Nov. 1 all wools and woolen goods should pay 25 per cent ad valorem. This was rejected by a vote of 12 to 35, a large number of Democrats voting against it.

Mr. Bayard then offered a proviso to be attached to the bill, that hereafter the duty on all goods shall not exceed 60 per cent ad valorem.

Mr. Brown opposed this as out of place, and in his speech said he should vote against the 10 per cent horizontal reduction of the tariff.

THE BAYARD PROVISO WAS REJECTED

by a vote of 20 to 28, Brown, Mahone, and Voorhees voting against it.

Vest then offered an amendment placing salt on the free list, which was rejected by a vote of 21 to 26.

Another amendment by Vest providing that the duty shall be taken off flannels and blankets was voted down by a vote of 21 to 26.

The bill was then reported to the Senate, and Cockrell made a speech denouncing it as a fraud and ridiculing the Finance Committee because it would not even allow an error in the bill to be corrected. This error was one made in the House. Chap. 2,504, Revised Statutes, was to be corrected, and in engrossing the bill the 04 was left out. The Finance Committee of the Senate had amended that, but the Senate today non-concurred in the amendment, the non-concurrence being deemed advisable to save the bill from the danger of failure in the House. The title of the bill, however, provides for correction in Chap. 2,504. The Senate, by a vote of 36 to 15, passed the bill, the following Democrats voting for it: Bayard, Brown, Davis of Illinois, Davis of West Virginia, Gorman, Jonas, and Pendleton.

THE NIGHT SESSION.

"I am not sure that our folks will not permit the Republicans to pass the tax bill as it came from the House before the night out," said ex-Speaker Randall as he was taking the train for New York tonight. A few minutes later, Senator Beck, standing upon the steps of the Capitol, said to his coachman: "You can go home, and come for me at 10 in the morning. We shall sit all night."

I asked Mr. Beck if there was any prospect that the Democrats might permit the Republicans to pass the House Tax bill without amendment, as had been suggested by Mr. Randall might be possible.

"No, sir," said Mr. Beck. "We will never let go of that bill. We are going to stay all night to stop it, and we shall hold out. There is nothing in that talk. The Republicans can never get the bill through—that is settled."

INSIDE THE SENATE CHAMBER

the Republicans were out talking, as if they were carrying out the edict of their caucus, and proposed to stay here all summer to pass the bill. Even Mr. Hale spoke about "the waning days of the session," yet we were told this morning that the session was not to end until December unless the Tax bill should pass. A little later, in the Senate, Dan Voorhees said: "I for one am ready to stay here until the black frost follows the white frost before I yield on this point." He was talking on the vexed question of the adjustment of salaries of Senate and House employés. The conference on the Sundry Civil bill had yielded to the House, and permitted the House to give its clerks thirteen months' pay for a nominal year's work, while the Senate had but twelve. It was the old quarrel in which the House is always victorious.

THE HOUSE ASSUMES THE GREATEST VIRTUE,

but it is as eager to secure its grab as the Senate, and often much more successful. The assumption of extraordinary virtue on the part of the House is a sham, and the professional watch-dogs there never bark at jobs that interest their district. Even the pious Holman has been known to be very earnest to secure a star-route for a constituent, and Tom Brown, who is a later and feebler imitator, wants the Treasury doors opened wider for pensions of all kinds.

MIDNIGHT.

Call, of Florida, the tireless talker, is just dragging in his well-worn Constitution in behalf of the increase of salaries of Senate employés. He makes the terrible suggestion that he would prefer to have the great bill fail rather than that the Senate employés should not receive thirteen months' pay for twelve months' work. His colleague looks restless, as if he feared that Call might score one more constitutional argument in a day than he has. Sherman, always a watch-dog of the Treasury when there is an opportunity to prevent subordinate officers from receiving larger compensation, says he can never vote for such a proposition, although he found no difficulty in voting for the River and Harbor great "divide" over the President's veto. Robeson, the centre of every group he enters, is in one corner of the chamber telling Chandler

HOW TO RUN THE NAVY.

Hubbell is near by, being always chaffed about his assessments. Blair, asleep in his chair, is rolling his head in circles, dreaming possibly of the castles in Spain which Shipherd's bonds did not buy for him. Allison, in charge of the conference report, deprecates the endless talk and wishes to urge a vote. Beck has a contest with Sherman over Treasury figures, and beats him. Pendleton's lip is curled in disgust. The older Senators, growing weary, occupy the lounges. Saulsbury, alone erect, sleepless, frigid, melts for almost the first time and says a pleasant word for the Appropriations Committee. Don Cameron, gloomy and peculiar, reclines in his chair, anxious for the end. So the night is wearing away, and as the minute hand touches the hour which separates Saturday from Sunday Harris, of Tennessee, is drawing a terrible picture of the ravages of yellow-fever and of the disaster that may follow from reduced appropriations for the National Board of health. "Better abolish the board," he said, "and let the epidemic do its worst."

THE JEALOUSY BETWEEN RIVAL GOVERNMENT BUREAUS and the ignorance of men who talk and vote about subjects of which they know little, it is possible has crippled the arms that the Government had extended to the sections ravaged by the terrible fever.

1 A. M. SUNDAY.

The Senate, after a heated wrangle over the appropriation for the Board of Health, adopted the conference report on the Sunday Civil bill, and adjourned until 12 o'clock Monday. This is the last appropriation bill.

PROCEEDINGS.

To the Western Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—The Tax bill was laid aside informally and the Knit Goods bill was taken up. Senator Miller, of New York, addressed the Senate.

Mr. Bayard advocated an amendment to the bill which he desired to continue in force until a general reformation of the tariff could be made increasing the duty on woolen manufactures from 35 to 50 per cent advalorem, and fixing the tariff on wools at 25 per cent advalorem.

The committee amendments were nonconcurred in; Bayard's amendment was voted down—yeas, 22; nays, 29—a party vote, except Mr. Voorhees voted "no" with the Republicans. Mr. Davis, of Illinois, also voted "no."

Mr. Harris moved to substitute for the bill a provision fixing the duty on imported wool at 25 per cent advalorem. Rejected without discussion—yeas, 12; nays, 35. All the affirmative votes came from the Democratic side.

Mr. Bayard desired to have an expression of the sense of the Senate as to whether the range of tariff duties shall exceed 60 per cent ad valorem. He offered an amendment limiting the duty accordingly upon merchandise described in the bill.

At this point, Mr. Anthony, from the conference on the bill for the reported agreement by which the Senate amendment is retained in the bill. This contemplates printing 300,000 copies. The report was adopted.

PUBLICATION OF THE AGRICULTURAL REPORT,

The pending amendment of Mr. Bayard was voted down—yeas 20, nays 28—Messrs. Voorhees, Mahone, and Brown voted no with the Republicans.

Mr. Vest offered an amendment placing salt in bulk, or in bags or other packages, upon the free list. Rejected, 21 to 26, Messrs. Mahone and Brown voting no with the Republicans.

Mr. Vest then offered an amendment providing that the duty on flannels and blankets shall not exceed 50 per cent ad valorem. Rejected—21 to 26. The vote was identical with the preceding one.

In offering amendments the Republican side refrained from debate in order to facilitate the passage of the measure, and steadily voted against any change which would necessitate a return of the measure to the House. The bill finally passed without any amendment and as it came from the House—yeas 36, nays 15:

YEAS.

Aldrich, Allison, Anthony, Bayard, Blair, Brown, Cameron (Pa.), Cameron (Wis.), Chilcott, Conger, Davis (Ill.), Davis (W. Va.), Dawes, Ferry, Gorham, Hale, Harrison, Hawley, Hoar, Ingalls, Jonas, Jones (Nev.), Logan, McDill, McMillan, Mahone, Miller (Cal.), Morrill, Pendleton, Platt, Rollins, Saunders, Sawyer, Sewell, Sherman, Windom—36.

NAYS.

Butler, Call, Cockrell, Coke, Farley, George, Hampton, Harris, Maxey, Morgan, Pugh, Saulsbury, Vest, Walker, Williams—15.

Pairs were announced between Frye, Miller of New York, Plumb, and Kellogg in favor of the bill, and Johnston, Groome, Jackson, and Lamar, absent. Before the vote was taken on the passage of the bill considerable criticism was indulged in by its opponents, based upon the fact that the section of the Revised Statutes proposed to be corrected was erroneously stated in consequence of the accidental omission of some figures of the number. The Senate Committee had supplied the omission; but, all their amendments having been rejected, the number of the section was set forth as "25" instead of "2,504."

Mr. Morrill said he was willing to take the risk and leave the matter to the interpretation of the Secretary of the Treasury, and Messrs. Cockrell and Morgan complained that, unless amended in this respect, the act would be a fraud upon its face.

A motion to amend was rejected, and

THE BILL PASSED.

The title which stated the number correctly was then agreed to.

THE TAX-REDUCTION BILL

then came up as unfinished business, but was laid aside informally, and the House bill extending the fees of certain officers over the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona passed.

A recess was taken until 8 o'clock in order that the conference report on the Sundry-Civil bill might be presented.

THE EVENING SESSION.

Mr. Logan, from the conference on the bill to relieve certain soldiers of the late War from the charge of desertion, reported agreement. Agreed to, and the Senate considered the annual House Post-Route bill. Passed.

Mr. Allison presented the conference report on the Sundry-Civil bill.

After a long debate the report was adopted without division, and the Senate adjourned until Monday.

THE HOUSE.

DISCOURAGED, INDIFFERENT, AND LISTLESS.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—The House never presented a more discouraged, indifferent, and listless appearance than it did all of today. Legislation was practically at an end, although two or three members had bills which they were anxious to obtain action upon, but at the same time conscious that in the slim attendance of the House a single objection would be fatal to their desires. Two or three measures of no particular importance did manage to obtain a hearing and to be adopted, but nearly everything that was presented fell into the limbo of objections. At an early hour Robeson came in smiling with a report that the Conference Committee on the Navy bill had agreed. The statement accompanying the report was read, showing that the House had virtually obtained all it wanted, and then the report was adopted without a division. In the course of the day and sent to the President for his signature.

THE BILL WAS ENGROSSED

There was a slight flurry over the Senate amendment to a bill which recently passed the House unanimously to remove the charge of desertion against volunteers who, at the close of the War, took French leave and went home without waiting for permission, and who did not return to their commands before they were mustered out. Technically, these men are all deserters; really, none of them are open to that charge. They did not leave their colors until they knew that their service would no longer be required, and a pardonable anxiety to return to their homes induced them to waive the formalities which the regulations of the army required. The Senate has amended this bill so it should not apply to any soldier who had been in the service less than twelve months—an amendment which seemed to the ex-Union soldiers in the House

UNREASONABLE AND UNJUST.

After a lively debate the bill was sent to a conference Committee.

Thomas, of Illinois, from the Naval Committee, succeeded in having adopted a resolution directing the Secretary of the Navy to convene a court of inquiry to investigate the circumstances attending the loss of the Jeannette.

Dingley, of Maine, also induced the House to adopt a resolution for the appointment of a joint select committee to sit during the recess and inquire into the causes of the decay of American merchant marine and shipping interests of the country, and to report what plans may be possible to restore prosperity in those branches of business and trade.

A resolution reported from the Committee on Accounts, authorizing the employment for sixty days longer of the laborers in the folding-room of the House, gave rise to

A SLIGHT PARTISAN DISCUSSION.

These laborers are employed in folding the speeches of Congressmen, those speeches being each a part of the Congressional Record. The Congressmen are obliged to pay for the printing of these speeches, but the folding of them is done at the public expense. Converse, of Ohio, objected to this resolution, declaring that it was nothing more or less than an effort to have the House pay out of its contingent fund for work that ought to be done by the Republican Campaign Committee, if done at all.

Urner, of Maryland, who brought in the resolution, called attention to the fact that it was offered in the House by Thompson, of Kentucky, the Secretary of the Democratic Campaign Committee, and he declared that as many Democratic as Republican speeches had been folded by the House employés, and that no partiality had been shown.

Converse insisted on his objection, and was reenforced by Holman, of Indiana. Singularly enough, it happened that while Holman was making this objection the laborers in question were employed in for circulation in Indiana. The yeas and nays were called on this resolution twice. At one time 127 members responded to their names, at another 128—eighteen less than a quorum. This vote does not indicate that the House was actually without a quorum, for there were some fifty pairs, and at least twenty members who did not vote on this count were in the hall, and a dozen more were in the city. It is unquestionable, however, that after Monday the House will dwindle away until it will be extremely difficult to muster a quorum should one be needed. The Senate, having receded from the mileage amendment to the General Deficiency bill, returned it to the House, and in course of the day

FOLDING COPIES OF ONE OF HIS SPEECHES

IT WAS ENGROSSED.

At half-past 5 Hiscock, who had been all day busily engaged as a member of the conference committee on the Sundry Civil bill, came over to the House and asked that a recess be taken until 8 o'clock, when it was hoped the conference committee would be ready to report. There was some objection to having an evening session for that purpose, but Hiscock insisted on it on the ground that it was absolutely necessary that the Sundry Civil bill should reach the President so he might sign it on Monday. The last joint resolution extending the appropriations expired today, and no other one has been offered. Besides, it was necessary that the report should be voted upon and adopted tonight if possible, in order to allow the huge bill to be engrossed Sunday, that it might be ready for Monday.

TRYING TO KEEP COOL.

At half-past 8 o'clock this evening, when the Clerk began the reading of the conference report on the Sundry Civil bill in the House, not more than fifty members were in their seats, and most of them were paying more attention to efforts to keep cool than they were to the business before them. The arduous labors of the Conference Committee on the Sundry Civil bill were rewarded by an agreement, which the House adopted without a very long discussion, considering the magnitude of the interests involved.

Mr. Atkins found an opportunity to present some statistics comparing the appropriations at this session with those made at the last session of the Forty-sixth Congress, and showed, to his own satisfaction at least, the former exceed the latter by about $78,000,000, or, excluding pensions and deficiencies, about $30,000,000.

Mr. Hiscock replied, and EXPLAINED HOW THE APPARENT EXCESS OF $48,000,000 HAS BEEN CREATED.

Mr. Horr followed in a short speech, taking the ground that the question is not, "How great has been the increase in appropriations?" but, "Are the appropriations necessary and proper?" Mr. Horr thinks they are, and he took pains to declare that the River and Harbor bill in particular is a just and wise measure.

Mr. Blackburn defended the Appropriations Committee and the Sundry Civil bill, which he declared to be a decent, honest bill, without a single job in it.

After the report of the Conference Committee had been adopted and the bill had been sent to the Senate, there was a short, curious post-mortem discussion of a provision contained in it in regard to the appointment of officers to Utah to fill vacancies created by the Anti-Polygamy law. Despite the fact that the proposition had been adopted beyond recall, Mr. Converse made against it, and managed to denounce all the anti-polygamy legislation.

A VERY LURID SPEECH

Mr. Hiscock replied in vigorous terms, and the subject was then dropped.

Then it turned out that a defect had been discovered in the River and Harbor bill, which its authors have all along insisted was perfect. Mr. Horr read a letter from the Chief of Engineers calling attention to the fact that the act does not authorize the purchase of "land for locks and dams"—an omission which, if not supplied, it appears will render useless the appropriations for the improvement of some of the arteries of commerce in the great maritime States of Kentucky and West Virginia. Mr. Horr wanted a joint resolution to remedy this defect, but Mr. Sunset Cox objected.

WAITING ON THE SENATE.

The House meanwhile is idle. It has been in session during the night to await any message which might come from the Senate, and the message which was the most eagerly awaited was the final adjournment resolution. Recesses were regularly taken for thirty minutes at a time to await such messages.

The House took a recess until Monday. Everything now points to final adjournment Monday afternoon.

PROCEEDINGS.

To the Western Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—The Senate amendment to a joint resolution for the establishment of diplomatic relations with Persia, was concurred in. A concurrent resolution granting the use of the rotunda and adjacent rooms in the Capitol to the Garfield Monument Committee of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland from the 25th of November to the 3d of December to hold a bazaar and a reception, the object being to aid in the erection in Washington of a statue to the memory of the late President Garfield, was agreed to.

The Senate amendments to the bill amending the statutes relating to steam vessels was agreed to.

The House then proceeded to the consideration of BUSINESS ON THE SPEAKER'S TABLE.

A joint resolution passed instructing the Secretary of the Navy to convene a court of inquiry to investigate the loss of the Jeannette.

A joint resolution providing for a joint select committee of three Senators and Representatives to inquire into the condition and wants of American ship-building and ship-owning interests passed. The conference report on the Naval bill was agreed to.

SHIPHERD.

Mr. Wilson, of West Virginia, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, submitted a report upon the power of the House to compel Shipherd to answer certain questions which he had declined to answer and to produce certain evidence. The report was referred to the House calendar. It says: "If copies of correspondence and papers and other evidence referred to related to private affairs of his company or counsel it is respectfully suggested that this committee has not authority to demand their production nor the House authority to punish witness for contempt for refusing to produce them."

The report then reviews the facts of the Kilbourn case and quotes the decision of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in that case, and continues:

"Under the decision of the Supreme Court the facts in the case (the Shipherd case) gives jurisdiction in this matter only with a view to the impeachment of some one of the officers named. The deaths of Gens. Hurlbut and Kilpatrick prevent any impeachment proceedings as to them. The fact that Blaine is not an officer of the United States is believed to bar any attempt at impeachment. Blair is not a member of the House of Representatives, and it has no jurisdiction over any supposed conduct of his. So it would seem that the demand for the Shipherd papers degenerates into an inquiry into the private affairs of a citizen. If this is true, we cannot demand his papers nor compel him to answer questions. Believing that facts now existing make it improper to demand Shipherd's papers, we respectfully recommend that Shipherd be discharged and his examination be proceeded with no further."

Recess.

After recess nothing was done until Hiscock, one of the conferees on

THE SUNDRY CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL, moved that the House take a recess until 8 o'clock, stating that at that time an agreement would probably have been arrived at.

AMERICAN CITIZENS IN BRITISH PRISONS.

Pending recess the Speaker laid before the House a message from the President transmitting the report of the Secretary of State respecting the case of American citizens under arrest in Ireland. Referred. The Secretary of State says the only persons alleged to be American citizens still in prison in Ireland are O'Mahoney, McSweeney, Slattery, and Gannon; that McSweeney and Slattery produced regular certificates of naturalization. Gannon established his claim to American birth, and O'Mahoney was irregularly naturalized on the ground of services in the navy. The report further states that it appears by a note from Minister Lowell that her Majesty's Government does not entertain at present an intention of bringing these persons to trial, but it has offered them discharge on condition that they leave Ireland for America, which was refused. Lowell has again been instructed to urge speedy trial.

Recess till 8.

AT THE EVENING SESSION

Mr. Calkins submitted a conference report on the bill to relieve certain soldiers of the late War from the charge of desertion. Agreed to. The bill as agreed to extends its provisions to technical deserters who served more than six months in the army.

THE HOUSE FINISHES ITS BUSINESS.

Mr. Hiscock presented the conference report upon the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill. He stated simply that the Senate amendments had been reduced by the Conference Committee the amount of $958,000. After debate the conference report was agreed to, and thus the last general appropriation bill was disposed of by the House.

The Senate bill passed appropriating $50,000 for a public building at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Recess for thirty minutes.

After several recesses during the evening the House, at 12:30 a. m., took a further recess until Monday at 10 o'clock.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR.

AN INVITATION TO COME WEST.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—Collector Spalding and a delegation from Wisconsin called upon the President this afternoon and extended to him an invitation to visit Chicago and the West this fall. The President intimated that he might come in September. The following letter of invitation was presented to him:

CHICAGO, Ill, July 22.—To the Hon. Chester A. Arthur, President, Washington, D. C.—DEAR SIR: Learning that a very strong and general desire exists in this and neighboring States that you would visit some of the principal points in the Northwest during the present season, we wish respectfully to give expression to our own earnest desire that the West may be favored with a visit from our honored Chief Magistrate at an early day. On our behalf and that of our fellow-citizens we pledge you a welcome that shall fittingly express our high regard for you personally, and our respect for the exalted office you so worthily fill. Very respectfully,

PHILIP D. ARMOUR,
E. G. KEITH,
MARSHALL FIELD & CO.,
HENRY W. KING & CO.,
JOHN V. FARWELL & CO.,
LETZ, SCHWAB & CO.,
C. M. HENDERSON & CO.,
CHAS. P. KELLOGG & CO.,
C. WAMPOLD & CO.,
H. C. & C. DURAND,
F. F. SPENCER.

Very respectfully,

EDWARD SANDERSON,
J. M. RUSK,

MEXICO.

GEN. GRANT AND TRESCOTT WILL NEGOTIATE A COMMERCIAL TREATY.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—The appointment of Gen. Grant and William H. Trescott to be Commissioners to negotiate a commercial treaty with Mexico is made in accordance with an amendment to one of the Appropriation bills, which makes provision for the payment of the expenses of the commission. One of the requests which Gen. Grant made of President Garfield was that a person of his choice should be appointed Minister to Mexico. John Russell Young was mentioned, but there were some apprehensions that Grant's railroad interests would be too prominent, and Grant's men were not fully indorsed as to the Mexican Mission. This commercial commission, it is believed, is designed to accomplish many of the purposes which Grant and others have much at heart, and it is confidently believed that it may result in the negotiation of a valuable commercial treaty. The Commercial Commission will undoubtedly overshadow the regular commission to Mexico.

NOTES.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—It is stated the President has decided upon the strict enforcement of the eight-hour law as that law was construed during the Administration of Gen. Grant. Members of the Cabinet, however, entertain different views on this subject. The Attorney-General, in a recent opinion, held that the present law was imperfect, and its proper enforcement would require additional legislation. The Secretary of the Navy, on the other hand, contends that, under the existing law, eight hours constitutes a legal day's work, and he says the law will be enforced at the navy-yards. The President is said to be of the same opinion as Secretary Chandler. No effort will be made to induce Congress to legislate further upon the subject the present session.

THE NEW THREE PER CENTS.

The Secretary of the Treasury estimates that over $200,000,000 of bonds will be surrendered for exchange into new 3 per cent.

JAPANESE FUND BILL.

There seems to be no prospect that the Japanese Indemnity Fund bill will be agreed to this session, and this National disgrace will remain to take its chance of removal in the hurry of a short session.

TONNAGE MEASUREMENT OF VESSELS.

Mr. Hewitt's bill, for the readjustment of the system of tonnage admeasurement will, it is said, relieve American shipping of a burden of nearly $1,000,000 annually, and unjustly collected by reason of a false system of tonnage measurements, in which the space for machinery of vessels, sleeping-room of crew, etc., had been included as part of the tonnage capacity of vessels.

DANENHOWER'S EYES.

Ex-Surgeon Marmiore, of the navy, a skillful oculist, has examined Lieut. Danenhower's eyes, and says that one will entirely recover and he thinks the other will not be entirely lost.

TRANSIT OF VENUS.

Prof. Pritchett, of Washington Observatory, St. Louis, is here preparing to go to New Zealand and take observations on the transit of Venus. He sails from San Francisco Sept. 23. Two other parties start soon, one for the Cape of Good Hope and the other for South America.

A REPAYMENT.

The House today passed a bill to pay $35,456 to the heirs of the late John W. Forney, being the sum paid by him while Secretary of the Senate to make good a default of one of his employés in charge of the safe containing the Senate funds.

IMMIGRATION STATISTICS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—The Chief of the Bureau of Statistics reports that during the month of June there arrived in the customs districts of Baltimore, Boston, Detroit, Huron, Minnesota, New Orleans, New York, Passamaquoddy, Philadelphia, and San Francisco 90,971 passengers, of whom 84,780 were immigrants. The total number of immigrants who arrived in the above-named customs districts from the principal foreign countries during the month of June, 1881, was 85,535. The number of immigrants arrived during the year was 789,003, being much larger than during any previous year in the history of the country. It exceeded the number during the preceding fiscal year by 119,572.

MILWAUKEE'S DEATH RECORD.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 5.—The death record of this city today and for the past two days shows a frightful mortality among children under 5 years of age, chiefly from convulsions and cholera infantum, a large proportion dying from the latter cause, which seems to be on the increase in this city. This state of affairs is alarming in the extreme, and is regarded as occasioned by the changeable condition of the climate during this remarkable summer.

THE WEATHER.

Signal Service.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER OF THE ARMY, WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—For the Tennessee and Ohio Valleys, generally fair weather, light variable winds, mostly from east to south, and stationary or slight rise in temperature and pressure.

For the Lake region, northeast to southwest winds, fair weather, slight rise in temperature, and stationary or lower barometer.

For the Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys, warmer easterly to southerly winds, partly cloudy weather, light local rains in Missouri, and stationary or lower barometer.

The Chief Signal Officer furnishes the following: The barometer has risen in all districts east of the Mississippi. It is highest in Florida and lowest in the Rocky Mountain region. Generally clear weather prevails on the Atlantic coast and fair weather in all the other districts, with light local rains in Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, and southern portions of the Lake region. Slightly warmer southeast to southwest winds prevail on the Atlantic coast and in the Ohio Valley and Tennessee. Northeast to southeast winds continue in the Lake region and Northwest, with no change in barometer. The following special temperatures were reported at 7 a. m. yesterday: Eastport, 65; Montreal, 79; Quebec, 69; Mount Washington, 56; Cleveland, 71; Alpena, 64; Duluth, 70; St. Paul, 67; Denver, 69; San Francisco, 54. Slightly warmer fair weather is indicated on Sunday in New England and the Middle and South Atlantic States. Warmer fair weather is indicated for the Southern and Middle States on Monday.

Continued Heavy Rains in Northern Ohio.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 5.—Heavy rains prevailed again today in Northern Ohio, still further damaging the crops. A New Comerstown special to the Leader reports that a waterspout burst over that section yesterday, ruining vast quantities of cut hay, and prostrating acres upon acres of corn. Small streams became like rivers, and in some places land previously dry was submerged under fifteen feet of water.

HILGERT.

He Gets Away with $12,802.99 by Forging the Names of Milwaukee Merchants—All the Paper Held in Philadelphia.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 5.—A few days ago Jacob Morowetz, a wealthy merchant here, received the following dispatch:

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1, 1882.—Jacob Morowetz, Esq.—DEAR SIR: There has been placed in our hands for collection your acceptance of a draft drawn by John Hilgert's Sons, of this city, dated June 11, 1882, at sixty days, for $2,198.70, and payable at the office of Hilgert's Sons here. Will you please remit the amount of the above-named acceptance to us or to your correspondent bank in this city, instead of to John Hilgert's Sons, and oblige, yours truly,

W. H. NEWBOLD, SON & CO.

Almost immediately afterwards Mr. Marawetz received notice that the Philadelphia National Bank held his paper to the amount of $3,500. He announced at once that the whole business, whatever it was, was a fraud, and that a forgery had been committed. Soon after Ricker, Crombie & Son received notice from Hill & Kennedy, private bankers of Philadelphia, that their acceptances, due Oct. 5, for $3,280, was held by them. This was shown to be another forgery. The above firm did not waste time in dispatching that they had no paper out, and so the Philadelphia house could have nothing but what was bogus. Yesterday Ball & Goodrich, another heavy wholesale grocery house, received the following:

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1, 1882—Messrs. Ball & Goodrich—DEAR SIRS: There has been placed in our hands for collection your acceptance of draft drawn by John Hilgert's Sons, of this city, at sixty days for $2,256.87, and payable at the office of John Hilgert's Sons here. Will you please remit the amount of above acceptance to us direct or to your correspondent bank in this city instead of John Hilgert's Sons, and oblige yours truly, NEWBOLDS, SON & CO.

Nothing was to be done in this case also but to inform the firm holding the bogus acceptances that Ball & Goodrich had no outstanding paper. A similar dispatch was also received yesterday by Jacob Wellaner, placing his misappropriated ered at $1,578.42, which is also from W. H. Newbolds, Son & Co. Mr. Wellaner did as the other houses, as he had no acceptances out. The entire amount obtained by Hilgert on the credit of the Milwaukee houses is the handsome sum of $12,802.99.

The Associated Press Agent in Detroit Discovers a Fact Five Days Old—Acceptances on the Wholesale Houses of Detroit Forged to the Amount of $23,336.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 5.—The facts of a failure and attendant criminality that do not seem to have got into the press dispatches, have just come to light in this city. On Monday last Charles Hilgert, the successor of John Hilgert, and at the head of one of the largest sugar houses in Philadelphia, disappeared very mysteriously from his place of business. His absence was not noticed until the following day, when gentlemen who had contracted with him for some sirups visited his office for the purpose of finding out why he had not fulfilled his contract. A few hours later it was discovered that Hilgert had failed for $500,000. The people with whom he had done business had scarcely time to recover from their surprise at the failure when they were astounded at subsequent disclosures—to the effect that Hilgert had forged acceptances upon several of his customers throughout the country to the amount of $295,564, and it is thought the end is not yet. These forged acceptances were mainly in the hands of various Philadelphia banks, who, of course, are the losers. The assignment was made known to the banks interested. They at once, through their attorneys, notified the business-houses upon whom the forged acceptances were drawn. It was through these notifications that the banks first learned that these acceptances were forged. During the past twenty-four hours several wholesale houses in Detroit have received notices from the banks that they held their acceptances for various amounts, and as soon as due they were to pay them to said banks. The amount thus far disclosed, as forged upon the Detroit wholesale grocers, is $23,336.

EGYPT.

WAR IN EARNEST.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 5—6:35 p. m.—At 5 o'clock this afternoon the British troops, with a number of field guns seized by sailors, attacked the advanced guard of Arabi Pasha near Ramleh, between the Mahmoudieh Canal and Cairo Railway, firing upon the enemy's position from three sides. An engagement, which is of a serious nature, still continues.

A WHITE FLAG.

Arabi Pasha sent fourteen men with a white flag to the British camp this morning. The party was received by Maj. Pringle, but the interview was without result.

SIMPLY A RECONNAISSANCE.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 5—11:30 p. m.—The object of the operations today was a reconnaissance in force. Commencing at 4 o'clock this afternoon, a steady advance was made by marines upon the railway line, the Rifles upon the west bank of the Mahmoudieh Canal, and the South Staffordshire regiment and mounted infantry upon the east bank. The enemy were driven in from all their advanced posts, and compelled to bring into action all their troops available in front of their principal line of intrenchments at Kafr-el-Dwar—namely: about four battalions of infantry, a force of cavalry, and several guns. The latter were completely silenced by the accurate fire of our forty-pounder. The Egyptian infantry with considerable steadiness. The marines on the railway, who were under the immediate command of Gen. Alison, pushed the enemy back upon their second line of intrenchments towards Kafr-El-Dwar. The marines were supported by the South Staffordshire regiment and the Rifles. They suffered somewhat, but behaved with the greatest coolness and steadiness under a heavy fire. The object of the British operations, which was to compel the enemy to display what force and what guns they had in front of the main position, was completely attained. This was ascertained by nightfall, when the British were

HELD THEIR GROUND

SLOWLY AND STEADILY WITHDRAWN.

No accurate returns of the killed and wounded is as yet obtainable. The enemy's loss is unknown. A large number of wounded fell into the hands of the British. Many dead were seen. A considerable number of the enemy were made prisoners. The British have lately made successful experiments with the forty-pounder mentioned while mounted on an ironclad railway truck.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT OF THE BATTLE.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon an armored train with Nordenfeldt guns and forty-pounders proceeded to Mahalla Junction, carrying 1,000 marines under Col. Tewson, accompanied by Capt. Fisher and Lieut. Lambton.

The expedition was joined from Ramleh by sixty of the Eighth Rifles and Thirty-eighth Regiment. The enemy soon appeared in great force and sent a shower of rifle shots into our troops, or rather over their heads, while from behind intrenchments they opened a brisk fire from field guns and made free use of rockets. The Nordenfeldt guns from the train made excellent practice in return, and played havoc in the ranks of the enemy.

THE ENEMY'S LOSS

must have been severe. Orders have been issued that the reconnaissance be resumed in the morning, but, as the Admiral proposes to send an escort under a flag of truce through Arabi Pasha's camp to convey Midshipman Dechair's effects to Cairo, it is uncertain whether a reconnaissance will take place.

It is not clear what object is to be gained by such maneuvres, which expose our troops to the risk of heavy loss, and, as they do not advance our position, are doubtless represented by Arabi as victories over the British.

THE BRITISH LANDING AT SUEZ.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 5.—No Indian troops, but only marines and sailors from British ships lying in the roads, were disembarked at Suez. An immediate stampede of Egyptian troops and the Arab population took place. From the decks of the steamers crowds of natives were seen hurrying across the desert. Trains were crowded even to the roofs of the carriages. The facility with which the occupation was effected affords circumstantial proof that if a couple of thousand men had been landed in Alexandria directly after the bombardment nine-tenths of the lives and property sacrificed would have been saved.

IT IS REPORTED AT ISMAILIA that Arabi Pasha has ordered 4,000 troops to approach the canal.

ARABI AND MIDSHIPMAN DE CHAIR.

Special Cable.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 5.—The Herald's special says: Latif Effendi returned yesterday from Arabi's lines. He reports being present at the following conversation between Arabi and Midshipman De Chair:

Arabi—"Would you rather remain with me or return to Alexandria?"

De Chair—"I wish to return."

Arabi—"Why?"

De Chair—"My duty is with the guns at Alexandria."

Arabi then, addressing his officers, said: "This boy is an example to you all. Do not allow a hair of his head to be harmed. I only wish he was born an Egyptian instead of an Englishman."

THERE ARE CONTINUAL NIGHT ALARMS

by the outposts. They are of no importance. Since the English landed, twenty-five days ago, only one horse has been wounded. Arabi's newspaper, El Taief, states that 400 English have been killed in the reconnoissances.

THE CANAL COMPANY.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—In consequence of a telegram received from De Lesseps at Ismailia, the Suez Canal Company passed a special resolution declaring that, as the Khedive could not authorize the making of the Suez Canal without the sanction of the Sultan, he has no power to interfere with it.

SPAIN'S RIGHTS.

MADRID, Aug. 5.—General satisfaction is felt at the report that all the powers, except Turkey and England, admitted the claims of Spain to be consulted in regard to the protection of the Suez Canal. Newspapers here criticise the action of England in asking for time to reply.

AUSTRIA'S INFLUENCE.

VIENNA, Aug. 5.—News of the occupation of Suez produced a deep impression. England's ascendancy is now practically acknowledged. The Austrian Cabinet is using its influence to bring about an understanding between England and Turkey.

VIEWS OF THE GERMAN PRESS.

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—The greater part of the German press, referring to the occupation of Suez by the British, acknowledges the English acted wisely in occupying positions which now are of great importance to her.

THE RELATIONS OF ENGLAND AND TURKEY.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The New York Tribune received the following special cable this evening:

LONDON, Aug. 5.—There is no sign that England and Turkey have arranged terms of coöperation in Egypt. Lord Dufferin has been instructed to intimate that Turkish troops will not be permitted until Arabi Pasha is first declared a rebel. This instruction was confirmed two days ago, and it has already had the effect of inducing the Sultan to inform Lord Dufferin of the terms of the proclamation to be published after the Turkish landing. This does not satisfy England. The past determination of the Cabinet has been so manifest that Mr. Gladstone is not expected to yield.

THE ENGLISH VIEW

is that the Porte has received no mandate. The agreement which was to follow the acceptance of the identical note was not made. Consequently the Porte's action is merely that of his individual sovereignty. The very small contingent which the Porte concentrates is not composed of Arabs, but of Albanians and Turks. Immediately it was known that the Porte had drawn on Egypt for the expense of this contingent, Sir Auckland Colvin warned the Egyptian banks against negotiating Turkish drafts—another English rebuff to the Sultan's astuteness. Englishmen marvel at Turkish zeal to thwart England and provoke a struggle. Mr. Gladstone declared for a non-annexation policy. The Times has recovered from its annexation fever. The country is unfavorable to annexation.

THE MAN WHO GAVE UP CORFU will not copy the French action at Tunis. It is surmised that the distrust of England shown by certain of the Powers is fictitious, and that Turkey is being egged on from interested motives. Immediately she became occupied in Egypt, especially in opposition to England, Russia would find easier access into the Turkish Empire, and Austria to Salonica. A conflict between England and Turkey means the absolute ruin of the Turkish Empire. Russia affects to believe that England wants Egypt, which she refuses, unless for the price of the Bosphorus. Italy's present dubious action would be favorably changed toward England if Rome were offered a share of the Egyptian control. The professed surprises in the European Capitals at in anticipation of the Italian proposal to the conference is hardly reasonable. The British action is simply a corollary to the arrival of Indian troops. This unostentatious energy of England since she commenced action is increasing her prestige, especially in Germany. The punctual case of the dispatch of troops to Egypt is in striking contrast to the strain of the French expedition to Tunis. The Government control of war correspondents is sharply criticised, but the diffusion of ignorant and malignant gossip by some of the London papers greatly warrant the authorities. The Telegraph's correspondent who sent the false story about the retreat of the Sixtieth Rifles is the same man who credited Mr Gladstone with encouraging Greece in the celebrated Negroponte correspondence.

THE ENGLISH OCCUPATION OF SUEZ

HOW THE IRISH VIEW THE SITUATION.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—The Herald's London correspondent cables as follows:

The united opinion of the Irish members of Parliament is that the proceedings of the English Government in Egypt are most unwarranted and brutal. Parnell, who has not taken his place in the House since the death of his sister, says the present operations in Alexandria are apparently the outgrowth of a long series of plans of Government agents in the East. The trouble is largely due to the overbearing insolence of Europeans for a number of years and a final determination of the Egyptians to no longer submit to a long life of virtual robberies of the Egyptian Treasury by European officials who are unnecessary to the Government. It is difficult to tell where or when the trouble will end. Any hour is likely to produce complications involving half of Europe.

DALY

says the operations of the Government in this affair will not bear the slightest investigation. The war was a premeditated attack on a weak foe, and grew out of the prejudices and bullyism of Europeans in Egypt. The bombardment of Alexandria is the most infamous proceeding on record. If England should arouse a serious general disturbance the time will arrive for Ireland to demand rights that will result in securing home-rule or the adoption of measures of repression similar to those of 1798. He did not believe the Government dares to go to that extreme now. A repetition of that slaughter must move the American Government to some form of action. The worse the trouble in the East the better for Ireland, which will not be slow to take advantage of her opportunities.

O'DONNELL,

the most thoroughly posted member of Parliament on the troubles in Egypt, says the present condition of affairs is due to jealousies persistently stirred by such men as Sir Auckland Calvin, Edward Molet, Alphonso Money, and others. England moved Heaven and earth to get fairly embarked in war before the country had time to forbid. He believed when the Turks landed they would receive the instant homage of Arabi, and that the followers of the two armies would immediately amalgamate and prevent the advance of the English. Further action by her Majesty's forces would be a wanton act, bringing down all Europe. He thought the efforts to coerce the Sultan in declaring Arabi a rebel will be likely to bring a general rupture. A great diplomatic struggle is now progressing in Constantinople. England stands alone. The other Powers will not consent to these operations. The English must hereafter submit to the voice of Europe. If they refuse to hear reason, the result will certainly be a general war. Russia is already very hostile, and India is in a state of suppressed excitement. The situation is of the utmost gravity.

THE SENTIMENT OF THE FRENCHMEN.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—The Herald's Paris cable contains interviews with prominent politicians on the Egyptian question. It says:

Clemenceau, to whom the most honor is due for the overthrow of the Ministry, and who today is the most prominent politician in France, in referring to the present diplomatic embarrassments, says that in a few days the policy of England will find itself face to face with great difficulties, and those Frenchmen who are the most ardent admirers of the Gladstone Cabinet will be obliged to take in their horns. The first point worthy of attention is the persistency with which England maintains her policy of intervention in Egypt without the aid of an ally. Then comes the persistence of the Sultan in refusing to proclaim Arabi a rebel before the disembarkation of Turkish troops. The Sultan is ready to see a rebel in Arabi if he fires on his troops, but, so long as he simply annoys Admiral Seymour, the Porte cannot do anything. He notices also the increasing difficulties in England's relations with Russia. The foreign office at St. Petersburg has not forgotten England, who turned back the victorious Russian army from the gates of Constantinople, which the treaty of San Stefano had opened to it. On the other hand, the English Cabinet is so spurred on by almost unanimous public opinion as to render it impossible for it to come to an amicable understanding with the Porte, and it looks as if the Egyptian crisis will soon become complicated by a conflict between the two Powers—a conflict of frightful gravity, and all of whose ulterior consequences it is impossible to forecast.

GAMBETTA

said the vote last Saturday in the Chamber rendered it impossible for any Ministry to stand that does not adopt as the basis of its program total abstention in Egypt and throughout the world a complete suppression of foreign policies. But there is no single public man of any value who does not blame such a resolution. By that vote the Chamber simply declared itself incompetent from ignorance. As to Turkey and England, the worst thing the Sultan can do for himself and the Ottoman Empire is to play false to the London Government, unless of course it is made perfectly clear that Russia will assist her late enemy. In that case Bismarck will have something to say, and, inasmuch as his efforts are invariably opposed to those of France, Germany will oppose whatever we determine. As to the accusation that Gladstone aims at setting up a British protectorate without regard or provision for the development of genuine Egyptian nationality, I cannot say anything now. England had repeatedly denied it, but it is true that her assertions are not believed.

HENRI ROCHEFORT

says the new Ministry, whoever it may be, must form a close alliance with Russia, and, if necessary, allow the latter to go to Constantinople. It must also conciliate Italy by withdrawing the army from Tunis, and renounce its protectorate over that country, and likewise make a friend of Spain by allowing her to take Morocco."

JULES FERRY

says: "Poor France is today as much menaced by Germany as Egypt by the English."

To sum up, your correspondent finds France largely opposed to England, and, but for fear of Bismarck, Gladstone would have to call off his war dogs immediately. Politicians of all shades ask me why it is the American press publishes such one-sided reports of the doings in Egypt. Several correspondents of Paris journals, writers whose reputations stand unquestioned, boldly denounce many of the items in the London papers as lacking in truth.

GREAT BRITAIN.

HOME POLITICS.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The New York Tribune received the following special cable on general European news this evening:

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Home politics are passing through a crisis. The Lords insist upon their amendments wrecking the Arrears bill. The Commons will probably compromise the second amendment making unpaid arrears the first charge in the tenants' interest when the latter is sold, but they will not accept the first. It enables the landlord to veto the tenants' applications under the bill. If the Marquis of Salisbury insists Parliament will be immediately prorogued and the bill reintroduced in a new session before the end of August. If the Marquis of Salisbury still obstructs Mr. Gladstone will dissolve the House. Mr. Gladstone has been urged to introduce a County Franchise bill in the new autumn session, and to make it a platform cry with the Arrears bill, if the latter is defeated.

CETEWAYO.

The public are much amused with Cetewayo, though arriving too late to become the lion of the season. Though officials desire as little fuss as possible, he is an interesting object to the populace. Quaint remarks and good humor are arousing sympathy, and may lead the Government to regret bringing him, unless they mean to restore him. He has had no official reception, but the Queen sees him next week. He fondly hopes to argue his claims to restoration before her. The officials are doing everything to keep Cetewayo out of the clutches of the Aborigines Protection Society.

ACCOUNTS FROM IRELAND

prove the so-called strike of the Irish police is a gross exaggeration. The working of the commission under the Crimes Prevention act has just begun, and is proceeding slowly and satisfactorily.

WALSHE'S TRIAL.

Great importance is attached to Walshe's trial in London. Connoll, the moonlight informer, is expected to make important revelations beyond those already known.

There is great difficulty to collect in the West. The people considered the advances under the seeds act a gift. The collectors of the bonds given by the guardians are taking legal proceedings, and are becoming as obnoxious as the landlords' bailiffs.

THE IRISH SEED RATE

TELEPHONIC EXCHANGES.

The Postmaster-General has decided to grant licenses to Telephonic Exchanges; but no power is given to erect poles or wires, the licensees making their own arrangements with the local authorities and property-owners.

FAWCETT THREATENED.

The blind and amiable Mr. Fawcett has received threatening letters. The police now protect him like the other members of the Government.

JENNINGS' VIEW OF THE SITUATION OF AFFAIRS.

Special Cable.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Jennings' special says: The excitement arising from the movement of troops in all directions is tending to make the Egyptian war popular with the masses, and the Ministry is now more confident of its position with the country than it has yet been since we entered upon our "Eastern complications." A foreign war has from time immemorial been recognized as, if not a cure for domestic discontent, the most efficacious agency for diverting the attention of a complaining nation, and the English people seem to be glad of anything which affords a diversion from the everlasting and irritating Irish question. It must also be said that there seems to have been no important falling off of strength from the Ministry among the dissenters. It is very generally supposed that would weaken if it did not absolutely destroy the hold of the Government upon the Non-conformists, who form so important a part of the Liberal phalanx; but the chief organs of their various sects remain faithful to Mr. Gladstone. Inasmuch as the workingmen, as I have already said, are for the most part inclined to support the Administration, its general position seems stronger than it did a fortnight ago, and it is this, doubtless, which influences Mr. Gladstone in his determination not to yield to the House of Lords in the matter of the amendments to the Arrears-of-Rent bill. His supporters generally are, as was to be expected, again loudly demanding

MR. BRIGHT'S SECESSION FROM THE CABINET

THE ABOLITION OF THE CHAMBER OF PEERS.

The cry, it may be said, has no terrors for most of the members of the House of Lords, who would rather see it abolished than exist as a mere machine for registering Mr. Gladstone's decrees. Many of them believe that the issue may as well be put before the people now as at some future time, so that it is quite among the possibilities, therefore, that the Lords will not give way, but instead insist upon their amendments. It is nonsense, by the way, to attribute their firmness or their obstinacy, as you prefer to call it, to the Marquis of Salisbury's influence and advice. In point of fact, the members of the Conservative majority in the Upper House are far more warmly opposed to further concessions to the Commons than their leaders. If the Ministry refuses to accept the amendments proposed by the Lords, the Arrears bill will be revived at an autumn session, and, so soon as it has been again rejected, a dissolution of Parliament will follow and will be: "Will you have a House of Lords or not?" Most members of the Chamber of Peers, as I have already said, believe that the decision of this question concerns the country more than it does themselves, and therefore are not afraid to have it brought up for settlement. Now that Mr. Gladstone is feeling more confident of his strength with the people, he is disposed to resent opposition from any quarter as a gross impertinence, and to reject advice on any subject. Irritability is a sign of convalescence. There is no evidence that he recognizes the probability of England having to occupy Egypt for a long period, but his friends declare that he is secretly afraid of a dissolution on the issue whether English farmers should be taxed to enable Irish tenants to pay their rents. In spite of bluster, therefore, it is likely that the Government will give way, for the present, at least.

THE QUESTION SUBSTANTIALLY BEFORE THE PEOPLE

HARVEST OPERATIONS

are going on this week. In all the southern counties the weather is extremely favorable, and the yield is much better than had been anticipated. It now turns out that the heavy rains of June and July, from which so much disaster had been feared, did very little damage except upon wet soil. I have seen finer crops of wheat cut during the last few days than have been seen for four years past. From the midland counties the reports are still gloomy, but the present fine weather must be making a wonderful difference everywhere. The farmers in Sussex, Surrey, and Kent are radiant for the first time since 1878.

THE EARL OF DUNRAVEN, his many friends in America will be sorry to hear, has been very ill, but is now better. I believe that he regretted deeply his compulsory absence from the House of Lords during the discussion of the Arrears-of-Rent bill, which he would have supported.

LORD HOUGHTON

has another grandson, his son's wife, a daughter of Sir Frederick Graham and a granddaughter of the Duke of Somerset, having been safely delivered of another boy.

MRS. LANGTRY IS ILL—

so ill that she is unable to keep her immediate engagements, which have consequently been canceled.

EDWIN BOOTH

has added greatly to his reputation by the parts which he has acted recently, and many people prefer him to Irving, now a hopeless mannerist. There is some talk of inviting Mr. Booth to play here all next winter. Not an English critic speaks unkindly of him.

UNPRECEDENTED UNANIMITY.

Mr. Edward A. Freeman has a long yarn in the current number of the Fortnightly called "Impressions of America." He says he was struck while there by the strange ignorance of the people with regard to English manners, and more especially with their ignorance of English geography. He instances his being asked whether Lincolnshire was on the west side of England or the east, and whether the County of Somerset derived its name from the Dukes of Somerset. He promises a second article on matters of smaller detail.

LONDON DESERTED.

This being the Saturday before bank holiday, London is deserted, and there is scarcely any business doing anywhere. The tendency of the stock market is precisely as I reported it last week. That is to say, there is a general desire to get out of Egyptian and Turkish bonds and to invest in American securities. Electric-light shares are also being dealt in, the Anglo-American Brush Company having declared an ad interim dividend of 100 per cent.

A STRANGE SCENE IN A CHURCH.

Special Cable.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Great interest and no little amusement was excited by a scene last Sunday in a church at Cleveden, Somerset. A young man did public penance for the seduction of a girl who was awaiting trial for manslaughter. The church was crowded. After evening prayer, when the vicar entered the pulpit, he told the congregation that they were about to deal with a matter of the most ancient character—a case of church discipline. The church warden then brought the man into the church. On reaching the chancel steps he kneeled down, and the church warden handed the vicar a paper which contained the following declaration: "I, Llewellyn Hartree, do acknowledge myself to be guilty of a most grievous sin, for which I do hereby ask forgiveness of my fellowmen, of the woman I have wronged, and of Almighty God.'

IN PROOF OF MY REPENTANCE

I promise to carry out whatever penance may be laid upon me in the presence of this congregation." The vicar accounted that the penance was that the man should go to the Assize Court and take his place by the unfortunate girl at the bar. In reply to the vicar's question whether he would accept the penance, he replied "Yes." On Wednesday the girl was tried at the Wells Assizes, and was sentenced to one month's imprisonment for concealment of the birth of her infant, the graver charge of manslaughter having been set aside. This incident has called forth much discussion in the papers. It is asked, "Are we going to have a revival of church discipline?" Some papers make a deal of fun of the case, while some church papers treat it quite in an opposite style.

A DIVISION OF OPINION.

To the Western Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The Daily News learns that the Conservative leaders in Parliament are divided in opinion as to the expediency of insisting upon the amendments offered in the Lords to the Arrears bill. Earl Cairns, in the Lords, and Ashton Cross, in the Commons, are said to favor a compromise.

ANTICIPATING THE EXHIBITION.

A confidential circular has been addressed to county Inspectors throughout Ireland, requesting them to report whether any large number of persons from their districts are arranging to visit Dublin on the occasion of the opening of the exhibition and unveiling of O'Connell's statue, and whether the leading Land-Leaguers or Fenian suspects are expected to be present.

A MISSION TO CANADA.

The permanent Under-Secretary for the Colonial Department has gone on a mission to the Marquis of Lorne, Governor-General of Canada. He will be absent some weeks.

ARREST OF AN EDITOR.

TUAM, Aug. 5.—Richard Kelly, proprietor of the Tuam Herald, was committed to trial today for publishing an article written by James Redpath which is alleged to have been an incitement to the murder of Bourke. Bail was accepted. The vicinity of the court was crowded during the examination.

LEIGH SMITH.

NEWS FROM THE RELIEF STEAMER HOPE.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The following telegram, dated Hammerfest, Aug. 4, has been received in London:

"A sloop has brought letters from Sir Allen Young, commanding the search and relief steamer Hope, dated Karmahuld, Nova Zembla, July 19, stating that the Hope was there and all on board well. The Hope had a stormy voyage, encountering ice and fog. There is no news of the Eira, but a Russian Captain boarded her off Nova Zembla the end of last July. Sir Henry Gore Booth's yacht Kara, which is also searching for Leigh Smith, was lying in the same harbor with the Hope."

FRANCE.

THE LEFT FAVORS CONCILIATION.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—The Bureaux of the Left rejected the proposal to invite Brisson to take office, and declared in support of the Ministry, appeasement, and conciliation. A meeting of the extreme Left protested against any expedient which would rehabilitate the late Ministry.

ADJOURNMENT OF THE CHAMBERS.

No Cabinet having been formed, the Chambers adjourned until Monday.

SOUTH AFRICA.

THEY DON'T WANT CETEWAYO.

DURBAN, Aug. 5.—At a mass-meeting here a resolution protesting against the restoration of Cetewayo was unanimously adopted.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

The Depot at Burlington Junction, Mo., Ransacked by Burglars—Other Bad Deeds by Bad People.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

BURLINGTON JUNCTION, Mo., Aug. 5.—During last night the union depot at this place was entered by burglars, and the office, baggage and freight rooms completely ransacked. The money-drawer, ticket-cases, and several trunks were broken into and the contents strewn around promiscuously. Fifty cents in coppers from the cash drawer, a small quantity of jewelry from the trunks, and a package of cutlery, a revolver, and a suit of clothes of Assistant Agent Moffatt is all that is missing. The burglars were evidently disturbed at their work or a much heavier loss would have to be reported. No clew to the perpetrators.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 5.—A sensation was caused in the Town of Van Buren, Crawford County, Thursday, by the arrest on a requisition from North Carolina for W. J. Munden, a well-known grocer, in business there for several months past. The officer bearing the requisition and the man said to have been wronged is J. A. Johnson, of Woodville, N.C. He says his and Munden's families lived within a mile of each other, Johnson being a merchant. On the 11th of April, 1881, while Johnson was North purchasing goods, Munden eloped with Johnson's wife, leaving a wife of his own, and they took with them $3,500 of Johnson's money. They went to Denison, Tex., and from there to Chetopa, Kas. He was there arrested and taken back to Denison, Tex., where, after a suit of nine days, he was bound over for twenty days on a charge of adultery, and released at the expiration of that term. He then returned to Kansas, and from there went to Atoka, Indian Territory, and kept hotel for a time, but after a transaction of a questionable nature he left that place, coming to Van Buren. Mrs. Johnson, the woman living with Munden, wrote to her mother, and through that source Johnson learned of their whereabouts. Munden denies nearly every charge made by Johnson, but his story is not consistent.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Aug. 5.—The jury in the case of the State vs. Kendrick for the murder of his wife, returned a verdict today sentencing him to imprisonment in the penitentiary during life. This case has been on trial for the past two weeks and has created intense interest among the people. Public sentiment has been in favor of hanging Kendrick, but the verdict rendered today established the fact that the death penalty cannot be assessed in this county.

CHILLICOTHE, O., Aug. 5.—Benjaman Wilkshire was murdered late this afternoon. Circumstances point plainly to a man named Giddings as the murderer. Two weeks ago Mrs. Wilkshire eloped with Giddings. Wilkshire followed, and induced his wife to return. Giddings appeared today, and half an hour before the killing Wilkshire and Giddings were seen to enter a cornfield together, where shortly afterward a farmer, having heard two shots, found Wilkshire's dead body. Giddings has escaped.

THE BANK STATEMENT.

IT OCCASIONED SOME SURPRISE.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The bank statement today occasioned some surprise. The Financial Chronicle, which gives an estimate of the bank statement seldom varying more than half a million dollars from the facts, said today that the Sub-Treasury operations showed a net gain to the banks for the week of $3,109,589. The interior movement resulted in a net loss of $278,000, and the gold export had occasioned a loss of $1,250,000 more, making the net gain to the banks $1,581,580. The best-informed people looked for a small gain in reserves, and were much surprised at a reported loss of about $2,750,000. It is alleged in explanation that certain great operators expected to depress prices today and on this account drew very heavy checks on Thursday for the purpose of affecting the bank statement. Some of the best informed people say that the statement was merely the result of

A SYSTEM OF AVERAGES.

If the real condition of the banks had been shown, there would have been very little change in the amount of the reserves. The changes in the various items of averages were as follows during the week: Loans, increase, $2,714,300; specie, decrease, $150,000; legal-tenders, decrease, $642,900; deposits, increase, $414,800; circulation, increase, $68,200. The United States Sub-Treasury was debtor at the clearing-house this morning in the sum of $1,471,965. Notwithstanding the heavy disbursements of the Treasury during the week, the receipts were sufficiently heavy so that the Treasury balance here was reduced only $3,090,476.

MAYOR HARRISON.

HE AND THE CITY OF ROME SAIL FOR EUROPE.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The steamship City of Rome and Carter H. Harrison of Chicago sailed for Liverpool today. The City of Rome is the biggest passenger steamer and Mr. Harrison "the greatest Mayor" afloat. The combination could not have had a finer day to begin their voyage to the Old World. Mr. Harrison was on board at a seasonable hour, accompanied by a party of friends from the West and this city, and the time before the sailing was very appropriately employed in preparing the "best Mayor Chicago ever had" for the possible events of the next nine days in the shape of prescriptions for seasickness. Mr. Harrison said he was going away to have as good a time as he possibly could, and expected that his association with people on the other side would give him some

NEW IDEAS AS TO CITY GOVERNMENT, and enable him to suggest some improvements when he got home. He had long wanted this vacation, and was sure it would be of great benefit to him. The only trouble was that it was not to be long enough. So far as his stay on the other side was concerned, he would remain only a week, and would come back on the same steamer that takes him out. When the City of Rome pulled into the stream and turned her prow towards the sea, Carter loomed up among the throng on the deck and waved his adieux to the crowd ashore, and as the steamer glided down on the river the bald head and bland smile faded gradually from view, and the great Mayor and the great steamer became apparently one.

TEA.

THE EGYPTIAN QUESTION CAUSES SOME APPREHENSION REGARDING THE SUPPLY OF TEA.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The question of the prices of tea and the quantities on hand and afloat, together with the prospects of delay and extra cost arising from the possibility of the Suez Canal being closed, is exciting some apprehension. A leading tea importer says that teas cost higher today than for some time, while the prices realized are much lower. The principal depots for tea at the present time are New York and San Francisco, with Chicago as an intermediate depot. It is estimated that there is in first hands a stock of about 1,500,000 pounds of all grades, exclusive of the 5,600,000 pounds that have just arrived by the steamships Gordon Castle, Galley of Lorne, and Glenarvon. It is also estimated that there is a working stock in the hands of jobbers and retailers of from 200,000 to 300,000 pounds, the statistics of which cannot now be ascertained, as,

THE DUTY HAVING BEEN TAKEN OFF

from tea, no correct figures are kept of the working stock. In addition to this aggregated amount of nearly 50,000,000 of pounds there are upon the ocean at the present time vessels carrying from 13,000,000 to 15,000,000 pounds of the different grades of tea. Although during the season from May 13 to June 29, 1882, the shipments from China and Japan were larger than 3,000,000 pounds than during the corresponding portion of last year's season, it is generally understood by importers in this city that the total shipments will be about the same as last year. Of the 13,187,635 pounds shipped from Japan to the United States during the above-mentioned period, about 4,000,000 have arrived. Of the first-mentioned amount 8,796,498 pounds were consigned to this port, 2,845,438 pounds for Chicago, 1,259,476 pounds for Canada, and the remainder for Salt Lake City and San Francisco. This does not include across the Pacific Ocean, and of which there is fully one-fourth as much more. Merchants here believe that the danger of teas being stopped in the Suez Canal is about over, unless a complication should arise between the European Powers. All the carrying vessels passing through the Suez Canal are under the British flag, as are also the vessels of the Occidental & Oriental Steamship Line across the Pacific. Of course the prospects of trouble have caused war rates of insurance to be charged on cargoes varying from one-fourth of 1 per cent to a little over 1 per cent. This is a tax on the owner and increases the cost of the tea. But if in the event of such complication six or more steamships now on the way with about 10,000,000 pounds of tea should be delayed or compelled to go back around the Cape of Good Hope, the delay of such a quantity for thirty to fifty days would materially affect the market here, but the probabilities of such delay seem now to be more remote than before, as a large steamship with 2,000,000 pounds of tea is reported today as having passed through the canal.

TEAS SHIPPED DIRECT TO SAN FRANCISCO

BRIBING JOCKEYS.

KELLY FAILS TO PROVE THAT "PLUNGER" WALTON DOES SO.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—After the third race at the Monmouth Park, Long Branch, today the crowds were attracted to the posting of a piece of paper near one of the entrances to the restaurant near the grand stand. Upon the paper the following had been written:

In the matter of the charges brought by J. E. Kelly against F. T. Walton that he bribed the jockeys of Marathon and Inconstant to pull those horses in the races specified the Executive Committee of the Monmouth Park Association find that the charges are not supported by proof or probability. But in the course of such investigation it was admitted by Mr. Walton that he frequently gives large sums of money to trainers and jockeys. That these gifts are is not credible. If not intended to corrupt their tendency is corrupting. One object unquestionably is to obtain information which belongs exclusively to owners. In the hope of arresting the evils arising out of similar proceedings without having recourse to more stringent measures, the following clause is inserted in and made the fourth paragraph of the seventieth rule of racing, the violation of which is punishable by ruling off the course: "If any person gives or offers to give to any trainer, jockey, or employé, or if any trainer, jockey, or employé accepts or offers to accept any gratuity, whether in the form of money, share in a bet, or other benefit, without the previous, and specific, and written consent of the owner whose horse gives occasion to the gratuity, and to whom the trainer, jockey, or employé is engaged, or," etc. By order, J. H. COSTER, Secretary of the Monmouth Park Association.

This was all that was written on the paper, and the crowd seemed puzzled at the way in which it ended. The members of the Executive Committee said they had nothing further to say. Mr. Walton smiled when he read it, and Mr. Kelly simply said:

"THAT NEW RULE WILL DO NO GOOD

so far as Mr. Walton is concerned. He used to give the jockeys money and tell of it. Now he can give them money and keep quiet." Out of the six events of the afternoon Mr. Walton picked out three winners, and the money secured in those races greatly overbalanced that lost by him in the other three. After the excitement of the day, when horsemen and others were calm and ready to discuss any interesting topic, they began to realize that Mr. Walton had received a gentle warning in the adoption by the Executive Committee of the Racing Association of a rule forbidding the payment of money to trainers and jockeys unless such payments were sanctioned in writing by the owners of the horses. When it became known after the meeting of the Executive Committee in New York last Monday that Mr. Kelly's charges concerning the alleged pulling of Marathon and Inconstant at Monmouth Park would only be considered by the committee, it was apparent to nearly everybody that Mr. Walton would not at this time be ruled off. It was impossible for Mr. Kelly to make a strong case against Mr. Walton in relation to those two horses. Mr. Kelly, so his friends say, failed to bring to light evidence which was furnished him. Mr. Kelly says, however, the evidence produced by him was in his opinion sufficient to rule off Mr. Walton.

GLOVE-FIGHTS.

THEY ARE DECIDED TO BE PRIZE-FIGHTS WITHIN THE MEANING OF THE LAW.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Those eminent gentlemen, "Tug" Wilson, of Philadelphia, and John L. Sullivan, of Boston, will not be altogether pleased with the decision of Assistant-Corporation-Counsel George P. Andrews, of New York, as to the legality of glove-fighting. It had been hinted for several days that this law-officer would give an opinion adverse to the pugilistic interests of these parties, who had arranged for a second contest at Madison Square Garden on the 14th inst. Tonight Mr. Andrews' document is made public. He holds that a fight of this character is a prize-fight within the meaning of the law. In view of the importance of the matter Mr. Andrews sets forth at length the grounds upon which his opinion is based. "It is well settled," he says, "both in the United States and England that what are commonly known as

PRIZE-FIGHTS ARE UNLAWFUL

at common law, and independent of any statute prohibiting the same, and each of the actual fighters is liable to an indictment for an assault upon the other. Numerous authorities are quoted to support this view, including the recent English case of the Queen against Coney, in which eleven of the fifteen Judges of the Queen's Bench Division of the Supreme Court wrote opinions. The fact that the assaults committed by prize-fighters upon each other are made by mutual consent," Mr. Andrews continues, "does not render the fight lawful," and he quotes judicial opinions to that effect. "It being clear, therefore," said the Assistant Corporation Counsel, "that even in the absence of a prohibitory statute, prize-fights are illegal at common law, the question is, does the fact that the fighters wear gloves change the character of the contest and render it a lawful one? This precise question was passed upon in the recent case of the Queen against Joseph Collins alias Tug Wilson and others. In this case Joseph Collins, alias and thirteen others were tried before the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the County of Leicester, held on Oct. 15, 1878, for assembling together for the purpose of a prize-fight. It was found by the jury that it was a prize fight, and the case was appealed, but the conviction was confirmed." Other cases are quoted to the same effect, and then Mr. Andrews adds: "I have not found any case decided in this country in which the question whether was to be regarded as a prize-fight has been passed upon or considered by court or jury, but I think these well-considered decisions by the Judges and juries of the highest criminal courts of England must be regarded as decisive of the question submitted by you to the law department. Aside from the authorities above referred to I do not see how any one can successfully maintain that a glove-fight, as usually carried on, is not to all effects and purposes a prize-fight. It certainly has every important characteristic of a prize figt." Mr. Andrews refers to the New York statutes of 1855 and 1859 in relation to prize fights, which provide that any persons engaging in such contests, or aiding or abetting the same, are liable to imprisonment or fine, and says that as a glove fight is a ring or prize fight within the meaning of the statute, every person engaging in one, or being present, may be arrested and indicted, being guilty of a misdemeanor. So far as the prevention of public glove fights, like the one which recently took place at Madison Square Garden, is concerned, the powers of the police, both under the common law and under these statutes, are most ample.

TUG WILSON,

A FIGHT WITH GLOVES

SANKEY, THE REVIVALIST.

HIS VOICE AS SWEET AND CLEAR AS EVER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Ira D. Sankey, the famous revivalist, was present and took part in the exercises last night at Jerry McCauley's Cremorne Mission. A great throng of people came to see and hear him. Every seat on the floor and in the gallery was occupied, and the standing-room in the aisles all the way out to the sidewalk was taken up, while scores waited in the street and many more went away unable to get within hearing of the music. Mr. Sankey looked stouter than of yore, but his voice was as sweet and clear as when he was last in New York, and he sang with his old-time fervor and effect. Mr. Joseph Mackey offered an opening prayer, after which the choir sang a hymn, the refrain of which was "Bringing in the Sheaves," Mr. Sankey's strong voice being heard above the others. Then the congregation joined in singing "Peace, Be Still," "I Am the Door," "Is My Name Written There?" and other hymns. The whole company seemed to be familiar with the music and all joined in. Mr. Sankey sang a solo, "The Palace of the King," a Scotch air, and afterward "Bringing in the Sheaves," and later on two or three other familiar hymns. He accompanied himself on the piano. Mr. Sankey starts on the 26th inst. for Liverpool, and will join Mr. Moody in Wales.

OBITUARY.

Rear-Admiral Beaumont.

New York Times, Aug. 4.

Rear-Admiral John C. Beaumont, a retired officer of the United States Navy, died suddenly from heart-disease on Wednesday evening at Durham, N. H., where he was passing the summer with his family, at the age of 61 years. Admiral Beaumont was a native of Pennsylvania, from which State he was appointed Acting Midshipman in 1838. He served on the sloops-of-war Ontario and Erie, and on the frigate Constellation during her cruise around the world which was concluded in 1844. He was immediately afterwards promoted to be Passed Midshipman, and after serving on the coast of Africa, in the West India squadron, at the fall of Vera Cruz, and in the Naval Observatory at Washington, he was promoted to a Lieutenancy in 1852. After serving in this capacity in the Naval Observatory for two years, he was engaged in different branches of the service until the War broke out, when he acted as Lieutenant-Commander, commanding the Aroostook, of the North Atlantic squadron. He was an active participant in the engagements with the Rebel batteries in the James River and at Fort Darling in May, 1862. The same year he was promoted to the rank of Commander, and in 1863 he commanded the monitor Nantucket in various engagements with the Rebel fortifications in Charleston Harbor, and took a leading part in the capture of Fort Wagner. In 1864 and 1865 he was in command of the Mackinaw in the North and South Atlantic squadrons, and participated in all of the attacks on Fort Fisher, where his vessel was badly cut up by the enemy's shells. He also took part in all the subsequent engagements with the Rebel batteries on the Cape Fear River, and a year later commanded the iron-clad Miantonomoh in her special cruise on the coast of Europe. In 1868 Rear-Admiral Beaumont retired from the service. He was restored to the active list, with the rank of Captain, in 1873, and placed in command of the steamer Powhattan on special service. In 1874 he was promoted to the rank of Commodore and made Chief Signal Officer of the Navy. Seven years later he was made Rear-Admiral, and his last service was in command of the navy-yard at Portsmouth, N. H. Last February he was, at his own request, placed on the retired list, since which time he has resided at Portsmouth. He was twice married, and a widow and three children survive him.

Charles A. Vogeler, a Prominent Business-Man of Baltimore.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 5.—Mr. Charles A. Vogeler, of the firm of A. Vogeler & Co., died at his residence here today of typhoid fever. He was but 31 years of age, and one of the most enterprising and pushing young business-men of Baltimore. His father is August Vogeler, senior partner of the firms of August Vogeler & Co., Vogeler, Meyer & Co., and Vogeler, Son & Co., each of which concerns have branch establishments in the West and South. Charles Vogeler was born in Baltimore, but received his entire education in Bremen. Upon his return to America he commenced in the patent-medicine business, in which he achieved great success. He was one of the most liberal advertisers in the world, and spent several hundred thousand dollars every year in this way. He conducted a business amounting to over a million dollars annually and gave employment to 300 persons. He was also foremost in many other enterprises, and at Baltimore's sesqui centennial celebration two years ago, and other like festivals. He always took a leading part and subscribed handsomely. He was a member of the Merchants' & Manufacturers' Association, owner of the natatorium or swimming-school, a Director in the Montgomery Palace-Car Company of New York, a member of the order of the Oriole, the Maryland Jockey Club, and many other social and business organizations. He married Miss Minnie Winter, daughter of Mr. Julius Winter, of Louisville, Ky., who with five children survives him. He was well known in business throughout the entire country, and by his death Baltimore has certainly lost one of her representative men.

Jefferson Eaton, a Pioneer of Winnebago County, Wisconsin, of Consumption.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

OSHKOSH, Wis., Aug. 5.—Jefferson Eaton, a pioneer resident of Winnebago County, died last evening of consumption near this city. He was born in Herkimer County, New York, in September, 1820, and in 1843 came West to Milwaukee, and from that city to Fond du Lac on the first road cut through the wilderness. He was the father of ex-City-Attorney M. H. Eaton and Dr. L. H. Eaton, of this city.

Franz Falk, at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 5.—Franz Falk, President of the Franz Falk Brewing Company, died this evening, aged 65 years.

AN UNNATURAL FATHER.

Crazed by Patent Medicines, He Cuts His Child's Throat and Is Himself Seriously Injured in Attempting to Escape.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The neighbors of Mr. Edward H. C. Brown, of No. 229 Maujer street, Brooklyn, E. D., were startled this morning by the sound of violent screams and scuffling, which came from his front room in the second story. Several of them rushed in through the open door, and as they entered they were further startled by seeing him throw down a bloody razor, release himself from the grasp of his wife, step over the bleeding form of his 6-year-old child, and leap through the window. Such an accumulation of horrors as was presented took several minutes for an understanding, for Mrs. Brown was at first unable to collect herself enough to explain matters. When she had recovered herself enough to tell what had happened she said she had been attracted to the room by hearing her child cry loudly. Entering, she found her husband holding the child between his knees, asking her over and over again, "What have you been doing?" The child was frightened and was crying and answering, "Nothing, papa." Meanwhile the father was fumbling with two razors that were in a case that he owned. As his wife entered he suddenly drew one of the keen blades across the child's throat. Before he could make a second motion his wife had seized his arm, and was struggling with him. During the struggle the neighbors arrived, and the unhappy man leaped from the window. As he fell he was caught on the iron pickets of the fence in front of the house, and was cruelly lacerated in the leg. Turning as he fell he struck the sidewalk on his forehead, fracturing his skull. His wife says that he formerly drank rather heavily, but since July 4 he had drank nothing at all of an intoxicating nature. He had, she said, been suffering from some trouble in his head for a year past, and had taken great quantities of patent medicines, buying and taking all that he saw advertised. For about two weeks past he had been under a physician's care, but he had not ceased to take the advertised nostrums.

TELEGRAPHERS.

The Strike at Denver Creating Quite a Commotion in the East.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Telegraph operators talked a good deal today about the strike in the Denver office of the Western Union Company, and the action of the Executive Board of one of the telegraphic organizations regarding it. The general opinion expressed was that the company would have to take the men back at the increased rate. The officers of the company, however, maintained the contrary, and said besides that they expected no trouble in any other part of the country. Gen. Eckert, the General Manager, said that the importance of the trouble had been exaggerated. In the East, he said, the men were dissatisfied neither with their work nor their pay. Operators in New York were receiving from $25 to $100 a month. He did not think they were at all likely to go on a strike on their own account, and still less for the sake of people in Denver. The affair he regarded as a purely local one, and he believed it would settle itself. Another official of the company gave a version of the Denver strike entirely different from that current at Pittsburg. He said that when the men asked the increase they demanded a written guarantee from Superintendent Bates that it would be granted, and refused to touch their keys until he furnished such guarantee. He pointed out that he had no power to do so, and, as the men refused to yield a point, he desired them to leave the office. "We are getting along very nicely out there now," said this gentleman, "and we have all the men we want." Mr. William J. Dealy, the chief operator of the main office, Broadway and Dey street, smiled at the idea of a general strike in this city or elsewhere. The men, he said, were well paid and the work was easy—day men nine hours not including lunch time; night men seven hours. He thought there was general contentment, and the value of good work was always on the increase. He might say on a rough estimate that the county employed 1,000 men in this city, but could not say for certain whether a single one of them belonged to either of the unions, though he presumed some did. He thought the Denver affair had very little influence here, and did not expect it would exercise any. The operators are rather inclined to be reticent, but it seemed to be conceded that there was little prospect of a general strike in this city or this part of the country. The operators, however, will sustain their brethren in Denver with money and by forbidding any of their number from going to that city and to take the strikers' places. Nearly all the men in this city, it was stated, belong to one or the other of the societies, and they recognize that the men in the Denver office had cause of complaint on account of the dearness of living in that city. At the same time, those operators who were seen appeared satisfied with the rates paid here, and they thought a general strike very unlikely at present. They thought the company would be obliged to take the strikers back at the advanced rate. Denver is the "relay" or repeating office for all new Mexico, Colorado, a great part of Arizona, and in times of storm, for a great section of the West. The business gave fifteen men all they could do, and it was positively asserted that on Friday the manager of the office and the two chief operators were trying vainly to do the work unaided.

LIFE IN FLATS.

Fine New Apartment-Houses on the West Side.

The new Talbott flats, or apartment-houses, just completed at the corner of Jackson and Paulina streets, are a most important improvement. The buildings are six in number, each containing four flats of seven rooms, hot and cold water, baths, closets, and all conveniences and attractions of the best New York flats.

A beautiful green lawn, with rare plants and flowers surround the buildings. The entrances are very attractive, having New Brunswick granite columns on either side, nickel-plated ornamental railings, and huge solid oak doors. Great care has been taken in the matter of sewerage. Freight elevators are provided, and a competent janitor will always be in attendance.

The solidity and regularity of the masonry is a noticeable feature of these flats. Messrs. O'Connell & McGinnis, the contractors for this, also had charge of the plastering, and as contractors have shown a marked capability for handling extensive contracts.

Above the brick walls runs an ornamental cornice, which, with the slate roofing which rises in towers, Gothic style, lends to these buildings a distinguishing prominence. Since the fire, galvanized iron cornices have been improved by intelligent manufacturers until they are exceedingly ornamental, and to Messrs. Price & Kaufman, who placed this roof and cornice, is largely due the improvements in the art of beautiful cornicemaking, which is their specialty.

The extensive carpentering and finishing was contracted for by Mr. A. M. Mangson, and the work has been most creditably performed. Mr. Mangson is a well-known North Side contractor, and his work is spoken of by architect and owner as being carried out satisfactorily in every detail.

Wood mantels, which have become decidedly the fashion for modern interiors, being exceedingly ornamental, are a fine feature of the Talbott flats, the total number being thirty-six, and are equally of red oak and cherry. These mantels are made from special designs, and manufactured by the Goss & Phillips Manufacturing Company, who make a specialty of hardwood finishing of all kinds for interiors, and have displayed some exquisite work in this line.

The improvement is an ornament to the West Side, and cannot fail to attract a fine class of tenants. J. C. Magill & Co., 88 Washington street, are the agents.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 6, 1882.

THE high-pressure water-works are objected to by the Council Committee on Fire and Water. Ald. Lawler, it is said, carelessly gave the reason for his objection when he declared that "a private company" was willing to give $250,000 for the franchise. To whom is the private company willing to give that sum?

SENATOR EDMUNDS has advised the Republicans in the Senate to stand by the Tax bill if it takes all summer. It is comparatively easy for Senator Edmunds to proffer such advice, as he is luxuriating in the cooling breezes of Lake Champlain. He is manifestly willing to sacrifice all his political relations in Washington in a good cause.

IS THERE any apparent reason why the water in the lake at the South Park should be twelve feet deep? The lake in Lincoln Park is purposely kept shallow to provide against accident. Four feet of water are as good as twenty for boating. If the South Park lake had been only four feet deep there would have been no fatal accident there Friday.

WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR has been appointed Minister to Italy. The chief qualifications of William Waldorf Astor for this position are (1) that he was defeated for Congress last fall; (2) that he was opposed to the street-cleaning bill in New York; (3) that he voted for Roscoe Conkling; (4) that he is a Stalwart of the Stalwarts; (5) that he is very rich.

THE Bureau of Statistics has sent out a statement of the number of immigrants arrived in the United States for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1882, as compared with the preceding year. The figures are as follows:

Countries.	1882.	1881.	Increase.
England and Wales	85,175	66,204	18,971
Ireland	76,432	72,342	4,090
Scotland	18,937	15,168	3,769
Austria	16,770	21,109	*4,339
Germany	249,505	210,485	39,020
Norway	29,100	22,705	6,395
Sweden	64,607	49,760	14,847
Dominion of Canada	98,308	125,391	*27,083
China	39,579	11,890	27,689
All other countries	110,590	74,377	36,213
Total	789,003	669,431	119,572

*Decrease.

While there has been a large increase for the year, the falling off for June last has been quite noticeable. The arrivals for that month in 1882 were 84,786, and for the same month in 1881, 95,535. Germany sent 13,000 more emigrants in June, 1881, than in June, 1882; Austria, 3,000 more; Ireland about the same number. It will be seen that Canadian immigration has largely fallen off during the year. The protectionists in Canada will attribute the change to the new Dominion tariff; but the truth is that the returns previous to 1882 were very inaccurate.

THE London Athenæum promises to print soon a collection of hitherto unpublished Byron papers, which, it says, will "throw much light on dark passages in the poet's history." The dark passage which the Athenæum hopes especially to illumine is that which Mrs. Stowe attempted unsuccessfully to explore. Much of the correspondence now to be published passed between Lady Byron and Augusta (the Hon. Mrs. Leigh). It shows the relations of these two ladies to have been such that the story of Mrs. Stowe could not possibly have been true. Long after the date of the alleged "discovery" Lady Byron was writing to Augusta on the most friendly terms. Differences arose between them for other reasons fully set forth in the correspondence, and furnished a motive for the atrocious calumnies which Lady Byron uttered against her sister-in-law. Mrs. Stowe's story was long ago dispersed, though her honesty in making it public has not been successfully assailed. Mrs. Stowe has atoned for her wrong, but what shall be thought of Lady Byron? Either the story she told was true, or she slandered her husband and sister-in-law. The public has reluctantly been driven to the latter conclusion. If it is correct, Lady Byron's temper is not put in an enviable light, and Byron's provocation for leaving her seems to be more serious than it ever did before. It will be odd if the result of Mrs. Stowe's publication shall eventually be to lift some of the darker shadows from Lord Byron's life.

THE Republican Senators met in caucus yesterday and resolved to go on with the Tax bill. It is difficult to see what they expect to accomplish by this course. When once the appropriation bills are passed it will be hard to hold a quorum together in either House. The Democrats will only need to leave a guard in Washington to see that nothing is done without their consent. The Tax bill cannot, of course, become a law at this stage of the session if the Democrats shall oppose a solid front to it. The Republican Senators may perhaps wish to inform the country that the Democrats are opposing a reduction of taxation. But this fact has already been well advertised.

THE Naval Appropriation bill has at last been put through both Houses without the loss of its more valuable features. The Senate conferees yielded on most points. This was to have been expected from the composition of the Senate committee, all the members of which were originally in favor of the reforms in the House bill. There is to be a reduction of both the staff and the line of the navy, though the Commodores are not to be abolished utterly, as Robeson proposed. The Secretary of the Navy is to have the discretion to close navy-yards as he shall see fit—a high compliment to the integrity and judgment of the present Secretary of the Navy. Robeson does not get as much by $600,000 for floating his monitors as he expected and demanded. The bill is a good one. But there is no apparent reason why it should not have passed in February as well as in the dog-days. The Naval bill has heretofore been one of the first to be brought forward, and would have been this year but for the laziness of Robeson.

THERE will be an election in Alabama tomorrow. A full State ticket and a Legislature will be chosen. The Legislature will appoint a successor to Senator Morgan, whose term will expire March 3, 1883. If the Senator should be elected to stay at home an immense boon would be conferred on the people of the country at large. Morgan has been fitly described as "the long-distance champion orator of the Senate." He is a speaker of the old school, and does not know that he is fairly on his legs until he has consumed two hours of the Senate's time. He indiscriminately talks to death both the measures he is in favor of and those he opposes. If Morgan had not deemed it necessary to make six long speeches in favor of the Japanese Indemnity bill, which he was very anxious to have passed, it would have become a law long ago. Now it is likely to fail. For all this Morgan is a man of great ability and legal learning; and, if he could curb his unfortunate tongue, would be a useful member of the Senate.

AN ACEPHALOUS GOVERNMENT.

The Government of the City of Chicago is without a head. The Mayor has not only left the city, but the State and the country, and is now traveling on a foreign steamer under the British flag, leaving Chicago exposed to all the perils and trials resulting from the want of an Executive. The case is unprecedented. The great commercial, manufacturing, and food-distributing city of the country to be deserted, abandoned, and forsaken by its appointed Executive and left in the irresponsible control of hirelings and underlings! Who is to care for Chicago now that her Mayor is away and in foreign lands consorting with Dukes and Duchesses, Lords and nobles, perchance with Emperors and Empresses? Where is the Mayor of Chicago, and no less than fourteen picnics to be held here in the next thirty days, all to be held in different languages, and no one to address the picnickers in their native tongues! What is to become of Chicago during these weeks of desertion? No one here to pardon the inmates of the bridewell, and restore to liberty the noble patriots who may beat their wives and pound their children? Suppose some ignorant O'Brien or other man of that kind shall insult or assault some respectable persons, and some Justice of the Peace shall fine the fellow and send him to the bridewell, who is to release the ruffian in the absence of the Mayor? Must a chosen officer of that kind languish in prison while the Mayor of Chicago is consorting and hobnobbing with Bismarck, Parnell, Gladstone, Arabi Pasha, and the other rulers of Europe? Why should he abandon the saloonkeepers and the disorderly-house people now when the tide of prohibition agitation is sweeping over the land, threatening to swamp the personal liberty of the people, and endeavoring to establish some legal recognition of Sunday? Where, oh, where is the Mayor whose recent speech upon the sovereign virtues of whisky is recognized in every distillery in the land as a further improvement upon a new version of the Bible? In the abandonment of the Mayor's peculiar constituents they cry out in their distress, "Why has our beloved deserted us; oh, let him hasten to our protection before we shall be imprisoned and escape not." What is the law in such an emergency? The law of the State creating the office of Mayor provides:

> The chief executive officer of a city shall be a Mayor, who shall be a citizen of the United States, a qualified elector, reside within the city limits, and hold his office for two years and until his successor is elected and qualified.
> . . . .
> During a temporary absence or disability of the Mayor, the City Council shall elect one of its number to act as Mayor pro tem., who, during such absence or disability shall possess the powers of Mayor.
> If the Mayor, at any time during the term of his office, shall remove from the limits of the city, his office shall thereby become vacant.

There are various other provisions all defining the powers and duties of the Mayor, and in no case is he permitted to delegate any of his powers to any other officer. The only person who can exercise any of the powers pertaining to the office of Mayor is such person as may be elected to that office to fill a vacancy, temporary or permanent; and the charter provides that there shall be no vacancy in the office longer than is necessary to convene the Council and elect some person for that purpose. The possibility of the city being left without a Mayor is legally prevented, because of the absolute prohibition of any power of the Mayor to delegate any of the powers of his office to any other officer.

The understanding is that the Mayor has left in the hands of the Controller various blanks and with other persons blank warrants, pardons, and other papers which can only be issued by the Mayor of the city. All these he has signed in blank, and all of them are of necessity illegal. The charter does not contemplate, in fact prohibits, the exercise of any duty by the Mayor except by him in person, and in the City of Chicago. It provides for a temporary Mayor, even in case of any absence from the city, which temporary Mayor alone can perform any official duty. Neither Mr. Gurney nor Mr. Felton can, during the Mayor's absence, perform any legal duty of the Mayor, even under a warrant signed by him. When he leaves the city his legal authority to do any act pertaining to the office of Mayor ceases instantly, and all papers signed with his name and issued during his absence are as void as if they were blank paper.

Gentlemen and ladies who may find themselves incarcerated in the bridewell during the Mayor's absence will experience the serious embarrassment of there being no officer in the city authorized to remit the fines or pardon them. Aldermanic intercession, even for constituents, will be vain. The only escape from Mr. Felton's hotel will be through the payment of the penalties, with perhaps the chance of an appropriation from the Council after the Mayor's return to refund them.

We do not imagine there will be any general complaint in case the bridewell delivery shall be suspended. It will interfere somewhat with the daily patronage of some of the Aldermen, whose dealings with a portion of their constituents consist of employing them to manage the primaries, act as delegates to nominating conventions, and in return of getting them pardoned out of the bridewell whenever committed thereto. The absence of the Mayor for sixty days may compel the city to hire further quarters or erect temporary barracks to accommodate the prisoners, but as a general thing this will relieve the streets and low quarters of the city from their habitués, and enable the Mayor on his return to issue the largest proclamation of pardon ever issued by the Mayor of any city in any country at one time.

In stating the legal disability resulting from the absence of the Mayor, the failure to elect an acting Mayor, and the want of a head to the City Government, we do not wish to be understood as objecting personally to Mr. Felton or the Controller. We have no question that these gentlemen will be faithful and intelligent in their trusts, nor do we have any fear that the city's interests or character will suffer because of the Mayor's absence. We refer to the case particularly because it is a gross violation of law, which should not pass into a recognized precedent. Other times may come when other men than Mr. Gurney may hold the city paper signed in blank by an absent Mayor, and the necessity for a legal compliance with the charter to sanction official acts may become of serious consequence, and when this evil and unnecessary precedent may become of costly importance. The duties of Mayor cannot legally be performed by proxy, and it is unwise and dangerous to attempt it.

SMALL-POX IN THE NORTHWEST.

The ignorance of Congress in regard to the National Board of Health and its operations is truly lamentable. Mr. Hiscock, the Chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, is a fair-minded man, and sincerely anxious to do what is right; yet he has been convinced, in some strange way, that the National Board is striving for political influence, and that the work it has been doing in the West and South has no practical utility.

It is one of the misfortunes of every quarantine or health regulation that the more effective it is in preventing disease the less are its visible and tangible results. There has been little or no yellow-fever in the South during the last year, and it is impossible to prove that there would have been any if the National Board of Health had not been in existence. We know in a general way that when there was no board yellow-fever in some years was an epidemic, and the consequences in certain regions very destructive of life and property; but it is also a fact that under the old system many years passed without the development of the fever. It is impossible to establish a negative in argument, and the best work of all health organizations is the producing of negatives. Public health is a normal condition, other things being equal, and it is an ungrateful task for the most ardent statisticians to show that normal results have been obtained in a given case.

But while this is true of yellow-fever in the South for the last few years, it is by no means true of small-pox in the Northwest. Small-pox has been virtually epidemic in this section of the country for the last two years. The health officers of Chicago have been most energetic and capable in attempting to stamp out the disease. It is due to them to say that no class of public officials in the United States are freer from the suspicion of being "working politicians" or striving after political influence than they are. The chief health officer of Chicago was appointed by a Republican Mayor and retained in office by two successive Democratic Administrations. He is a hard-working, conscientious, and poorly-paid official. His subordinates are medical men of character, and one of them at least is a physician of private means, who has engaged in this work from a sense of duty and out of professional zeal.

The following table shows the number of cases of small-pox and deaths from that cause coming within the jurisdiction of the Health Office of this city during the year ending July 31 last:

1881.	Cases.	Deaths.
August	93	116
September	65	108
October	99	172
November	114	98
December	195	118
1882.
January	288	134
February	214	103
March	174	84
April	112	65
May	84	57
June	56	45
July	24	16
Total	1,518	1,116

One thousand one hundred and sixteen deaths from small-pox in Chicago in a single year is, it must be confessed, an inordinate number. Small-pox is a preventable disease. Proper vaccination is a secure protection against it. No fatal cases came under the notice of the health officers last year in which the patient had been duly vaccinated within two years previous to the attack.

It will be noticed that the number of small-pox cases diminished rapidly as the warm weather came on. The disease does not exist in Chicago at present in an epidemic form. It has been checked partly by the efficient regulations of the Board of Health and partly by the operation of natural causes. Small-pox does not usually flourish in the United States during warm weather, when doors and windows are kept open and abundant ventilation is insured. But there is no telling how speedily it may return in the fall, or with what virulence.

It may be said that if the local Board of Health has been able to do such good work there is no reason why it should have the assistance of a National organization. But this is fallacious reasoning. The utmost harmony prevails between the local and National boards. The Municipal Government sent its Controller and Health Officer to Washington last spring for the express purpose of urging Congress to enlarge the powers of the National Board. This fact of itself disproves the allegation that the movement had in it no higher object than an extension of political patronage. The local Government is Democratic. How could it be benefited by an enlargement of National patronage under a Republican Administration? The charge is ridiculously false. There has been no politics in either of the Health Boards, and will be none so long as they shall remain under their present management.

The belief of intelligent medical men in this part of the country is that small-pox is not indigenous, but is imported from Europe. A large stream of immigration is constantly flowing through Chicago. Few of the immigrants are properly protected by vaccination. At one time last winter above 75 per cent of the inmates of the small-pox hospital in this city were newly-arrived immigrants. The health officers believe that the small-pox would never be an alarming disease in the city if the immigrants were vaccinated before embarking on the other side of the ocean. Vaccination in New York or any other receiving port is not enough, because the patient may develop small-pox in transitu from New York to Chicago before the innoculation has been completed. Our Health Boards, State and city, have endeavored to have a National law enacted compelling steamship companies to require a certificate of vaccination of immigrants before embarkation, or ten days before landing. But owing to the influence of the companies or for some other reasons the proposed bill could not obtain a hearing.

Congress has not only refused to enlarge the powers of the National Board, but it has resolved to retrench them. In a spasm of economy the House reduced the appropriation for the support of the board to $15,500, and refused to concur in a Senate amendment increasing the amount by $78,000. There were plenty of members to vote in favor of passing the River and Harbor bill (appropriating $18,700,000) over the President's veto, but not a bare majority of a quorum to make an allowance for the simple wants of the Board of Health. The difference shows how much more potential a proposition to grant money for local improvements is than a measure looking to the protection of the public health.

The National Board has established an efficient system of inspection, which the Illinois State Board is now continuing, the results of which are set forth in another column this morning. Without going into details, it is sufficient to say that the local officers testify to the merits of this system in the warmest terms. It will be a real deprivation, a wrong and injury, to the Northwest if Congress, influenced by mistaken notions of economy, shall strike down this system just when it is beginning to produce the most beneficent results. It will be especially unfortunate if this shall be done in consequence of the misguided exertions of the Illinois member of the Committee on Appropriations, who ought to know what he is talking about in this connection, but apparently does not.

SENATORIAL HERESY.

Senator Anthony, of Rhode Island, is clearly guilty of political heresy. It is with regret that we prefer the charge: (1) Because he is a man of venerable age. (2) Because he was once an editor. (3) Because he is the father of the Senate. (4) Because he is of our political faith. (5) Because it is his first offense. If it were not a very grave offense it might be excused on account of the past good character of the culprit. But it threatens our free institutions; it is an assault upon the palladium of our liberties! It has always been found a matter of extreme difficulty to adequately punish political heresy. Political parties have power to issue decrees, but lack the authority to enforce penalties. In the case of Senator Anthony, however, the offense is not against a political party, but against the people; and in the hands of the people there is always a remedy. Mr. Anthony will soon come before the representatives of the people of Rhode Island for an indorsement of his past course of twenty-four years in the highest legislative body in the land and seeking reëlection. We shall see then how the representatives of the people of the proud Commonwealth of Rhode Island regard the attempt of their servant to gag his brother members of the Lower House!

This brings us directly to Mr. Anthony's offense. He has proposed an amendment to the Sundry Civil bill cutting off the printing in the Congressional Record of speeches not actually delivered. And in defense of his amendment he says flatly "that it is his purpose to stop the publication of undelivered matter." Think of it, ye gods! Senator Anthony speaks contemptuously of the speeches of Congressmen as "matter"!

Now, what is matter? Lexicographers define it as "that which is thrown out or discharged in a tumor, boil, or abscess; pus, purulent substance collected in an abscess, the effect of suppuration more or less perfect." Plainly Mr. Anthony characterizes Congressmen as "tumors," "boils," or "abscesses," undergoing a process of "suppuration more or less perfect," and as secreting "pus" more or less "purulent." It has been said by a political philosopher that "cities are sores on the body politic," but Mr. Anthony is the first audacious person who has had the temerity to characterize Congressmen as tumors, boils, or abscesses on the body of the National Legislature discharging "purulent pus" in the form of speeches in the Congressional Record.

It may be said that there is another definition which may have been in the mind of Mr. Anthony when he proposed his famous amendment—namely: that matter is divided by philosophical writers into three classes, the third class of which is known as "æriform substances, or elastic fluids called vapors and gases." But how does this mend the matter? Does Mr. Anthony wish to be understood as asserting that the speeches of his brother Congressmen in the Lower House are windy, flatulent, and gaseous? Does he suppose that Congressmen will rest easier under the imputation of emitting vapors and gases than of discharging purulent pus?

Mr. Anthony's proposed amendment can be regarded in no other light than as a monstrous outrage upon the right of free speech, or rather the right of free printing. While the country hangs breathless with admiration on the burning sentences of the member from Poker Flat in the Congressional Record, and that gentleman is overwhelmed with telegraphic dispatches of congratulation, Mr. Anthony may be presumed to be sneeringly referring to the masterly effort as purulent pus or vaporous gas.

The sole explanation of Mr. Anthony's animosity toward "undelivered speeches" is envy. Of this unworthy passion the dispatches give a hint. They state that the custom of printing undelivered speeches in the Record "tends to give some members who as a matter of fact are not capable of making a respectable speech a prominence which they do not deserve." Mr. Anthony is not reported as having made this remark, but there is no doubt he inspired it, and it shows an intensity of envy which is truly diabolical. It shows that these undelivered speeches fire the popular heart, and so lift their authors into a prominence which the envious Senator declares "they do not deserve."

If Senator Anthony knew how insufferably dull the Congressional debates as published in the daily papers are he would not seek to deprive the people of the more exciting and exhilarating matter found in the undelivered speeches published in the Record. Everybody knows that the old members tyrannize over the House, consuming all the time of the sessions in useless debate, thus depriving the new members of an opportunity to be heard. We regret that Mr. Anthony has joined the conspiracy to render the tyranny still more oppressive. Besides, is Mr. Anthony without any bowels of compassion? At his age he ought to take some thought of the value of time. If the undelivered speeches which are now published in the Record are refused publication they will be delivered; and to accommodate their delivery Congress will be compelled to hold continuous sessions, day and night, all the year round.

Remorseless, envious, unmerciful Mr. Anthony. Withdraw your cruel amendment or enlarge it so as to prohibit the publication of all speeches, delivered or undelivered.

INDEX OF PROHIBITED WORKS.

Renan's treatise on "The Ecclesiastes" has been put in the Index Prohibitorum. This is not the first time the author has been admitted to that numerous and fashionable company, but he has never before so thoroughly enjoyed his elevation. "The Ecclesiastes" was going off slowly. It had nothing like the vogue of the "Life of Jesus." The publishers were in despair. They had exhausted their means of pushing it. If the Congregation of the Index had not come to their assistance there is no telling what measures they might not have been compelled to adopt.

Leo X. irreverently said to a complaining friend who had written an unsalable book, "Why, I'll put it in the Index for you." It has been much the fashion to jeer at the Catholic practice in this respect, but there are, after all, two sides to it. The putting of a book in the Index may increase its sale, but the Congregation is not greatly concerned about the result. The object of the prohibition against the reading of certain books is not to prevent or diminish their general circulation, but to warn the faithful against them, and keep them from Catholic readers. If Protestants choose to read such writings because the authorities of the Catholic Church have condemned them, the latter cannot surely be held to a strict account for the consequences. They indicate to the children of the church what they should not read; and the object of their interference is attained if their counsel is followed by those to whom it is addressed.

The theory of the Index, nevertheless, has always been regarded as wrong by Protestant writers, and it probably is so. Books cannot be suppressed by decrees any more than comets can. If there is anything true, genuine, vital, and worthy to live in literature no church or power on earth can destroy it. The "Paradise Lost" has not succumbed to the Index, and Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations," which was proscribed "for its lowness of style and looseness of morals," is still the corner-stone of a new science. An English geographical manual was recently put in the Index because it took a despondent view of the morals of the Mexican monks. But if the morals of the Mexican monks really are bad they have much reason to wish the Index had never been invented. The action of the authorities has possibly turned the calcium light on a number of delicate ecclesiastical questions in Mexico. Gibbon, of course, broke into the Index as soon as his famous Seventh Chapter had been written, but it is still the best-thumbed portion of all his writings. Goldsmith wrote a History of England whose feebleness ought to have saved him from priestly censure, but it was pronounced one of the prohibited works. Time and dullness have prohibited it more effectually than the thunders of the Vatican. There is an odd story that a Treatise on Trigonometry was once put in the Index under the supposition that it advanced heretical notions about the Trinity, and a pamphlet on the "Destruction of Insects" got into the same honorable company because it was thought to be a covert attack on the Jesuits.

Protestants who are accustomed to vaunt the liberty of the press in their own church may not care to be reminded that Calvin wrote to the ministers at Frankfort urging them to burn one of Servetus' books, or that Luther had an Index of his own. In the early days of New England the public burning of books was no uncommon thing. One of the works of John Eliot, the Indian apostle, was burned as heretical and treasonable, and the history of that period records many instances of the same kind.

The Protestant Index nowadays is not promulgated by any church, but it resides in the enlightened conscience of the clergy. Renan possibly has a place in the Protestant as well as in the Catholic Index. Tom Paine's political writings as well as his infidel treatises have found a place there. Prof. Seelye's "Ecce Homo" has been put under the ban; and an eminent orthodox evangelist once denounced it in this city in unmeasured terms, though he courageously confessed that he had never read it. There are many books not commonly regarded as infidel or immoral writings which Protestant laymen would not care to have their pastors see them reading. They are in the Protestant Index, which is not the less efficient because printed or proclaimed.

MUSIC AND SAND-FLIES.

One of the most charming attractions of Chicago as the great place of summer resort, Mr. Thomas' summer-night concerts, is at an end. The season closed last evening, and though the weather since it commenced, July 3, has not been all that could be desired, it has been remarkably successful. This is all the more remarkable also when it is remembered that these concerts followed closely upon the heels of the great May Festival, which employed a vast array of singers and an orchestra more than three times as large as that which has been playing in the garden concerts. This is now the third of these seasons, which were inaugurated by the late George B. Carpenter, and which have been carried through to success by his successor, Mr. Milward Adams, and there is every reason to believe that they will be a permanent feature of our pleasant summer days. Mr. Thomas and his excellent band will be missed by those who have attended these concerts. The programs and the performances have left no room for fault-finding, though cool weather, and rains, and sand-flies have used their utmost endeavors to interfere with them. The last-named pest, however, has been late in his visitation, so that he has not gotten in his work with that thoroughness which usually characterizes him. Still, during the past week he has played considerable havoc with the conductor's devoted bald spot, and kept the handkerchief waving quite as vigorously as the baton, while the fiddlers, in sawing across these live mutes, have not always given out firm and accurate tones. The unusual illumination with gas and the electric light at the same time has been a strong temptation to these night-fowl, and, as they have a habit of flying straight ahead without reference to destination, and sticking pertinaciously to whatever they happen to hit, they have proved to be of no little inconvenience to all concerned, for the conductor "shooing" them away with his handkerchief and his players dodging in all directions to avoid them have been hardly more observed than gay promenaders in intermissions filing along in blissful unconsciousness of festoons of them clinging to their apparel. At Cleveland, where the band will play this week, the sand-fly will be out in full force. Here they have only encountered the advance guard; there the grand army will arrive and test the patience of fiddlers and horn-blowers. It is presumable that wise and far-seeing Nature has some special mission in her economy for these greasy, crisp, and short-lived fowl, but what it is does not yet appear. Not even the sand-fly, however, has deterred people from thoroughly enjoying the feast of music, for we have observed bald-pated gentlemen with three or four of these pests sitting on their heads at a time and elevating and depressing their three-pronged tails in the tempo of the music while the victim sat unconscious that his smooth cranium was the roosting place of such superfluous animals. Every one has enjoyed the music and every one will regret that the season is over and send good wishes and regrets after the excellent band. As Chicago is about the only city in this country which can support a summer season of this kind, it is pleasant to reflect that it has been of such a high character as to music and of such high excellence as to performance, and that the band itself is so largely composed of Chicago musicians. We heartily commend them to Cleveland.

Sterling P. Rounds, Public Printer.

Some six months ago President Arthur had the good fortune to meet Sterling P. Rounds, Esq., of Chicago, among the persons recommended to him for the office of Superintendent of the Government printing establishment at Washington, and had the better fortune to appoint him to that office. Mr. Rounds was evidently the proper man for the place. With a personal experience second to that of no one in the country, and with a reputation for integrity as widely extended as the printing business, and as richly deserved, he took to the office all the qualities of head and heart that should be possessed by a man holding such an important position of trust and of such consequence to a vast number of employés. His administration so far has been eminently successful, and his record is fully appreciated by Congress and by the Government. Upon Mr. Rounds' presentation of the facts, both Houses of Congress, without a dissenting vote, passed a bill for a deficiency, which had come down from his predecessor, of $465,000. His estimate for 1883, which amounted to $2,400,000, was accepted and passed without a reduction, and he was further authorized to purchase sundry articles at his own discretion, without advertising or contract. All this is extremely honorable to Mr. Rounds, and adds to the credit of a gentleman so long and favorably known and respected in Chicago.

With his accustomed skill in the selection of assistants he selected Capt. H. T. Brian, a man of untiring energy and great experience, as his chief assistant. Capt. Brian is a man of Rounds' own style, and the two men, acting together, have thoroughly reformed and remodeled the establishment and put it in sound, practical working order. A Washington writer, speaking from personal observation of the great reforms and improvements of the National printing-office, says that the "Government printing department, in extent, in the amount of work performed, in the completeness of all the appliances essential to execute first-class printing and binding, is second to no establishment in the world, and gives employment to an army of skilled laborers. The work done there is of a complicated and diversified character, and ability of the highest order is required to direct and attain the best results."

The present manager, it is said:

> Has, with a less force and without a resort to extra hours of labor, been enabled to execute more work than under the old order of things. The "saving at the spigot and waste at the bung" policy has been cast aside, and a stop has been put to all leakages. No drones, no sinecures, no partial discriminations are tolerated; but discipline and an observance of correct business rules are demanded. The result shows that the employés are better contented and heartily indorse the reforms established. Radical changes have been made in all the divisions. Live men have been selected as foremen and assistant foremen; vigorous blood supplants sluggishness; all clearly indicating that Mr. Rounds is determined that the Government printing establishment, whilst being the largest in the world, shall at the same time be the finest and most complete in all its appointments and management.

To those who knew Mr. Rounds during his thirty years' business career in this city the fact of his success in this important office, while no surprise, will be extremely gratifying.

"THE Plays and Poems of Charles Dickens," edited by R. H. Shepherd, have just been published in London in two volumes. The Pall Mall Gazette does not think very highly of the collection. "The 'Poems,'" it remarks, "are valueless, except the verses which appear ordinarily in their proper place in 'Pickwick.' But the plays are something more than valueless—they are positively bad; and though in sound literary judgment no blame can attach to Dickens for the production at a very early age of a kind of work for which he was obviously unfitted, and his unfitness for which he had the sense to recognize, it is not so clear that no blame attaches to Mr. Shepherd for raking up these peccadilloes of a great writer's youth. There are six plays given."—It is reported that F. H. Underwood's biography of Whittier has been undertaken at the request of the poet. The same writer will also prepare a biography of Dr. Holmes, the latter having given his assent to the project.—Theodore Tilton has just published a series of metrical "Swabian Tales," in one volume. The tales are eighteen in number, and embrace legendary, historical, and fanciful subjects, both tragic and humorous. —A "Catalog of Historical Novels and Tales" has just been published in London. The novels are divided into countries and periods from the Roman invasion up to the present year.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Indianapolis Woman's Own says: "A gentleman that I know quite well comes from the farm, makes application for a place in one of our large clothing-houses, and gets employment at a salary of $10 for the first week, and a promise of a raise as soon as he is well enough acquainted with the business not to need instructions in prices or general directions in the routine of the place. This young man is unused to the city, and never clerked in a store in his life. But another, a lady, makes application to sell goods in a woman's furnishing house, and is offered the enormous sum of $2 per week, with no promise of more till the end of the first six months. Here is an injustice that must in time be corrected. Every man, woman, and child must have an honest and fair price for a fair day's work, and he who is not willing to pay this is an enemy to honesty and a traitor to equal rights." Upon this the New Haven Register remarks: "The best-paid and easiest of all occupations, that of 'housework,' American girls shun entirely. A competent American girl, who throws aside her false pride, can earn from $3 to $5 a week, together with board and lodging, as a cook or waitress, if she only will; but, instead of so doing, and thus becoming independent, she prefers to clerk in a store at $2 a week, and board and lodge herself!"

AN opinion was recently rendered by Judge Lowell, of the United States Circuit Court in Massachusetts, with reference to silver quarters and half-dollars with pieces cut out and the holes filled with other metal. Judge Lowell holds that such coins are in effect counterfeit, and that whoever so mutilates them or knowingly passes them is guilty of counterfeiting. The reasoning by which he reaches this conclusion is, that coins of these denominations are required to be of a certain weight and fineness, and are not a legal-tender if they fall below the fixed standard. "If such a coin," he says, "has had an appreciable amount of silver removed from it, we cannot say that it remains a good coin for its original value, or even for proportionate value. If, then, the hole is plugged with base metal or with any substance other than silver, this act is an act of counterfeiting, because it is making something appear to be a good coin for its apparent value which was not so before."

THE iron screw steamship Excelsior, built for Morgan's Louisiana & Texas Steamship Company, to ply between New York and New Orleans, was successfully launched from the yard of the Harlan & Hollingsworth Company, Wilmington, Del. The Excelsior will be the largest freight-steamer in the coasting trade of this country, and will stow under deck 9,000 bales of cotton. She is next in size to the City of Peking of all the vessels built in the United States. Her length over all is 351 feet; beam, 42½ feet; and depth, 32½ feet.

THE English papers are beginning to discuss the recent bombardment of Alexandria from the scientific point of view. They find that the firing of the English guns was remarkably accurate, and that it has never been made so clear before that the conditions of firing on board ship admitted of such steadiness. "Still," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "we must not run away with the idea that the question of ironclads against forts is settled at all. If the Egyptians had possessed guns equal in power to those of the fleet, and such a system of exact ranges finding as is now at the service of all who choose to adopt it, no doubt there would have been a different tale to tell. Even as it was, their ten-inch guns were capable of penetrating at 1,000 yards the armor of every ship, except the Inflexible, if the gunners had been able to hit them." The same paper contends that the ten-inch and nine-inch guns of the fleet have not half of the muzzle energy of the new eighty-inch guns. The Spectator, reviewing the operation, says: "It would seem that, while there is no reason whatever to feel diminished confidence in fortifications, especially in good earthworks, when opposed to ships, the power of the latter has not quite justified the more sanguine expectations. A very powerful fleet, possessing an enormous initial preponderance of metal, and operating under the most favorable conditions, has, after ten hours' fire, wrecked some weak and mostly ill-constructed works, armed chiefly by obsolete weapons, fought by gunners quite unable to make a proper use of shells, and apparently incapable of handling their few heavy guns." The London Times thinks that "the ships can effect more loss of life on land batteries than the land batteries can inflict on the ships; but that, cæteris paribus, the forts can inflict more damage on a ship than a ship will ever be able to inflict on a fort."

THE trial of a lawsuit involving the maintenance of nine pug-dogs was recently begun at Frankfort-on-the-Main. The plaintiff is a Mrs. Brummer, who had contracted to take care of the dogs; and the defendants are the Marquise Henriette de Balado and the Baron M. Matthias. The joint owners of the pampered pugs left them in the care of Mrs. Brummer for fourteen days, agreeing to pay 12 cents a day for the support of the handsomest one and five cents a day apiece for the others; and the following bill-of-fare was further agreed upon: Breakfast, bread and milk; dinner, soup, meat, and vegetables; 4 o'clock repast, bread and coffee; supper, soup, meat, and bread. It was further provided that they should have white cabbage or asparagus-tops to keep their blood pure, and should on no account be compelled to eat such a plebeian and unhealthful article as the potato. At the end of fourteen days, the owners not returning, Mrs. Brummer raised the price, and this is the main point involved in the trial. The Judge adjourned the case to October, at which time numerous dog-doctors, nurses, and hotel-servants are summoned to appear as witnesses. Four lawyers are engaged in the trial.

ABOUT two weeks ago the shingle manufacturers of Manistee and Ludington, Mich., concluding that their product was selling too cheaply in the market, entered into a solemn league and compact by the terms of which instrument they were severally to cease operations for the space of thirty days. Their employés were not consulted in the matter further than to be notified that their services would not be wanted for the period above mentioned. The mills shut down, and the price bobbed up 30 to 40 cents. Now it is reported that the mill-men conceive it to be to their interest to recommence the manufacture of shingles. The employés are also willing to resume work, but now believe it is their time to speak, and as a condition precedent to resuming demand of the companies compensation for the time lost, or rather their proportion of the 30 cents taken from the general consumer. It is a very interesting controversy as it stands, and, as Sir Roger de Coverly would remark, much might be said on both sides of the question.

BARON FITZGERALD, who has, the cable announces, just retired from the bench from an unwillingness to discharge the new duties required from the Irish Judges under the Crime Repression bill, was regarded, after the retirement of Lord Justice Christian, the ablest equity lawyer on the Irish bench. He was nominally a Conservative, and never took an active part in politics or filled the office of Attorney or Solicitor-General, as is usual in Ireland before promotion to the bench. He is 73 years of age, was called to the bar in 1834, and took the silk in 1849. Immediately after it was decided that the Irish Judges were to have greater responsibility under the Crimes act, they were informed by the Government that steps would be taken to afford them personal protection, and two detectives were put "on" each Judge. Chief-Justice Morris, however, refused this honor from the very commencement. He has adopted the plan of going about in a pot hat and shooting-jacket, so that it will be hard to take him for a Judge.

THE English courts will soon have to pass upon the right of a city to maintain an action against a newspaper for publishing articles tending to bring the city into hatred, ridicule, and contempt. The London Lancet has been publishing some articles on the drainage and sewerage of Brighton, which, in the opinion of the officers of the corporation, have done the place a material injury by deterring people from coming there, and thus depreciating the value of property. Brighton is what we should call in this country a "resort," and is a place the prosperity of which is based, to a great extent, on its reputation for being healthy. Its population lives on money drawn from people who go there in pursuit of health; and, if a belief is produced that the drainage and sewerage are in such a condition as is likely to produce disease, they will go to other places. It is natural, therefore, that the Brighton authorities should resent "disquieting rumors" having a tendency to produce such disastrous results.

BOSTON Journal: The late Gen. Skobeleff was a man of great physical hardihood, but it is not extraordinary that he died from the complication of causes which have been attributed to his demise. No man, it is very clear, could stand an attack of heart-disease, apoplexy, being poisoned by orders of the Emperor, and pounded in a drunken row with some comrades—all of which occurred to him, as various newspapers of unimpeachable veracity have declared. And now, when a Paris paper comes forward and says he also took digitalis to escape dishonor that threatened him from an exposure of his complicity with Nihilist plots, wonder at the fact of his decease entirely vanishes. In addition to the above, there is reason to suppose that the strict censorship exercised over the Russian press by the authorities has suppressed the equally truthful facts that he was kicked on the head by an army-mule, fell out of a third-story window, and was drowned by tumbling into the Neva.

DR. MARK TRAFTON writes, in a recent number of Zion's Herald, a memorial of his late wife, of whom he says: "Through all these forty-six years she has been all that a minister's wife should be. She was a marvel in what is so little thought of in these degenerate times—domestic arts. What a home has been that of mine and my children! How much she made of a little! She had been taught by a wonderful mother the art of housekeeping and cuisine—that good mother, in her unenlightened condition, regarding that as peculiarly a womanly function; she had ambition, but it was to discharge her duties as a wife, a mother, a member of society, rather than to pour from the platform prosy platitudes, or be jostled at the polls with a ballot in hand. She discussed the question, 'What shall we do with our girls?' or 'What shall we do with this boy?' by carefully training them herself; and the children gathered about her dying couch thanked God for such a mother."

THE sardine last year, by failing to make its accustomed appearance off the coast of France, caused very serious loss and hardship to thousands of fishermen, and it was feared that it might never return to its old hunting-grounds. Scientists discussed the matter, and the suggestion was made, and received much support, that the Gulf Stream had probably changed its course, and taken the little fish with it, perhaps permanently. This would have inflicted a fatal blow to a large and valuable industry, and would have caused a regrettable gap in the sardine supply. The expectation was general that there would be no appearance of them the present season, at any event; but it turns out that the forebodings were unfounded. Large schools of the fish have suddenly gladdened the eyes of the anxious French fishermen. The Bay of Belle Isle is alive with them. And the cause of their absence last season remains obscure.

A FEMALE dentist is having a hard time of it in Quebec. The press is denouncing her as pursuing an unwomanly vocation; and the clergy of St. John and Levis Churches have prohibited their people from having anything to do with her.

A BLUE-BOOK, containing the railway-returns of the United Kingdom for the year 1881, has just appeared. The total capital paid up and raised by loans and debentures is set down at £745,528,162, in addition to which there is a sum of £37,909,453 set down as "subscriptions on other companies." The total length of line open on the 31st of December last was 18,175 miles, of which 8,302 miles were of single line. The number of passengers conveyed was 623,047,787, exclusive of season and periodical ticket-holders, and consisted of 37,993,944 first-class, 64,474,717 second-class, and 520,579,126 third-class passengers. The holders of season or periodical tickets numbered 528,452. The number of miles traveled by passengers, mixed goods, and mineral trains was 248,467,374. From passenger traffic the receipts amounted to £27,461,645; from goods traffic, £36,446,592; and from miscellaneous sources, £2,649,205—a total revenue of £66,557,442. The total amount of the working expenditures was £34,602,616, leaving the net receipts at £31,954,826—the proportion of expenditure to receipts being 52 per cent. There were 13,727 locomotives and 444,368 carriages and trucks in use on the several railways of the Kingdom on the 31st of December last.

IT might be supposed that the titles borne by England's aristocracy would be derived from the lands held by them; but this is not always the case. The Duke of Devonshire, the Marquis of Hertford, the Earl of Derby, and the Earl of Leicester have, for instance, not an acre of land in the counties from which these titles emanate. The Duke of Devonshire owns 80,000 acres in Derbyshire, but none in Devon; the Earl of Derby has some 50,000 acres in Lancashire, but nothing in Derby; while Lord Leicester's estates are not of the shire in that name, but in Norfolk, where he has over 40,000 acres. Earls Carnarvon, Suffolk, Westmoreland, Cardigan, Pembroke, Radnor, and Denbigh derive their large incomes from counties other than those that give them their titles.

IN a recent sermon the Catholic Bishop of Newark (Dr. Wigger) said: "It is time to raise a warning voice when men, otherwise good and learned, publicly proclaim that man has no right to property. The church has very clearly-defined principles on this point. She has always taught that man has the right to ownership of property. True it is, she teaches that absolute ownership belongs only to God; but what we acquire by hard labor or by other legitimate means belongs to us, to the exclusion of our fellow-beings; and no man has a right to deprive us of it. If you hear even a priest teaching doctrines opposed to this principle, beware of him—for his utterances are not of God, but are the wild vaporings of a depraved imagination."

SHOULD there be a strike among the Irish Constabulary, and Mr. Trevelyan's statement in the House of Commons Friday leads to the belief that one is very seriously threatened, it would be a source of great embarrassment to England just now when she needs every available man for service against Arabi. Should 6,000 sub-Constables resign, their places would have to be supplied with an equal number of soldiers, for England would hardly care to reduce the Irish garrison, in view of the proposed conflict between Kavanagh's Landlord Committee and Parnell's Anti-Eviction Committee. But the question arises, Can England spare 6,000 additional troops for service in Ireland?

HENRY CLAY DEAN, the great Democratic orator of Iowa, made a speech before the Missouri Democratic State Convention, in which he said:

> When our party is to be nothing but a bulwark to the Dutch vote, then farewell to it. We have lived without the Dutch vote, and now they say that if we do not lend our power and strength to their aid, they will go. Let them go and be—

This sentiment is in harmony with the idea of the German vote expressed by Mr. O. O. Stealey, member of the Democratic State Central Committee for Indiana.—Indianapolis Journal.

OFFICIAL reports show how seriously the City of Quebec, Canada, has suffered from six fires during the past thirty-six years. In May and June, 1845, two fires swept away two-thirds of the suburbs of St. Roch and St. Jacques, destroying $4,000,000 of property; on the 14th of October, 1866, $1,500,000 worth was destroyed in the districts of St. Roch and St. Sauveur; on the 24th of May, 1870, a loss of $600,000 occurred in St. Roch; on the 30th of May, 1876, the district of St. Louis lost $1,000,000; and on the 8th of June, 1881, $3,000,000 were destroyed—making a total of over $10,000,000.

A PHILADELPHIA father objected to his daughter's young man, and ordered him "not to hang around any more, or he'd turn the dog loose." The girl's heart was broken, and, bent upon vengeance, she poured a quantity of arsenic into a glass of milk, and left it for her parent to drink. But the scheme was fortunately detected, and the intended victim threatens to have the young lady locked up in an insane asylum. In the sensation which all this is creating the young man has dropped into oblivion.

SAYS Burdette: "The tramp Roderick, who burgled the two houses on West Hill last week and was jailed Sunday night, broke out last evening, but was policed clear to the river, where, finding escape impossible, he wharfed himself and suicided. The body piled itself at the bridge, and will be coronered in the morning. Truly, in the midst of life we are deathed."

AS LONG as Louisiana makes only 10 per cent of the sugar annually consumed in the United States her protest against a reduction of the sugar tariff should not be conclusive. A reasonable reduction is in order. We are getting too little sugar for a cent.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

PERSONALS.

The Duke of Argyll lately, while opening the water-works at Kilcreggin, in Argyllshire, said that gentlemen had rented land from him and built splendid mansions thereon on the understanding that there were to be no whisky-shops. Although he could get any amount of land feued for whisky-shops, he would not give any, as he intended to keep faith with those who wished to be free from the annoyance of these shops.

This rather queer combination of news, taffy, condolence, and good wishes appears in the Griffin (Ga.) News: "We regret exceedingly to learn the serious illness of Miss Minnie Kendall, of Cresswell. She was taken sick on the 5th of July caused from drinking colored lemonade at County Line on the Fourth. She is one of the prettiest young ladies in the county, and we hope soon to be able to announce her speedy recovery."

An amateur of statistics has discovered that the smallest sovereign in the world is the Emperor of China, who measures only four feet three inches. The tallest men are in the Hohenzollern family. The Emperor William is five feet ten inches; the German Prince Imperial, five feet six inches; Prince Frederic Charles, five feet seven inches; Prince Charles, brother of the Emperor, five feet nine inches; and Prince Albert, nephew of the Emperor, six feet four inches.

Midhat Pasha, who dwells in banishment at Taiffa, occupies a residence which served at one time as the offices of the ex-Cherif of Mecca. He is not permitted to leave the house for an hour, though he is permitted to move about freely through it. He is allowed to read the Koran and other religious books printed in Turkish. He is not allowed to write letters. He has obtained permission to explain the Koran to a certain number of children. He who was the Grand Vizier of the Porte thus amuses himself by teaching.

Several years ago Daniel Weld, of Abbott, Me., who served in the War of the Rebellion, and afterwards received a pension on account of injuries, wrote to the authorities at Washington that he thought he had fully recovered his health, and therefore desired that his name might be removed from the pension-list. This was the first case of the kind ever known in the department, and it was at the time commented upon by the press of the whole country. A few weeks ago Mr. Weld died, leaving his family in destitute circumstances, and the department is to be asked to bestow the pension on Mrs. Weld.

A statue in clay of Oliver Cromwell has been placed in the private corridor behind the House of Lords, with what object no one seems to know. It is all the more surprising that there is no statue of the Protector in London, as his features might be exactly reproduced. At Mr. Wilkinson's, near Sevenoaks, is Oliver's head. It is supposed to have been blown from the top of Westminster Hall, where it had been placed, picked up, and sold to an ancestor of Mr. Wilkinson. The head has been embalmed, and the hair and the features are in excellent preservation. There is the hole in the skull made by the pike on which it was impaled, also a hole where a large wart has been cut off.

SMALL-POX.

History of the Contagion in This City During the Past Three Years.

The Public Health Preserved by a Vigorous Compulsory Vaccination.

Total Number of Reported Cases in Eighteen Months, 1,958; Deaths, 1,358.

The scourge of small-pox, of which the people have been reminded from day to day through the press for the past two years, and to which hundreds have fallen victims, made its reappearance in this city in June, 1879. This was the first case that had been reported for about fifteen months, and naturally created some alarm at the time. It occurred in an immigrants' hotel on Kinzie street, and the unfortunate was the porter of the house, and caught the infection by handling baggage. The patient was at once removed to No. 76 North Wells street, where he died in a few days; but he left the dread disease behind him, and it has spread, and from a small beginning, being fed by the constant influx of immigrants, its poison has been so prevalent at times in certain localities as to have become almost terrorizing to the general populace, save the few, perhaps, who had before passed through it, or who were ignorantly "predestinarians" in the matter of disease. The particular case, too, found Chicago an open and inviting field for the development of the disease, for the absence of the pest for some time had seemed to have caused the authorities to overlook the necessity of vaccination, notwithstanding the constant immigration going on, and the almost unprecedented growth of the city. Then, again, there was in favor of the pestilential spread the fact that it found the Health Department without an appropriation to meet such an emergency, absolutely penniless—and a wail was going up from every section for more sewers and cleaner streets, which might be continued without any great detriment.

The situation, therefore, it will be seen, was anything else than inspiring on the start; but, acting upon the theory that an "ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," money was provided for vaccination in 1880 and the Medical and Sanitary Inspectors were put to work, and, though they have worked under the most adverse circumstances, having to call the police to their assistance at times, and then again the ministry among certain nationalities to overcome against vaccination, they have done a great public service. Dr. De Wolf happily saw the solution of the trouble in its earliest stages, and at the same time he saw its origin, and with the inauguration of compulsory vaccination caused his assistants, Drs. Garrott, Hall, and Sawyer, to examine every immigrant arriving here, and see that they were "protected" from the disease. This was found to work so well that a few months ago the National Board of Health came to his relief temporarily, and the relief of the entire North and West, and took the immigrant inspection off his hands, and the result is seen in the fact that while the disease has become almost epidemic in Baltimore and some other localities, it is today comparatively extinct in Chicago. Certainly, there is no cause to believe that it will soon again assume alarming proportions, especially if the work of vaccination is kept up. At least, the city has no danger in itself, and if any fears are to be entertained it must be from immigrants and the threatened withdrawal of their inspection by the National Board on account of Congress having refused to make an appropriation to carry on the good work.

A reporter yesterday looked up some statistics in reference to the dread disease in this city covering a period of eighteen months—being from Jan. 1, 1881, to July 31, 1882, which cannot fail to be interesting. The "cases" given are simply those sent to the pest-house, but the deaths cover every one who is known to have died of the disease:

Months.	Cases.	Deaths.	Cases.	Deaths.
January	53	18	288	134
February	52	33	214	103

September	65	108	...	...
October	99	172	...	...
November	114	98	...	...
December	195	118	...	...
Total	1,006	854	952	504
Grand total	1,958	1,358	...	...

IN SOME MONTHS

it will be noticed that the deaths are far in excess of the number of cases, which is explained by the fact that when the disease was at its worst the pest-house was overcrowded and many of the unfortunates were allowed to remain at their homes—some to die on the hands of their family physician, and others to recover, of which there is no record. The totals given, therefore, are only accurate as to the mortality part of the showing. The following table, however, separating the deaths at the pest-house from those which occurred in the city may throw some further light on the subject.

	At pest-house.	In city.	At pest-house.	In city.
January	10	8	32	102
February	22	11	23	80
March	11	18	16	68
April	15	16	25	40

December	35	83	..	..
Total	256	598	123	381
			256	598
Grand total for eighteen months			379	979

By deducting the pest-house deaths from the city deaths, and adding the remainder to the total cases reported, it will be seen that instead of 1,958 cases in the city in the eighteen months there were certainly 2,558. This is readily demonstrated by the figures, but estimating upon the percentage of deaths among the patients at the pest-house, which is reasonable, the list of cases which actually existed is found to approximate 4,500 in the time given. Of these about 75 per cent have been on the West Side, located in the territory south of Harrison street and Blue Island avenue, and in the Fourteenth Ward north of Milwaukee avenue. The other 25 per cent was divided between the North and South Sides, the former coming in for the lion's share.

THE EXPENSE THE DISEASE

has entailed upon the city can scarcely be computed, but it is safe to say that it is much larger than most any one would imagine. For vaccine virus alone the cost has been in excess of $66,000, as the annexed table will show:

Months.	1881.	1882.
January	$ 357.00	$ 3,228.50
February	997.00	5,263.50
March	1,468.45	6,063.55
April	1,736.55	6,399.55
May	1,912.55	6,718.05
June	2,063.55	6,936.75
July	2,203.55	....
August	2,658.55	....
September	3,012.05	....
October	3,543.90	....
November	4,486.90	....
December	7,910.05	....
Total	$32,350.10	$34,609.90
		32,350.10
Grand total		$66,960.00

A vaccine point at retail costs about 10 cents, and estimating upon this basis it appears that enough money has been spent in this direction to vaccinate 669,600 persons, or a greater population than the city contains. This is partially explained, however, by the fact that thousands of "points" have been used upon immigrants, and by the further fact that it has often been found necessary to vaccinate the same person a second and even a third time.

Another considerable item of expense has been the burial of pauper cases, of which there have been not less than 250, costing about $8 each, or, in the aggregate, $2,000. Then, again, is the item of salaries for extra help in handling cases; the cost of maintaining the pest-house and also enlarging it; the cost of fumigating houses; and the pay of the Medical Inspectors, who have never been paid enough. The exact figures are scarcely obtainable, but it is believed that the thrashing out of small-pox has, as far as it has gone, cost not less than from $200,000 to $250,000.

IMMIGRANT INSPECTION SERVICE.

Dr. Rauch, the Secretary of the State Board of Health, yesterday forwarded the report of the operations of the "Immigrant Inspection Service" in this inspection district for July to Washington. It is as follows:

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 5, 1882.—Dr. Thomas J. Turner, U. S. N., Secretary N. B. H., Washington—SIR: I have the honor to submit the following report for the month of July of the operations of the Immigrant Inspection Service N. B. H. in the district under my supervision:

During the month an aggregate of 20,000 immigrants was inspected by the assistant inspectors, who found about 16 per cent of these unprotected—liable to contract small-pox and to propagate the disease. The necessary precautions were taken with all these cases, as well as with one case of varioloid found in transit, and several convalescents—one being an immigrant removed from a train and treated in the small-pox hospital at Rochester during the month of June.

Although there is a marked improvement in the character of the protective work done on shipboard, as compared with that noted on beginning inspections, this is by no means uniform, as will be seen by the following extracts from the Assistant-Inspectors notes of careless, imperfect, or neglected vaccinations and revaccinations.

Republic—"Practically worthless; no adult vaccinations."

*Strasburg—"Very poor: only eleven successful out of 340 vaccinations—result evidently due to want of care on part of steamship surgeon."

Gen. Herder—"None showed successful vaccination."

*Hermann—"Only thirteen properly protected out of 410; the vaccinations performed on shipboard very unsatisfactory. All passengers provided with protection cards."

Rhynland—"None showed successful vaccination on shipboard."

Mosel—"No successful vaccination by the ship's surgeon."

Jason and Sardinia—"No ship vaccination met with among passengers from either vessel."

St. Germain, Ethiopia, and Wieland—"None vaccinated on shipboard; many totally unvaccinated children provided with ship's protection cards."

Main and Surrey—"Nearly all unsuccessful."

Britannic and Italy—"Vaccinations on shipboard generally poor."

Devonia and Warwick—"Over one-half of the passengers by these two steamers were found to require vaccination, although all were furnished with ship's surgeons' cards, which, they had been told, would prevent any other physician from interfering with them."

City of Brussels—"Extremely little attention appears to have been given to the examination of its immigrant passengers while on board. One of these passengers, a Finn, 28 years old, was found on a train nearing Chicago July 24; was in the eruptive stage—eruption probably eighty hours old. He presented a vaccination protection card signed, 'William Gibbons, Surgeon steamship City of Brussels,' and dated July 20, 1882."

Illinois—"A few only vaccinated."

Nebraska—"Poorly vaccinated."

Indiana—"Two-thirds required revaccination. No cards had been furnished any immigrants."

Concerning these cards, it is noted that in many instances they bear no name of steamship or line. One such, presented by a lad 13 years old, and without the slightest evidence of vaccinal protection, bore the name of "John W. Watson, Surgeon."

On July 28, among passengers by the steamer Erin, were found ten convalescents who had had small-pox within a month before leaving Ireland.

Notwithstanding that the aggregate number of inspections was less in July than in the preceding month, the relative number is much larger. Immigration has probably fallen off one-half since May last, and it is believed that of the total number now arriving very few find their way into Illinois or cross the State without being subjected to one or more rigorous inspections. The report of small-pox outbreaks in the region west of the Mississippi River has been notably less during July, while in this State there has not been a single case reported during the month outside of Chicago. The following table shows the steady decline of the disease in that city:

Month.	Cases reported.	Deaths.
April	321	92
May	281	65
June	124	29
July	44	16

At the close of the month there were only ten cases under treatment in the city, and one in the State at large.

In other districts of the service it is observed that increased familiarity with the work has secured increased efficiency, and thus materially lightened a labor which was found to be very onerous during the first month. For example, the vaccinations found to be necessary among passengers arriving over the Grand Trunk Road in June were very nearly 36 per cent of the total inspections. During July, owing to the increased number of vaccinations at Port Huron, Mich., this percentage has been reduced to 8.30 per cent.

Many cases of cholera-infantum, measles, and whooping-cough are met with by the inspectors, who, so far as time and opportunity serve, render such medical assistance as is necessary.

The railway service has continued to afford every desired facility to the inspectors, and, aside from the advent of an occasional unannounced train over a connecting line, every emergency has been promptly met. The coaches for immigrant passengers are kept in good sanitary condition, and the general welfare of these people seems to be consulted on business principles.

Appended is a copy of a circular letter of instructions issued to the Inspectors of this district July 15, and which explains itself. I am, sir, very respectfully,

JOHN H. RAUCH, M. D.,
Supervising Inspector.

*These vessels—the Strasburg and Hermann—are regular Baltimore packets, and the latter, at least, is known to have been the means of introducing small-pox into five several localities in Illinois during the past spring. It might be profitable to inquire to what extent such vessels and the neglect of their surgeons are responsible for the present prevalence of small-pox in Baltimore.

SHOPLIFTING.

What the Storekeepers Say of It as a Fine Art.

The recent arrest of a sextet of shoplifters in this city, and the publication of a list of the retail stores which had been victimized by them, induced a representative of THE TRIBUNE to visit the establishments of several retailers yesterday for the purpose of asking about this particular class of thieves and learning something of their methods. He learned that of late the shoplifters had not done so much work, as they were pretty well known and were watched closely when they entered a store. Women are generally the ones who are adepts in this particular line of stealing, and occasionally little girls are spotted. If they do not carry a basket or satchel with them in which to conceal the goods they lift, they secrete them under voluminous shawls and make away with them.

Mr. Grable, who is manager of Sea's establishment in the absence of Mr. Sea in Europe, was the first man interviewed. "Shoplifting with us," he said, "is a frequent occurrence, but our clerks are so instructed that they always keep a close watch of suspicious-looking characters."

"How did the gang that was recently arrested get in on you?" asked the reporter.

"They did their work on the second floor, where our clerks are somewhat scattered. Down stairs we have so many clerks that it is almost impossible to make a haul."

"Do your clerks often commit mistakes in making accusations?"

"Very seldom. They are generally pretty certain of a person when they charge him or her with wrongdoing."

"Do you ever employ detectives?"

"Occasionally, during a great rush we have detectives here; but we are acquainted with the most notorious shoplifters, and when they come in we have a man follow them around and watch them. That shames them off, and they go away without troubling us. At present there is comparatively little shoplifting, and we do not have occasion to make many arrests."

Mr. Hackman, of the Boston Store, stated to the reporter that they had been troubled very little of late by shoplifters. The clerks were careful, and had their instructions to watch suspicious-looking people. Many of the professional shoplifters were known and were watched when they entered the place. Mistakes were seldom made by the clerks, and if they were not sure they would always ask a person if they hadn't picked up the wrong bundle before accusing them of anything wrong.

The managers of several other retail stores were questioned with a like result. They said their clerks were always careful and watchful, and would detect any shoplifting and cause the arrest of the wrong-doers. Several retail jewelers were also interviewed, and said that lately they had not been troubled by thieves of this class. It appears plain that the strict system of watch put upon them here has driven them to more congenial climes.

The Agricultural Prospect.

London Observer.

There is no blinking the fact that English agriculture is threatened with another calamitous autumn. Although July is popularly supposed to be fine, meteorologists assure us that its reputation is quite ill-deserved, and that it usually produces more rainy days than any other month of the year, except February. When, however, this normal average is not exceeded, its genial heat makes up to the earth for the excess of moisture, and the sunshine puts out the memory of the rain. It is, however, the turning-point of the season, and this year the rain of the last few days seem to have decisively marked the July of 1882 as turning against, instead of in favor of, the agriculturist. A thoroughly warm and dry July would have befriended the much-tried farmer in nearly every department. The remains of the heavy hay crop would have been got in; the corn which is fully eared would have had time to harden; the fly could have been cleared off the hop vine. As it is, much grass lies still uncarried in the wet fields, the rust is beginning to show itself on the wheat, the black aphis multiplies in the moist, sultry air, and the outlook is altogether dreary. Saturday, too, was the feast of St. Swithin, a day which is supposed to govern, by the character of its weather, the fortunes of the agriculturist for the next forty days; and although there was no actual deluge it was certainly not fine enough to revive the hopes of a fine harvest, fostered by the June sunshine, so cruelly dashed by the July rains.

POLITICAL ASSESSMENTS

A Rough Guess at the Amount Collected in This City.

The Victims Submit with the Resignation of the Condemned.

The observing frequenter of the Government Building is impressed more than perhaps with anything else with the air of resignation with which nearly every employé in the building wears in the conduct of his business. A casual caller would say that some of the men were unnecessarily mysterious and uncivil. No greater injustice could be done a patient, hopeless crew. As a rule they are men who, while not having descended to the depths of joining the police force or the regular army, have little to hope for in the future in a business way, and are careless alike of the whims of political friends and the machinations of political foes. They are enlisted for a thankless and uncertain campaign, and they are resigned to their fates—the only sort of resignation which they have ever contemplated. There are a host of good fellows in the service—men who, if properly directed early in life, would doubtless have added lustre to a fame won by their projenitors; but in an evil hour they were thrown into the political maelstrom that put them beyond Hope's domain, and made it possible for them to withstand the terrors of a political assessment without the slightest pang of remorse or regret. Some of the men who may be seen any day at the building would be chosen if outside from among men as full of promise of being prosperous and leading worthy lives. Strange as the statement may be regarded, some of them are young, the suspicion of youthful vigor being yet visible upon them, but with the utter hopelessness of their future lives indelibly imprinted on their countenances. Many there are over whom time has generously sprinkled the snows of many winters, who long since have passed beyond the pale of hope, and who contribute the specified sums at each recurring campaign-time with as good a grace as they each Sabbath drop their mite into the contribution-box for the heathen.

While a sensitive mind might look upon the condition of these campaign supporters as sad, the philosopher will gain from it food for reflection and comment. He will see a fitness in the disposition that would throw

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS INTO SPASMS.

With a view of making a personal inspection of this peculiar people, and ascertaining, if possible, to what depths they had descended in the latest reform dive which they have taken under direction of Mr. Hubbell, of the Congressional Committee, a TRIBUNE representative made a tour of the building yesterday. Whether a fellow-feeling makes them compassionate is an open question, but it is certainly true that, as a rule, a reporter can depend upon pretty fair treatment at the hands of these unfortunate people, whether they give him any news or not. And the chances are decidedly in favor of his coming away empty-handed as to news. Yesterday, however, business in most of the departments was a trifle light, and a cordial reception was granted the missionary in nearly every department.

The first stop was made at the office of the Collector of Customs, which always has stood A 1 as a news centre. In the absence of the Collector the reporter encountered Mr. John Hitt, the special Deputy. Mr. Hitt is an expert talker until it comes to directing him at a special mark. He can interest you longer on a subject for which you haven't the slightest concern than any man in the service; and although he is not regarded as particularly secretive, in all of his apparently gossipy conversations he has never been known to give anything away. From another but reliable source, however, it was learned that the amount already paid in on the demand made by the committee was comparatively insignificant. There are about 140 employés in the Custom-House, they being about equally divided as to numbers between the customs department proper and the custodian's department, the janitors and scrub-women being included in the latter department. "Not one of these," said the informant, "has been overlooked by the committee in sending out the assessment-circular. The scrub-women got their orders about ponying up, and I guess they'll have to do it the same as the rest of us."

"How soon will the money be required?" asked the reporter.

"Not very soon, I guess. You see very little, if any, of it is intended for use outside the State, and there will be no need for it before the fall Congressional elections."

"How do the boys in this department feel about the assessment?"

"Just as usual. They don't care. They know how their bread is buttered, and they just as a man does who knows there is no chance but to die. But they don't pay until the last minute. They have to do a little close figuring in the matter of personal expenses for a short time, but it's soon all over, and they are ready for another one. Once in a while a fellow is excused from paying an assessment in case of sickness in his family, but only a few of us are let off."

GIVE UP WITHOUT A MURMUR,

"Who collects the money?"

"Nobody; that is, I guess nobody does. I never heard of anybody handling any of the fund, and I suppose it handles itself."

"What do the boys think of the efforts of the Civil-Service Reform Association toward abolishing these assessments?"

"I couldn't say, but I think they are generally laughed at. They know that campaigns have got to be run, and as they get their living from the Government, and get it pretty easy, too, they don't have much to say against the assessment except just at the time it has to be paid, and then they are too well drilled to be demonstrative."

The informant said he thought the contributions to the Congressional campaign fund would be fully as large this season from the customs department as in previous years.

According to a presumably reliable authority in the Internal-Revenue office, very few of the seventy-five men in that department had paid their assessments, but he had no doubt they would all do so. In fact, he didn't see what else they could do if they wished to retain their places. Nearly all the men were well paid, and they had never objected to paying the assessments as they were made. It was very hard to get a man to acknowledge that he had paid the assessment, but he would not deny that he purposed doing so, and that he regarded it as the eminently proper thing to do. Collector Harvey is not in the city at present, but he will return in time to see that his department is not behindhand in the matter of contributions.

Postmaster Palmer was out, but a gentleman in the office whose name need not be mentioned said that he presumed that the assessment levied would be paid by all the 600 employés when a demand was made upon them. As yet none or very few at least, had settled, as the circular gave them a couple of months yet to make up their minds about the matter. The employés had always regarded the assessment as one of the things which and they were used to it now. He thought that all of the money paid in on the present demand would be used to conduct the State Congressional campaign.

The ladies in the Pension-Office very modestly declined to speak about the matter, but one of them volunteered the information that, while they couldn't vote, they would assist in the campaign to the extent of 2 per cent of their salaries.

Even those who are obliged to defray the expenses of the campaigns were found to speak about the assessments as though they were ashamed of them as well as themselves, and it was very difficult to secure an audience with those seen long enough to gain the information given. None of them care to acknowledge that they submit to the assessment, and a liberal reward is offered for the apprehension of the man who collects this money and distributes it. The detectives can easier find Charley Ross.

A rough guess made by the reporter, on a supposed average of salaries paid in each of the Federal departments in this city, gives the following as an approximate amount which the employés are obliged, under pain of dismissal, to contribute to the self-appointed, responsible to nobody and non-reporting combination, styled the Congressional Campaign Committee, with headquarters in Washington and engineered by a Michigan Congressman with Senatorial aspirations:

	Employes.	Assessment.
Internal Revenue	75	$ 2,250
Custom-House	70	2,100
Custodian's Department	70	1,260
Post-Office	600	14,400
Pension-Office	15	288
Sub-Treasury	8	480
Total	838	$20,790

Destruction of the Albemarle—A Daring Exploit Recalled in an Application for a Pension.

A report from the Senate Committee on Pensions, in the case of Daniel G. George, contains an interesting story of the blowing up of the Rebel ram Albemarle, told by one of the participants in that remarkable exploit. It forms a part of one of the affidavits in the case. Mr. George, as coxswain of Lieut. Walker's boat, heard Cushing asking Walker for volunteers for the blowing up of the ram Albemarle in Plymouth Harbor, Pimlico Sound, and Mr. George volunteered and was the first volunteer. On the night of Oct. 24, 1864, the expedition went into Plymouth Harbor, passed a hundred Rebel picket-boats who were on the lookout, as they had been in on the night before; could not find the ram in the darkness, and passed down and out the harbor, through the Rebel picket-boats, to the fleet, the Rebels thinking the boat was one of their own. They saw them go alongside a Federal vessel, and so were on the lookout the next night. They put a battery of artillery and a thousand men to defend the ram, and posted lookouts to give the alarm should any boat cross a belt of light on the water, made by the harbor-lights. As the volunteer party crossed this belt they were hailed with "Who goes there?" Cushing answered, "Yankees, d—n you!" Then came a shower of bullets, which riddled the gunwale of the steam launch. The daring volunteers now discovered the ram by the flash of her big guns, and made for her, passing around her twice before they succeeded in jumping their boat over the boom that surrounded her. Mr. George and a chum named Haden dropped the torpedo of 186 pounds down under the ram; Cushing gave the order to reverse steam and back over the logs, which they were unable to do. Cushing, finding they could not get out, gave the order: "Pull her off, Dan; we'll all go to hell together."

"Dan" pulled the lanyard, and the torpedo opened a seam twenty feet long and an inch wide, and sunk the ram in two hours. The attacking party were blown into the air, and all but Cushing and one other, Haden, were taken prisoners. Mr. George and the crew were surrounded by the infuriated Rebels, who would have killed them on the spot had it not been for the Captain of the Albemarle, Cooke, who rushed to the spot, revolver in hand, and declared he would shoot the first man who injured the Yankees. Said he: "I have been thirty-five years in the United States navy, and this is the bravest deed I have ever known."

Mr. George was sent to Salisbury prison, was there eight or nine months till the War ceased, when he returned to the Chicopee, and was discharged on April 26, 1866, having served four years six months and sixteen days, and having been engaged in twenty-one battles, besides many skirmishes. Last fall Mr. George was thrown from his team and had his shoulder broken, which disabled him from work all winter. He has a wife and five small children dependent on him for support. Mr. George would probably never have applied for a pension but for this accident.

OTTAWA'S NEW COURT-HOUSE.

La Salle County, Ill., Will Soon Have Completed One of the Finest Court-Houses in the State Outside of Chicago.

Our readers who are at all familiar with the neighboring city of Ottawa, La Salle County, Ill., will scarcely have forgotten the old-fashioned court-house that did service there from 1838 up to 1881, when the present structure, now so nearly completed, was begun. The new building, 86x150 feet, is in the Norman style of architecture, built of stone, with Queen Anne windows, and will cost something over $150,000 when completed, and is calling forth no small amount of praise of one of our Chicago architects, Mr. Minard L. Beers. Like all modern public buildings, it is well provided against fire, they having just contracted with Mr. Jno. W. Norris, Vice-President of the Diebold Safe & Lock Company, this city, for some ten to fifteen vault doors, the same as are to be used in the Chicago Court-House, and, in fact, nearly every other public building having been built in the Northwest in the past two or more years. As these vaults are to be the receptacles of many valuable State papers, we feel sure, from the past record of these incomparable time-tried fireproof vault doors, that they have made a wise selection in the matter of "protection" against fire, that not only La Salle County, but the whole State, are indebted to the wisdom of a policy that says "safety" first, "price" afterwards.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Arend's Kumyss should be the reliance of the physician in all those cases of debility in which prompt improvement of the general tone is imperative. Kumyss is the blandest and most easily digested food, and as such the best nourishment for a weak stomach; at the same time, through the process of fermentation which Kumyss undergoes, medicinal qualities are developed which we vainly look for in materia medica. In nausea, vomiting, extreme cases of dyspepsia, Kumyss acts like a charm, promptly relieving all the distressing symptoms of such cases. When the stomach rejects all else, Kumyss is retained and assimilated, affording the patient nourishment, strength, and comfort, and, as a logical consequence, nervousness ceases and refreshing sleep follows. In scarlet, intermittent, gastric, and typhoid fever, Kumyss is the best diet. It satisfies thirst and hunger and allays the fever. Kumyss has considerably the advantage over drugs, in that it never can do harm. To dose an irritable stomach with drugs is an absurdity which no intelligent physician attempts in this day. But not only in extreme cases should Kumyss be resorted to; it should be the chief remedy for a weak stomach under all circumstances. The dyspeptic brain-worker with a few glasses of Kumyss a day will improve his digestion and his nerve force. Ladies would be less nervous, more vigorous, and healthier-looking if they would add to their daily diet a few glasses of Kumyss.

Send for treatise on Kumyss. Beware of imitations.

Arend's Kumyss is not sold to the trade, but to consumers only.

CONGRATULATED HIM.

"Mornin', mornin'!" said a Lynn man to one of his neighbors the other day. "Accept my heartiest congratulations."

"W-what for?" demanded the bewildered congratulated man.

"Why, you look so elated and happy that Mr. Benjamin here and I thought surely you must be the new-made father of twin boys."

"Good gracious! twins? Not any. Ha! ha! ha! That's rather goodish, but no twins—yet. You don't seem to have caught on to the true inwardness of my beaming happiness—the real reason why I'm the best feeling man in Lynn."

"Well, no; I confess I don't quite understand it."

WHITE MOUNTAINS.

Views from the Balcony of the Goodnow House, Franconia.

A Trip to the Flume, and What Was Seen en Route.

Echo Lake—The Old Man of the Mountains—Basin and Pool.

A Marvelous Light at the Flume—Chicagoans in the Mountains.

Special Correspondence of The Chicago Tribune.

GOODNOW HOUSE, FRANCONIA, N. H., Aug. 3.—The principal front of the Goodnow House is east, and a covered balcony extends along this front about 170 feet in length, twenty feet wide, and continues along its northern front for about sixty feet, and with a uniform width. Consequently there is a continuous balcony of 230 feet for promenading and other purposes. Just before and after sunset it is thronged with the 250 guests of the house.

Seated near the main entrance, which is far south from the centre of the hotel, with the naked eye one can observe of the White Mountain Range.

There is a wonderful diversity in the landscape. Immediately before you, stretching north and south for eight miles or more, and directly east for about the same distance, is a valley cross-cut with fences. The sward is variable in its greenness. The growing grain undulates and waves in the sunlight. The corn stands stiff and stalky. The valley is covered here and there by groupings of leaf-full shrubs; then (as well defined as if the hand of man had squared the fields) by dense groves of maples, spruces, and birches; then by evergreens, small and large. Immediately to the south, extending well nigh to Ore Hill—which looks down upon it—is the Goodnow Farm; then, to the east of it, towards the north, is the Howland Farm; then, in the fore-valley, almost directly east, is the Dodge Farm; then, farther to the north, the Echo Farm, and Franconia Village, with its white church-spire glistening against the blue sky, until the whole seems to be watched, sentinel-like, by observatory Hill, which lifts its rocky top above it. Further away, all around, the green of the meadow is flecked with the white-painted, green-blinded farm-houses, which have been in possession of their owners and their families for generations; and, far off toward Franconia Notch, Profile Farm lies stretched out lazily in the lap of the foot-hills, with Mts. Lafayette and Cannon looking drowsily down upon it.

This landscape is all within the immediate half-circle of vision forming the level and hilly ground which lies before the great foot-hills of the White Mountain Range.

As a background, boldly defined against the sky, towers upwards in lofty serenity, twenty-four miles away towards the north. Mts. Adams, Clay, and Jefferson, of the Presidential Range, in the same direction, form a lofty background for the setting-off of Cherry Mountain and the Slipper, which runs far front as observed from the balcony. Mts. Liberty and Lincoln are clothed with melancholy serenity. Directly east, Bald Mountain towers above, with Mts. Garfield and Lafayette as a warm and friendly background. There is seen the deep defile between Mts. Lafayette and Cannon, known as Franconia Notch; immediately before which Profile Farm peacefully keeps guard, and in which is located the famous Profile House. Then comes Mt. Cannon, followed closely towards the south by Mt. Kinsman; and then far away, banked up against the ethereal blue, are Mts. Pemigewasset, Moosehillock, and other mountain-peaks unnamed.

The two principal events of the day at the Goodnow House, and certainly ones which cause the most excitement, are the arrival of the mail at night, and the departure of guests in the morning—those going away permanently, or only for picnic purposes or for excursions, because the hour for departure is always about the same. It is the custom to bid all a cordial adieu by the waving of parasols, hats, handkerchiefs, or anything which is at hand. Amid such a scene as this the wagon which was to departed. We passed down over the winding road in full view of the house and the numerous adieu-signals for almost a mile. By Echo Farm-House, through Franconia Village, and anon soon leaving the Franconia home behind. On past the Mount Lafayette House, which stands about midway between Franconia Village and Profile Farm and at the junction of the Bethlehem Road. Each house is well patronized judging from the number of guests outside watching us as we passed and waving us godspeed. The very dirt-road over which we traveled is in itself a novelty to city people, because of its rustic beauty and on account of its sharp ascent into the notch in the mountains on the sides respectively of Mts. Lafayette and Cannon.

Constantly ascending, with a steady climb towards the Notch, towards Bald Mountain, and by the side of Mts. Lafayette, Cannon, and Lincoln, we reach the Profile Farm, owned and cultivated by the Profile Company.

The vegetables with which the tables of both the Profile and the Flume House are supplied are raised on this farm. It has the convenience of six or seven large glass hothouses, and is evidently managed to produce such articles of food as are most difficult to get and are most needed in the mountains. The farm stretches out for miles and seems to be the most advantageously located for its designed purposes of any farm for miles.

After leaving the Profile Farm the road towards the Flume grows more wild, and it is one continuous passage between the Pemigewasset and Franconia Ranges. The forests seem almost primeval all along the way.

Whoa! and a stop at

ECHO LAKE.

Here one has an opportunity to purchase bric-a-brac, drink birch-beer, and partake of other light refreshments, rest awhile, and then take a ride on the lake in a steam-launch or row-boat.

Echo Lake is one of the reservoirs of one of the branches of the Ammonoosuc River. It is wholly surrounded by Mts. Cannon and Bald and Eagle Cliff, all of which rise boldly above it hundreds of feet. It is a gem set in the heart of the mountains.

How delightfully this steam-launch moves! Onward with hardly a sound! It seems almost like a bird. Hark! a cannon-discharge—and then a responsive echo as if a whole park of artillery had been discharged. A whistle—then a locomotive and train of cars goes whirling by on the narrow-gage railroad to the Profile House, and the mountains seem to hiss and groan back the echoes of a thousand whistles, as if disgusted by the desecratingly disagreeable sound. Hist! hear the solemn tones of the trumpet as they swell out into the melody of the Gospel-hymn, "I will sing of my Redeemer," and listen to the echo as it breaks into the tones by half-notes and full tones, and sobs back the words with enough of pathos to still the heart and cause the eye to moisten.

Away from this lake of pleasant remembrances, on we go—still in the face of Mts. Lafayette and Lincoln, with Haystack Mountains in the far distance. The Profile House is soon reached. It has accommodations for 600 guests. It is situated near the north end of Franconia Notch. The glen or valley where it is located contains only a few acres of land, and is the highest of any spot where there is a hotel in the White Mountains, save on the top of Mt. Washington. It is said to be 1,974 feet above the level of the sea.

On intending to make an ascent of Mt. Lafayette generally takes the bridle-path near the Profile House.

After a few minutes' drive further on through the Notch, beside the purling stream known as the Pemigewasset River, the "Old Man's Wash-basin" (or what is now called Profile Lake) is reached. It ripples at the foot of Mt. Cannon, far below the "Old Man of the Mountains." Here and there one may see gayly-decked pleasure-boats filled with people who are the guests of the Profile House, many of whom come regularly each year, and own the boats which they use. Here, from this summer-house on the edge of this little lake, look up and behold the famous

"OLD MAN OF THE MOUNTAINS."

How perfect the profile is. It does not require a particle of imagination to see the whole face outlined against the sky. It is bold and kingly. It is a most remarkable phenomenon, and is naturally formed by ledges of rock on the upper cliffs of Mt. Cannon. The face has different expressions at different times, as if the "Old Man" had his varied moods and tempers.

Mt. Cannon and the Profile upon it ("Old Man of the Mountains") is formed of a typical variety of granit—feldspar, quartz, and mica—which is commonly called Conway granit. It is friable, and decomposes very readily. The "Old Man," constantly exposed to the rain and sunshine, is slowly crumbling to atoms, and will at some period cease to add to the amusement of visitors or evoke their wonder.

Mount Cannon derives its name from a formation of rock upon its summit having, it is claimed, the appearance of a cannon; but it requires a very vivid imagination to find the slightest resemblance between the two.

Journeying onwards from Profile Lake about two and a half miles, one arrives at the "Basin," which is very near the roadside. It is a large granit bowl, which geologists technically call "a pot-hole," worn out of the solid rock by the action of the Pemigewasset River as it has tumbled and roared along its course from above and below for centuries. The bottom and sides are as smooth as are the flagstones in the sidewalks of our cities, and undoubtedly have been worn thus smooth by the attrition of both stones and water, which have swirled and tossed within for unknown periods of time. The "Basin" is about thirty feet in diameter and fifteen feet deep. Its waters are green, and look like a large emerald in the sunlight, save where it is whipped into spray by the fall of water into it from above. The rock-formation is principally of the same Conway granit as that of which Mt. Cannon is formed.

After riding another mile and a half the Flume House is reached. It will accommodate about 150 guests, and is owned by the company which owns the Profile House.

THE "POOL"

is about one and a half miles from it. Take the walk through the woods alongside the mountain and down the steep descent to the "Pool," because it will repay you for the trouble. The "Pool" is deep in the lap of the mountains. It is formed by a fall of the Pemigewasset River about thirty feet, and seems to be like a deep reservoir hollowed out from the rocks. It is somewhere about eighty to 100 feet across, and is said to be in places forty feet deep. It is surrounded by bald and rocky cliffs, which shoot up toward the sky a hundred feet or more, and certainly is picturesquely weird and odd. The color of the water in it is of a bluish-green. It is forever restless and changeable—restless by reason of the falling torrents of water from far above, and changing because of the density of shadow which is thrown across it as the sunshine varies.

The "Pool" is presided over by an odd genius who is as great a curiosity as is the "Pool" itself. His name is John Merrill. He has been at the "Pool" during the summer for twenty-eight consecutive years. He says his home is at Milwaukee, Wis. He sells knicknacks, furnishes drinking water from the "Pool," and rows those who will trust themselves in his dilapidated boat around the basin, and as near the falls as it is wise to go, for 25 cents each—all the while regaling the willing listener with his quaint notions regarding cosmogony—averring that the earth is like a balloon: first a layer of air, then land, then ocean outside, with the same in their respective order inside until the centre is reached, where all is air. And then he offers for sale a book by himself, entitled "Cosmogony; or Thoughts on Philosophy," by John Merrill. Price 25 cents. The book purports to be published for the author by "The Independent Book & Job Print, Madison, Wis." Should you fail either to ride in his boat, which looks as if it was made out of the remnants of the material of which the Ark was built, or to buy a book or some knickknack, he will show you the supreme contempt in which he holds you by coolly pushing off his boat, drawing in his oars, curling himself up upon the seat, and going to sleep.

The visit to the "Pool" over, clamber into the wagon again to GO TO THE FLUME.

Pay your toll of five cents for each person and two cents for each horse in the team, with the odd cent always a gratuity to the Profile Company, who also own the flume; and your wagon passes on over the bridge crossing the Pemigewasset, and still on until Flume Brook is reached. Then get out, prepare for a wet walk by putting on rubbers, and make the start. You walk over clean broad streets of granit in the bed of the river, as wide as a house-floor, for hundreds of feet, as steep almost as a gable-roof, with a fleecy, transparent sheet of water running rapidly down and splashing wantonly over your feet. Soon the bed of the river becomes less uniform, and from shallows the water is moving onward through deep pools, the way becomes more rugged, and you are compelled to take the dirt and plank walk built for the purpose—the planks often being laid on long trunks of spruce-trees which span the distance from one ledge of rocks to another. The air grows denser, and the light seems to be obscured by unknown substances. Half way up you reach a house-like shed, with a platform and rough board seats for twenty or more persons. The seats generally are gratefully accepted, and, as you wipe the perspiration from your brow, you feel thankful for the shade thrown over you by the trees high up on the cliffs upon either side; and, observant, cast your eyes about you, and behold everywhere names cut upon the boards, planks, and trees, and even hewn into the very stones themselves. It is the brief record of persons who have been as curious as you are, and who have occupied the same spot you now fill.

Your rest over, ascend again. Observe how the bed of the stream is now clogged with large blocks of disjointed granit, tumbled all together in almost promiscuous heaps, instead of being floor-like and smooth as at first. Behold how the slimy red granit rocks seem to be ready to split and slide from the ledges of the cliffs above. See how the perpendicular walls of granit, which at first look so smooth, are seamed and cracked. Upon examination you will find that it is the same friable Conway granit which you have seen before, and that it is slowly disintegrating and wearing away with the drip and ooze of moisture, accelerated by the atmosphere and other influences. The splash of the water sounds more resonantly. It grows colder, although you know that above you there is the warm summer-sky. The cut of the stone is smoother, and now rises perpendicular, high above you on both sides, and not more than ten feet apart. You soon reach a small temporary board landing, look up, and see before you, suspended almost in air between the perpendicular curvature of solid rock, rising upon either side to an altitude of ninety feet,

AN IMMENSE BOWLDER.

It almost takes your breath away, if you are susceptible to fear, to see it poised above you, and so held that it seems as if the slightest jar would send it tumbling down upon you. It seems as if the sides of this granit temple had hardly "grip" enough to hold the immense weight from falling into the rushing Pemigurasset below, and yet it will not be shaken loose for centuries.

Upon reaching this romantic spot the object of the visit to the flume has been realized. Thousands make the journey for the same purpose yearly, and the popularity of the trip seems to be on the increase.

Below and to the south you gaze into the ravine up which you came; see the eddying current as it splashes onward towards its destination; observe the grandeur of the scenery, enhanced by verdure and greenness of trees on every side, below and far above you, up to the very summit of the mountains; then look directly beneath you, and see in the bed of the stream those huge blocks of stone in promiscuous heaps; and to your right and left behold sugar-loaf cuts of granit, guiding your eye up to the bowlder so slenderly held, and the bright blue sky glimmering above the tree-tops on the top of the ledge above you; and how can you help but feel your soul filled with the thought of the marvelous?

The weather here is now delightful; temperature about 76 degrees on an average, but modified by the cooling breezes from the mountains.

CHICAGOANS.

The Goodnow House is very full indeed, and there are now here the following people from Chicago: Mrs. Henry A. Towner, Miss Lillie Towner, Miss Martha Towner, Master Harry A. Towner, Master John De Koven Towner, Mr. and Mrs. J. Grafton Parker and family, Mrs. Hiram Jacobs, Mrs. Edward Wright, Mrs. Neef, Mrs. J. H. Walker, three children, and maid, Mrs. H. W. Clarke, Mrs. Underhill, Mrs. James F. Gillette, Miss Martha Gillette, Master Howard Gillette, Henry E. Fisk, Mrs. H. C. Weeks, two children, and maid, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hall, Master Percy Hall, Mrs. William E. Ewing, Mrs. Edith C. Ewing, Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Gassette and family, and Miss Belle S. Gassette."

Mr. Isaac G. Lombard, wife, daughter, and son, left for the Atlantic House, Nantasket Beach, last Thursday morning.

The following Chicagoans are stopping at the places designated in the White Mountains, besides numerous others whose names it has been impossible to get:

Bethlehem, N. H.—H. D. Williams, Avenue House; Mrs. L. B. Fry, Mrs. W. S. Potwin, Miss C. Potwin, Blondin House; Mr. H. H. Porter, wife, child, and nurse, Miss Kittie Porter, H. H. Porter Jr., Miss H. K. French, Miss M. A. Layng, Mrs. M. C. Woodworth, Mrs. J. M. Hannah, the Maplewood; Miss S. M. Odell and mother, Mr. J. Goodwin and wife, Miss Helen Goodwin, Miss Nettie Goodwin, Sinclair House; the Rev. F. W. Fisk, H. E. Fisk, Miss A. M. Fisk, Turner House.

North Conway, N. H.—The Rev. E. A. Larrabee, Eleanor Larrabee, Eleanor Wood, Russell Cottage.

Jackson, N. H.—Mrs. C. Wilson, Miss Louise Wilson, Eagle Mountain House.

LAKE BLUFF.

Prohibition Among the Germans—It's All in the Name, but Not in the Fact.

The German Temperance Convocation was announced to meet at Lake Bluff yesterday and continue three days. Excepting a few leaders in the movement there were no Germans at the bluff, owing, some of the managers think, to insufficient advertising. In the afternoon the leaders met in Mrs. Harris' cottage, Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Skelton, Prof. Schmitz, Prof. Lampert, and Mr. Hofer, editor of the McGregor News, being present. They talked the situation over, and concluded to postpone the convocation to the 25th of August, the day after the adjournment of the Prohibition Convention in this city. They reasoned that it would be difficult to get the German people out to Lake Bluff in numbers sufficient to make the meeting there a success, and concluded that Farwell Hall would be a better place in which to hold it.

The managers decided to have some exercises at Lake Bluff, and this morning Prof. Lampert, of Evanston, will preach, and perhaps, Prof. Schmitz this afternoon. Mrs. Skelton may also talk on the signs of progress, and there will likely be other speakers.

Before this meeting a reporter dropped into Mrs. Harris' cottage, and after being introduced around joined in the chat. Mrs. Skelton, who has been laboring in Iowa recently, was very enthusiastic over the prohibition cause. She declared: "We are going to form a temperance organization among the Germans and disseminate temperance literature among them. We propose to have our convocation last a week next year, and I think we will soon have to open one in Iowa and another in St. Louis. You see this one has not been advertised in the German papers. We don't expect to draw our crowd from Chicago, but from all points in the Northwest."

"What is the outlook for prohibition?"

"I think we shall carry Indiana by as large a vote as we did Iowa," said Mr. Skelton, confidently, "and we are going

TO HAVE MICHIGAN SHORTLY.

Mr. Hofer has just told us the official count in Iowa showed that the Germans cast 5,000 votes for the amendment. I saw the editor of the leading German daily in Chicago, and asked him to come out to Lake Bluff. He wanted to know if we had anything to drink out here. I told him yes, plenty of pure lake water. It is only a question of time when the press will be on our side."

Mr. Hofer remarked that outside of Bavaria few native Germans could afford to drink beer, and they acquired the desire for it after coming to America, where they made money quickly. "The time is coming," he said, "when they will cheerfully let it go. And their way of making a holiday out of Sunday is American, not German, for the Sunday laws are observed in Faderland. It grows out of the idea among the Germans coming over that everything is free in America."

Mrs. Harris was quite as enthusiastic over the prospect for the cause among our German citizens.

The Lake Bluff Convocation meets Tuesday, to last two weeks. It is expected that a larger crowd will be present than has been to that resort this summer. It is understood that an effort is being made to secure the services of Mr. Neal Dow and Gov. St. John, of Kansas.

Mr. J. V. Finch, of Nebraska, arrived at Lake Bluff last evening.

SUBURBAN.

South Chicago.

A daring and successful burglary occurred yesterday morning at South Chicago. Two young men, by name Leonard and Byron Parker, who live near the woolen mills on South Chicago avenue, were awakened at about 3 o'clock by some noise in the next room. Upon investigation it was found to proceed from an unknown person, who, from his cautious movements, appeared to be on no legitimate business. Although efforts were made by the young men for the thief's capture, he made his escape, followed by two pistol shots, carrying with him two valuable gold watches, a silver watch, and $300 in cash. The police at the South Chicago Station were immediately notified, and Officer Frank Colahan, taking a horse and buggy, started down South Chicago avenue toward Grand Crossing, which direction the thief was thought to have taken. On arriving at the place of Magistrate Rees the officer hitched his horse and started back on foot over the Michigan Southern Railway, and before he had proceeded far discovered the object of his search approaching. The thief upon perceiving the officer leaped into the ditch at the side of the track and crossed to the opposit side. Here several shots were exchanged and then the thief, who from his actions appeared to be wounded, started across the prairie to Hog Island, where he successfully concealed himself in the thick underbrush till the officer had relinquished his search.

The man was about 25 years of age, of slight build, and was dressed in a gray suit.

Oakland.

An accident of a horrible character happened night before last in Oakland. Mr. Theodore Worland, who keeps a blacksmith shop near the corner of Cottage Grove avenue and Thirty-ninth street, was endeavoring to teach his little 7-year-old son, Theodore, how to ride, and his horse being a mustang and somewhat spirited, the foolish thought of tying his little son to the animal entered the father's mind. A surcingle was procured, and the two feet of the boy were firmly fastened by the strap passing under the horse's belly. For some time the arrangement worked well, and the little fellow was taking genuine amusement, when the girth fastening the saddle to the horse suddenly broke, and the rider slipped over with the saddle, but being held by the strap he hung helpless behind the fore legs of the animal. The horse immediately took fright, and dashed madly down the street, striking the head of the boy at every leap, and although the frightened animal was quickly stopped and captured, the horrible injuries made by the iron shoes proved fatal, and the boy died in fifteen minutes. The unhappy parents are almost crazed with grief at the thought of the horrible death. An inquest was held yesterday and a verdict found in accordance with facts.

Hyde Park.

Four coffins inclosed in wooden boxes stood on the platform of the Illinois Central depot yesterday afternoon. They contained the bodies of the four unfortunate victims of the accident which occurred the day before on the canal in the South Parks. Three of the coffins were carried to the city and buried according to the wishes of the relatives of the deceased, while the fourth was taken to Oakwoods Cemetery and interred.

Lake View.

The Board of Education for District No. 1, Lake View, has made a levy of $32,000 for school purposes for this year.

JUMPED THE WEDDING.

Before Doing So He Robbed the Expectant Father-in-Law.

Detective Louis Haas returned from Port Huron last night with Isaac Rose, a young and rather good-looking Hebrew, whom he locked up at the jail. There is a tale connected with this simple statement the a TRIBUNE reporter succeeded in unearthing last night. Mr. Greenbaum is an eminently respectable pawnbroker, possessed of many shekels and a pretty daughter. A few weeks ago there came from New York the young Hebrew Rose, a tailor and cutter by trade, who had letters of recommendation enough to start a post-office. He became acquainted with some other Hebrews, who in turn introduced him to Mr. Greenbaum and the pretty daughter. The aged father of the girl was well pleased with the youth, and it was but a very short time before the paternal permission to wed the fair girl was secured by Rose. The formal engagement followed, and the wedding was set for this evening. More than a hundred invitations were issued by the happy father, and a fine repast was ordered that the guests might eat, drink, and be merry. Since the betrothal young Rose had been stopping on Clark street, near Van Buren, opposit the shop of his prospective father-in-law, and sat at the table with him and the rest of the family. Tuesday morning Isaac failed to appear at breakfast, and word was sent to him at his lodging place. Strangely enough he was not there, and the aged father was stunned to receive word that the young man had had his trunk taken away that morning early by a colored expressman. A dreadful suspicion suddenly took possession of the old man's mind, and hurrying back to the shop he discovered, or at least said he discovered, that a watch and chain, a diamond ring, and several other rings, worth in all something like $300, were missing. This discovery, added to the fact that he had gone to such an expense in the preparations for the wedding, nearly paralyzed him, and he rushed away to the police. The colored expressman was found, the trunk traced to the Grand Trunk depot, where it was ascertained that it had been shipped to Port Huron. A telegram sent on to Port Huron caught him there, requisition papers were secured, and Detective Haas went on to take charge of him. The young man who is at the jail claims to be innocent of the charge. He says that the engagement with the daughter was arranged by the father, and he wasn't particularly well pleased himself with the girl. She didn't seem to like him very well, and he was anxious to get back to New York, where he came from and where he was going when he left here.

OFFICER COSTELLO.

No Charges Against Him—Why Hard Cases Are Not Booked.

An evening paper contained a paragraph to the effect that charges had been preferred against Officer Michael Costello, of the Desplaines Street Station, who was to be prosecuted for false imprisonment by Lewis Murray. The paragraph in question further stated that among other things Costello held a grudge against Murray, whom he hounded and attempted to "bleed"; that the case was presented to Chief McGarigle, who thereupon reduced Costello to the ranks from the position of detective, and furthermore, that since that time Costello has repeatedly arrested him out of pure spite. A TRIBUNE reporter made an investigation of this case last evening, first visiting Acting-Chief Doyle, who had heard nothing of the case. Capt. Bonfield, of the Desplaines Street Station, was next interviewed. He had seen the paragraph in question, but had heard of no charges. He felt sure that there was nothing to the case. "I notice," said he, "that the paragraph says that Thursday night Murray was arrested without a warrant while with friends by Officer Costello; that he was locked up at this station without being 'booked'; and that in the course of half an hour or so he gained an opportunity to see me, and that I immediately released him. Now, the fact of the matter is, Murray has been a hard man. We have had him for larceny, for robbery, and for disorderly conduct and vagrancy. The last time he was here I told him that we had no desire to hound anybody who desired to do right, but that he must stop running with the gang he had been associating with. He said he would and went away. Thursday night Mike saw him with two or three toughs in a disreputable neighborhood and brought him in. He came at once to me, saying that he had arrested Murray, but that he had nothing against him beyond the fact that

HE WAS SEEN IN BAD COMPANY.

I had the young man brought up here as soon as convenient, and after talking to him in a fatherly sort of way let him go. I don't believe the $5 story, and know that Mike was not put in uniform on account of that story being circulated, but the change was made just after that, and he himself thought that was the cause of it. The truth of the matter was that Mike in citizen's clothes had been getting a little lazy, and I put him to traveling a beat. He took the situation philosophically and went to work. He is a good officer and does good work, and today I put him back to work in citizen's clothes." Possibly the Captain didn't intend the explanation of the change for publication, but it can certainly do no harm. "That paragraph," the Captain continued, "says, too, that it is a common practice for prisoners to be locked up and kept without being registered or booked, or charged with anything. That is true, and it is necessary that we should do so. You can easily see how it is. A robbery is reported to us, and it is suspected that Jimmy Tough and Dan Duffer have had a hand in it. Some of the men run across Tough or Duffer, and they are brought in. There is no charge made against them, but they are held to await developments. If they are identified they are prosecuted for robbery. If not, and they are known thieves, we book them for vagrancy and send them to the bridewell. It is true that an officer might take advantage of this arrangement to lock up some one he has a grudge against, and after a short time turn him out. But he couldn't do it long, and his discharge would follow the first attempt of the kind."

From the above it would appear that the officer was not at all to blame in the case, and that, in fact, the paragraph in the evening paper was written upon misinformation or through spite.

THE RAILROADS.

No Improvement in East-Bound Freight Business—The Eastern Railroads Getting Discouraged.

At the beginning of last week when some oats still in store from last year commenced moving East by rail the drooping spirits of the Eastern railroad officials began to revive, and they thought that the spell had been broken and that east-bound shipments would increase henceforward. But figuring up the week's shipments east from this city reveals the fact that the anticipations of the railroads have not been borne out, and that instead of an increase in business there is a slight decrease. It will be discovered in time that THE TRIBUNE was entirely correct when it predicted a few weeks ago that there is but little prospect for the Eastern railroads to increase their business before September, when they will probably get some of the wheat raised in this section. There is but little prospect that they will get much of the wheat raised in the Southwest. This wheat will seek a cheaper outlet by lake and the Mississippi River. The rail rates are much too high to allow of competition against the lake and river lines. While it is true that the wheat and oat crops all over the country, with the exception of the Red River Valley, are large, yet there is but little consolation in this for the Eastern roads, as they will get but little of it as long as the present rail rates are maintained. The wheat shipments nominally run out by the time navigation closes, and the railroads must depend for their winter's grain business on corn shipments. If the corn prospects were as good as the wheat, the Eastern railroads could safely stand the present dullness a while longer, as they would then be sure to make up for their losses later in the season. But the corn prospects, in spite of the roseate reports spread broadcast over the country by the "bulls" in the stock market, are anything but flattering. Illinois and Iowa, the two great corn-producing States, will at the best have but half a crop, and if the wet weather which prevailed throughout the West all last week continues awhile longer it will not turn out that good. There is, therefore, but little prospect that the condition of the railroads will much improve during the coming winter. The prospects are such that even if there were no new roads to share the business with the existing trunk lines during the coming winter there would hardly be enough to keep the roads busy. But the addition of two new roads between Chicago and Buffalo—the New York, Chicago & St. Louis and the Chicago & Atlantic—and two more between Buffalo and New York—the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and the New York, Ontario & Western—will necessarily diminish the business of the existing lines, as the new roads will be certain to get a fair share of the business. It is not at all probable that the Eastern roads will be able to maintain rates much longer, and as soon as the fact becomes well established that there is not enough business to go all around cutting will commence. It is hard to see how Vanderbilt can maintain the present rates and make money for his roads. If he continues the present pooling arrangement his roads will ultimately be driven to the wall. The talk about his submitting to the inevitable and accepting the decision of the Advisory Commission, by which the Philadelphia and Baltimore roads will continue to enjoy the differential rates they are now making, seems to be for the sole purpose of keeping up the present boom in railroad stocks to enable the New York magnates to unload before lightning strikes. Vanderbilt cannot maintain that position any great length of time. Already the bulk of the export business is going to Philadelphia and Baltimore on account of the difference in rates to those points. The Pittsburg & Fort Wayne, which has a line to New York as well as to Philadelphia and Baltimore, took but one car-load of grain last week to New York. This shows which way the wind blows, and Vanderbilt cannot shut his eyes to this fact. If he wants the business to go to New York he must make rates that will take it there. The fact that under the pooling arrangement he will get his percentage of the business or its equivalent in money anyway, whether the business goes to New York or not, will not help him in the long run. The agreement provides that at the end of each year a reallotment of the percentages is to be made, based upon the business done by the various lines during the year. Therefore, when at the end of the year it is found that the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio have been getting the great bulk of business they will have the right to demand that the percentage be adjusted accordingly. Aside from the fact that by such a course Vanderbilt would strike a severe blow at the business interests of New York, he would find that although he secured the equivalent of the percentage of the business he ought to have carried, that he dealt himself a blow from which he would not find it easy to recover even if at the end of the year he should decide to fight for the business. He would find that business once diverted is quite hard to get back, and he would have to sink much more money to recover lost ground than he made by getting the allotted pooling percentage during the year.

Never before at this season of the year has east-bound rail business been so light as at present. The total shipments of flour, grain, and provisions during the past week amounted to but 19,269 tons, against 49,028 tons for the corresponding week last year, when business was considered unusually light. Any one of Vanderbilt's roads out of this city could have easily carried the flour, grain, and provision shipments of the past week. When this amount of business has to be divided among six roads it is certain that none of them can make much money in spite of the good rates they are getting.

The following statement shows the amount of flour, grain, and provisions shipped East from this city by the various Eastern roads during the week ending Aug. 5, and also the total shipments over the same roads for the corresponding week last year:

	Flour, brls.	Grain, tons of 2,000 lbs.	Provisions tons of 2,000 lbs.	Total tons.
Mich. Cent'l	6,584	1,850	378	2,885
Lake Shore.	2,542	2,808	1,515	4,577
Ft. Wayne..	6,030	2,805	2,265	5,673
Pan Handle	1,105	572	1,472	2,153
Balt. & Ohio	79	1,184	347	1,610
Gr'd Trunk.	6,46	1,366	359	2,371
Total, 1882	23,52	10,585	6,336	19,269
Same week 1881.......	93,22	29,433	10,276	49,028

The percentages this year were: Michigan Central, 14.90; Lake Shore, 23.80; Fort Wayne, 29.50; Pan Handle, 11.20; Baltimore & Ohio, 8.30; Grand Trunk, 12.30. The percentages last year were: Michigan Central, 25.90; Lake Shore, 25.30; Fort Wayne, 17.80; Pan Handle, 10; Baltimore & Ohio, 3; Grand Trunk, 18.

Two New Pullman Sleepers—Larger and Finer than Ever.

Attached to the night train over the Alton Road which left for St. Louis at 9 o'clock last evening were two new Pullman sleeping-cars which are ahead of anything yet seen in this city. These two cars, known respectively as the "Lochiel" and "Lomond," with two similar cars to be placed on the road next week, will run regularly between Chicago and the other end of the bridge. Each car is seventy-two feet in length and is mounted on standard No. 5 trucks and twelve forty-two-inch paper wheels. The exterior work is as fine as anything known in the line of car decorations, being finished in dark lake with gold striping. On the interior ornament has been lavished. The berth fronts and paneling are of a light mahogany, beautifully inlaid with lighter woods in tasteful designs. The ceilings are of wood, and there is a double-burner lamp to each section, so that reading in these cars by night will be comfortable. Each car consists of fourteen sections (two more than usual) and a comfortable smoking-room. At the other end of the car is a ladies' dressing-room elaborately fitted, and throughout the cars numberless minor improvements and conveniences have been introduced. Noticeably among these are the curtains and lambrequins and the large panel mirrors. The fittings and arrangements of the berths are more than up to the Pullman standard, and the berths are large and roomy.

Restoration of Rates to Points in Southwestern Missouri.

During the last few weeks the rates to competitive points in Southwestern Missouri have been rigidly maintained, and to stop the threatened demoralization of rates to those points the General Freight Agents of the Rock Island, Alton, Burlington, Wabash, and St. Louis & San Francisco Roads have agreed that commencing tomorrow freight destined to the above points should be restored to tariff figures, and thereafter firmly maintained. Points covered by this are: Joplin, Springfield, Carthage, and Webb City, in Missouri, and Galena, Oswego, and Columbus, in Kansas. Before any party to this agreement shall be at liberty to deviate from these rates it shall give fifteen days' notice in writing of such intention to all parties in interest.

Actual and Estimated Weights on Southwestern Association Business.

Commissioner J. W. Midgley, of the Southwestern Railway Association, has just issued the following circular in regard to actual and estimated weights:

> The attention of agents and others is again called to the rule adopted by the roads in this association in regard to the weight at which freight should be way-billed. Reference is especially had to business destined to the Missouri River and beyond which originates east of the Mississippi River and Chicago.
> Weights shown on the way-bills of connecting roads must not be accepted unless they are known to be correct. Whenever the actual weight of car-lots of agricultural implements or wagons is not ascertained from the track scales at the point of reception by the roads in this association, such cars will be billed out at 28,000 pounds per car. In the case of car-lots of other freight, when not weighed from any cause, the estimated weights will govern. The cars should then be weighed at the terminal stations on the Missouri River, and proper corrections made. Gross weights will be charged on canned goods, coffee, sugar, sirup, molasses, etc. The contents of cars containing beer, soap, and other package freight should be ascertained by careful examination and count before the cars are delivered to connecting lines or are switched to side-tracks for consignees.

The Midland Railway System in Canada.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5.—The Midland Railway Company has recently negotiated on the London market £610,800 of consolidated mortgage 5 per cent bonds, the interest upon which is guaranteed by the Grand Trunk Railway Company, the subscription price being 95. Of the proceeds, £456,700 is for the purpose of redeeming existing issues of mortgage bonds to that amount of four of the companies forming the consolidation, and the balance, £154,100, is required to pay for the continuation of thirty miles of the Toronto & Ottawa line. The Midland system is thus placed on a sound financial footing. The mileage of the Midland Consolidation Company is 443 miles, and the main objective points of the road Midland City, on the Georgian Bay, Toronto, Peterboro, Port Hope, and Belleville. The traffic has been rapidly increasing of late years, and to the Grand Trunk the Midland acts as a most important feeder in the present. It commands, too, an outlet to the Sault, and in a few years the wisdom of the arrangements perfected by the Grand Trunk managers by which they have obtained control of the Midland system will be made apparent. From Toronto to Madoc the Midland system forms part of the Toronto & Ottawa Line, which is being pushed forward with a determination which insures its completion, and at Ottawa connection with the Canada & Atlantic Railway will give the Grand Trunk Company an alternate line from Montreal to Toronto.

No Truth in the Report that Competing Lines at New York Were Carrying On a Secret War of Rates.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—It having been reported that competing lines were selling passenger-tickets on commission to scalpers or their agents for the purpose of carrying on a secret war with other lines, inquiries were made today at Commissioner Fink's office and at the offices of several railway officials to ascertain the truth of the report. At all these places it was stated that an agreement has been arrived at under which commissions had been abolished, and that the story was not based on facts. At the offices where cut tickets are sold it was stated that the business had been greatly interfered with by the new agreement of the railway managers, and that the taking away of the commissions by the various lines represented at the recent meeting had reduced the profits largely while adding to the work of procuring tickets which could be sold below the schedule prices. As to the railway agents being in collusion with them, the story was pronounced to be ridiculous.

The Thunder Bay Section of the Canada Pacific.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—The obstacle in the way of opening up the Thunder Bay section of the Canada Pacific to traffic exists on the Marks contract. The Canada Pacific authorities are said to be willing to run trains over this section at their own risk, but Mr. Marks has refused to allow them. Gen. Van Horne desired to pass over it for the purpose of inspection and fixing rates, but was refused permission. At the present time there would appear to be considerable doubt as to whether the line will be opened this season.

A Washout on the Denver & Rio Grande.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 5.—Mr. A. H. Sproat, Railroad Traffic Manager at Pueblo, came in from the West last night and reports eleven miles of the Denver & Rio Grande track washed out between Silver Cliff and Cañon City. He says it is seriously contemplated to abandon this part of the line and seek a better route, as it is almost impossible to keep the track in shape owing to the numerous gorges and chasms over which the road passes.

Steel Rails for the Kingston & Pembroke Road.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

KINGSTON, Aug. 5.—The Kingston & Pembroke Railway Company have commenced to lay steel rails on their road. The whole road will be laid with steel rails by the time the junction with the Canada Central is effected. The Kingston & Pembroke will then be one of the best railways in Canada.

The Winnipeg & Hudson Bay Land-Grant.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—There is said to be some difficulty between the promoters of the Winnipeg & Hudson Bay Railway and the Government relative to the land-grant which it is proposed to give the company. The Government offers a subsidy of 3,000 acres per mile, which is considered insufficient for the purpose.

The Manitoba & Southwestern Deadlock.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—The deadlock relative to the affairs of the Manitoba & Southwestern Railway Company still continues, the Government refusing to do anything until the question of proprietorship is definitly settled. The present holders have been entering strong protests within the last few days, but, so far as known, without any effect.

Decided to Sell Their Road.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 5.—A Leader special reports that the stockholders of the Pittsburg, Youngstown & Chicago Road met in Youngstown today and voted to sell all their interest in the road between Newcastle Junction and Akron to the Pittsburg, Cleveland & Toledo Company. Shortly afterward the officials of the latter road met and decided to issue $2,400,000 in bonds to complete and equip the line.

Resigned.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 5.—It is stated that Col. A. W. Soper, formerly General Superintendent of the Iron Mountain Railroad, has resigned the General Managership of the Wagner Sleeping-Car Company to take general charge of the Texas & St. Louis Narrow-Gage Railroad, which will soon have a through line from St. Louis to the Rio Grande.

Opened for Business.

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 5.—Today the Ouachita Division of the Little Rock, Mississippi & Texas Railroad was opened for business to Warren, Bradley County, and the first passenger train went through. Regular freight and passenger trains will be put on Monday, and the road is to be completed to Texarkana.

The Colorado Freight War.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 5.—The Chicago, Burlington & Quinch Railroad office here reports that no meeting of the Directors has occurred for two weeks, and that nothing has been done in regard to the pooling since Mr. Dillon went back to New York early in the week. The same story is told at the Union Pacific and at the Atchison offices here. It is admitted that a committee formed of the Directors of the roads will discuss the matter, which has not yet been arranged.

A Branch Road to Be Built.

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 5.—A certificate and map of a branch railroad were filed in the office of the Secretary of State today by the St. Louis & Iron Mountain Railroad Company. It is proposed to build from Beebe Station on the Iron Mountain Railroad to Fort Smith, 160 miles, crossing the Little Rock & Fort Smith Road at Conway.

The Ontario & Quebec Line All Under Contract.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—The whole line of the Ontario & Quebec Railway is now under contract, and it is expected to be finished within a year from this month.

Miscellaneous Items.

Mr. H. M. Bronson has been appointed General Ticket Agent of the Indiana, Bloomington & Western system, with headquarters at Indianapolis.

The Lake Shore Road during the past week brought to this city twenty-seven car-loads of European emigrants, most of whom went to points in the West, North, and Northwest.

The estimated earnings of the Illinois Central Railroad for the month of July, 1882, were as follows: Freight, $473,490; passengers, $174,741; miscellaneous, $104,020; total, $752,251. Total actual earnings for the corresponding month last year was $720,003.

Mr. H. C. Parker, Traffic Manager of the Peoria, Decatur & Evansville Railway, announces that the general agency of his road in Chicago has been discontinued. All communications in regard to business to and from Chicago should be addressed to C. L. Rising, General Agent of the Wabash in this city.

The clerks of the various roads centering in this city will hold another meeting next Thursday evening at the office of the Pan-Handle Road, 116 and 118 La Salle street, for the purpose of completing the organization of a National Benefit Association. All those inclined to join an association of this kind are requested to be present.

Mr. J. R. Buchanan, General Passenger Agent of the Sioux City & Pacific Railroad, announces that the road is now completed and open for business to Thatcher, Neb., fifty miles west of Long Pine, opening up the intermediate stations of Ainsworth, Johnston, Woodlake, and Arabia, to all of which, and especially to Ainsworth and Thatcher, Mr. Buchanan requests connecting lines to prepare tickets and place them on sale at their earliest convenience. Coupon tickets from the East or via Chicago should all read via the Chicago & Northwestern Railway from Chicago to Missouri Valley Junction one coupon, and one coupon via the Sioux City & Pacific from Missouri Valley to destination. First-class rates from Missouri Valley are as follows: Ainsworth, $10.56; Johnstown, $10.96; Wood Lake, $11.39; Arabia, $11.77; Thatcher, $12.17. Emigrant rates from Missouri Valley are as follows: Ainsworth, $6.75; Johnson, $7; Wood Lake, $7.25; Arabia $7.50; and Thatcher, $7.75.

FIRE RECORD.

Burning of a Grist-Mill Near Sunrise City, Minn.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

RUSH CITY, Minn., Aug. 5.—The large grist-mill on the Sunrise River, about two miles below the Village of Sunrise City, owned by Mr. John Hold, caught fire about 2 o'clock this morning, and was entirely consumed. Two men who were asleep in the second story of the building (could not learn their names) perished in the flames. A farmer who had taken a grist there to grind, and who was sleeping on the first floor, barely escaped with his life. The mill originally cost $10,000, and was probably worth $8,000.

A Livery-Stable at Muncie, Ind., Burned.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 5.—This evening about 6 o'clock a fire broke out in the livery-stable of J. M. Thomas, which burned the building to the ground. Loss about $2,000, with $800 insurance in the Springfield. In running down Walnut street a hose-reel, ran over Charles Timmons, of Union City, mashing his head to atoms. Death followed instantly. The Coroner is holding an inquest over the body tonight.

A Barn, Granary, and Other Farm Buildings Destroyed.

ABILENE, Kas., Aug. 5.—A large barn, granary, and other outbuildings on the farm of Bishop Samuel Zook, a few miles from this city, burned yesterday afternoon. The little daughter of the Bishop, 4 years old, who had climbed into the hayloft and is supposed to have set the hay on fire with matches, was consumed in the flames.

Bridge Burned.

LOWELL, Mass, Aug. 5.—The Central bridge across the Merrimac burned this morning. Loss, $34,000. While working on the fire four firemen were precipitated into the river and seriously injured.

A Destructive Fire at Lemoore, Cal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 5.—A Lemoore, Tulare County, dispatch says a fire last night destroyed a hotel, Masonic hall, and a number of business houses. Loss over $30,000.

A CROOKED DETECTIVE.

More of His Rascality Brought to Light at Vandalia, Ill.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

VANDALIA, Ill., Aug. 5.—Some men, while engaged in cleaning out the Court-House privy-vault one day last week, found what proved to be the seal of the Effingham County Circuit Court. It was at once conceded to be the work of L. L. Cluxton, who is now serving out an eighteen years' service in the Chester Penitentiary for forgery, perjury, and fraudulently using the seal of Fayette, Effingham, and Clark Counties, and by which he defrauded the State of Illinois out of some $5,000 or $6,000. Sheriff Mays, believing that the pit contained more of the crooked detective's instruments, requested the men employed in cleaning the vault to keep a close look out for the same. Their efforts were not in vain, for yesterday, while a wagon-load of the filth was being distributed over a piece of ground outside of the city, another seal was discovered, it being that of the Clark County Circuit Court. It will be remembered that Cluxton was arrested here the 5th of last September, and it is the opinion of many that, fearing the seals would be discovered, and knowing that he could have access to them only under guard, he conveyed by some means information to his pal where they could be found, and ordered them disposed of. It was the general belief that Cluxton had several accomplices, and that when he found he would have to wear a striped suit he would give the entire gang away. This, however, he did not do, but intimated to the effect that if certain parties in high standing did not come to his aid there was a possibility of their names being revealed.

TIRED OF LIFE.

A Salt-Boiler Fires a Bullet into His Brain.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 5.—John Meyers, a salt-boiler in Geddes, was found dead lying on a grave in Oakwood Cemetery this afternoon with a bullet on his brain. A five-shooter with the cartridges discharged lay on the ground at his side. He was seen to enter the cemetery at 10 o'clock a. m. Tuesday. He was twice prevented from throwing himself into the canal. He was a hard drinker, and a demented mind resulting from excessive drink is supposed to have caused the tragedy. He was a single man, 40 years old, and came from Germany seven years ago.

A Railroad Man Shoots Himself Through the Head.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

ATCHISON, Kas., Aug. 5.—John Hatfield, of Collinsville, Ill., shot himself through the head at Hiawatha, expiring in an hour. He was an employé of the Missouri Pacific Road, and had been on a protracted spree, and at Sheridan had been drugged and robbed of $150. He was a Knight of Pythias, which body directs the remains to be shipped to them at his home, where his wife and three children are left penniless.

LABOR AND CAPITAL.

The Window-Glass Manufacturers.

PITTSBURG, PA., Aug. 5.—The Association of Western Window-Glass Manufacturers finished their labors and adjourned finally tonight. This afternoon a conference with a committee of workmen was held which resulted in the manufacturers deciding to resume on Sept. 1 at last year's wages, provided the Eastern workmen would ask for an advance of 10 per cent, in order to equalize prices between the East and West. This will probably result in a lock-out in the East if the workmen make the demand; and if they do not, the factories will close here, as the manufacturers cannot compete with the East and pay the present wages.

The Ironworkers.

MCKEESPORT, Pa., Aug. 5.—The strikers here are generally orderly this morning, and the non-union men are unmolested. The authorities began making arrests last night, which had a quieting effect. No further trouble is expected.

Will Not Return to Work.

COHOES, N. Y., Aug. 5.—The mass-meeting of the Harmony Mills operatives was attended by 4,000 men and women. It was decided not to return to work Monday.

Returning to Work at the Old Rates.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—About thirty of the striking freight-handlers returned to work today at the old rates.

YELLOW-FEVER.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 5.—Several new cases of yellow-fever were reported to the authorities here yesterday. About fifty cases of fever are now existing, and it is increasing rapidly. There was one death today, a German named Quaste, recently from Europe. There are conflicting reports about the existence of the disease at the country points, but they are not reliable.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 5.—Latest reports from Brownsville were up to 4 o'clock this afternoon, when the military telegraph line failed. At that hour nothing had been heard from Matamoras regarding the fever. Another death occurred in Brownsville last night, and several new cases are reported. Among the latter is Dr. Happersett, United States Army Post Surgeon of Fort Brown. There is still great division of opinion as to whether it is yellow-fever or not. The leading physicians, including the sick Post Surgeon, still claiming it is a malignant type of malarial fever. Dr. Swearinger, State Health Officer, is expected to arrive from Galveston tonight.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—The carriage of freight and passengers to Chicago for the last fifty years has largely made the city what it is. What do we want of a ship-canal carrying freight and passengers by Chicago, leaving us a mere way-town so far as such traffic is concerned?

I. H. PEDRICK.

The County Clerk's Office.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune.

COUNTY CLERK'S OFFICE, CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—It is stated by a number of responsible persons that a disreputable employé of the City Water Office is circulating a report that the County Clerk is short in his accounts about $150,000, and that that is the reason why he withheld his resignation on Monday last. So far from such being the fact, it can be shown that at no time since his incumbency has the balance in his hands much exceeded $60,000, four-fifths of which was held in trust for the purchasers at tax sales, and which they preferred to have remain in the Clerk's possession until wanted for use rather than to place it somewhere else for safe-keeping.

There was on the first day of this month the sum of $30,542.86 due to the redemption fund and $9,440.02 in the general fund to the credit of the County Clerk, all of which, except the receipts after the deposit in bank of that date, stood to the credit of the County Clerk in the Corn Exchange Bank; and of the sum in the general fund account, $5,050 is undrawn personal salary of the County Clerk. There was, even at the time of the discovery of the Reinke defalcation, largely more of the Clerk's personal salary undrawn than was necessary to make that defalcation good.

There never has been a minute since Mr. Klokke received the balance of the redemption fund, $6,095.81, from the late County Clerk Lieb, that there has not been ample funds to the County Clerk's credit in the Corn Exchange Bank to discharge every cent of his official liability. And this can be fully verified by an examination of the books at the bank and in this office. Of this fact the purchasers at tax sales must be fully convinced or they would not leave so large a balance for months undrawn. I make this statement without consulting Mr. Klokke, and consequently without his knowledge.

A. J. GALLOWAY.

A RASCALLY PREACHER.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 5.—J. H. Rockwell, alias the Rev. J. H. Harvey, the rascally preacher who was arrested yesterday for conducting a fraudulent business through the United States mails, was given a preliminary examination today and bound over to appear at the next term of the United States District Court. It now transpires that Rockwell was the regularly ordained pastor of the Congregational Church at Dewitt, Saline County, this State, and his late exploit which has brought him into trouble was conducted while he was ostensibly absent from his flock on a summer vacation.

A MARVELOUS ESCAPE.

Samuel Hutchinson, a slater at work on the Calumet Club-House, fell from the cornice to the ground yesterday morning, a distance of seventy-eight feet, and strange to say was not instantly killed. He was not even rendered unconscious, but after lying still a minute, picked himself up, spat out some of the blood that was oozing from a cut in his lip, wiped the blood from a cut over the left eye, and limped away to his home at No. 135 McGregor street. He was attended by Dr. Wetmore who says that beyond the injuries above mentioned and a severe bruise on the left hip he is not badly hurt.

GO AWAY!

With a bumpy swish and a curdled roar,
Sweet Mary's churn goes drumming.
Young Reuben leans on the low half-door,
And hopes that the butter's coming;
Then sighs and sighs, and droops his eyes—
What words can his feelings utter?
"O drop me down in the churn," he cries,
"And make me into butter!"
She rests her hands, and gazing stands
At sound of his words' vagary—
Then plies the staff with a lightsome laugh—
"O go away!" says Mary.

If a maiden's word means aught, they say,
The opposit sense is in it;
So Reuben finds in her "Go away!"
A "Just come in a minute!"
"I hope," says he, "I may make so free."
With a grin and a nervous stutter:
"My answer should be to your ears," says she,
"If I could but leave the butter."
His arm on the shelf that holds the delf,
He looks across the dairy:
"Shall I go to her side? Shall I dare her pride?"
"O go away!" says Mary.

He takes the hint, and he takes a kiss,
With fears and inward quaking;
She does not take what he takes amiss,
Nor seem in an awful taking.
Sweet kisses he takes so loud and fast
That he takes her breath completely;
He takes her tight in his arms at last,
And still she takes it sweetly!
The heart of the boy is wild with joy:
He has won her—his bird, his fairy:
"I'll go outright for the ring tonight!"
"O go away!" says Mary.

A Boy's Hand Nailed to a Board.

Montreal (Can.) Witness.

A boy named Alexander Watson, aged 14, met with a painful accident last evening at Levigne's cabinet-works, where he was employed among the machinery. He was engaged on a machine, worked by steam, used for driving a number of nails at a stroke, and had placed a cluster of the latter and the board into which they were to be driven in the requisit order. Incautiously placing his hand on the board to ascertain if all was ready, the machine started before he expected, descending upon his hand and driving some dozen nails completely through it. The hand was fairly pinned to the board for a second, but, as the machine can draw out the same lot of nails that it drives in with almost the same speed, it was only for a second. The lad was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital, where the wound was dressed. It is not certain whether or not amputation will have to be performed.

BUSINESS.

Stocks Opened Steady and then Weakened, but Closed Strong.

The Bank Statement a Surprise and Disappointment.

The Produce Markets Irregular—Oats Excitedly Higher and Barley Stronger.

Other Grain and Hog Products Easier at the Outset, but Closed Firmer—Receipts Small.

FINANCIAL.

Stocks opened dull and steady. The feature of the morning was the upward movement in Rock Island, Illinois Central, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, and Union Pacific. The feeling in these stocks was very strong. The bank statement, showing a loss of over $2,600,000 in the reserve, was a surprise and disappointment, and weakened the market all around. But at the close prices showed steadiness and strength, and New York brokers telegraphed that they expected an advance in prices next week.

Chicago again sold more stocks than it bought. The general feeling was that prices were high, and the foggy and hot weather inspired some fears of damage to the spring wheat, which is not yet an assured crop.

The unfavorable bank statement was partly explained by the fact that it did not show the disbursements made by the Sub-Treasury since Aug. 1. These have been large, and will make themselves felt in next week's statement.

The Louisville & Nashville earnings for the fourth week in July were $351,745, but this sum includes $21,300 of car rentals for the month not heretofore included in monthly earnings, against $264,700 last year, an increase of $87,245. The total earnings for the month were $1,038,385, an increase of $221,250.

London cable quotations were: Consols, 1-16 lower; United States extended 5s, ⅛ lower; Erie, ⅛; New York Central, ⅛; Pennsylvania Central, ¼; Reading, ⅜; and Ontario & Western, ⅛ lower.

The market in the morning though dull was very strong, all stocks offered freely taken at advancing prices.

The Union Pacific earnings complete for July show a decrease of $225,000. The Rock Island earnings for six months show an increase of $138,183.

New York Stock Exchange seats are now $30,000 bid.

The United States Treasurer's statement of liabilities and assets as of Aug. 1, 1882, shows a further depletion of the gold and a smaller increase of the silver reserves. Compared with the statement of July 1; the amount of gold—coin and bullion—held in excess of outstanding gold certificates was reduced $3,414,780. The amount of silver dollars in excess of outstanding silver certificates was increased $1,435,453; the amount of fractional silver coin increased $105,325, and the amount of silver bullion was decreased $414,638; net increase of all kinds of silver, $1,126,140. The amount of currency on hand, deposits in National banks, etc., on Aug. 1, was $4,092,433 greater than on July 1. The statement makes a trifle better showing of the reserve—on a gold basis—against outstanding legal-tenders, than did the July statement; it now being 16.15 per cent, and the total so-called "available balance," including $28,153,956 of non-legal-tender fractional silver, now is $2,074,774 greater than it was on July 1.

CINCINNATI.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 5.—The rumor obtained this afternoon that a Cincinnati provision firm had failed. Investigation showed that it was without foundation, and that it had grown out of the fact that a clique of the provision men here are leading the pork deal in Chicago, and some of the Chicago business-men fear that they cannot carry the load successfully. The truth appears to be that the clique operating in Chicago can command about $5,000,000. If that amount will buy all the pork that is offered they will be masters of the situation. At present the impression in financial circles is that the venture will be successful, and accommodations could be secured if wanted for large amounts at the banks. The week has closed with the money market very easy. There is about $1,500,000 more in the banks than there was a week ago. This is largely due to the sale of Cincinnati holdings to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company of Cincinnati and Baltimore stock. It is a point in favor of the speculators that money is so easy here. The fraudulent issue of $335,000 worth of Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway stock (the sensation of the week) has ceased to be a matter of serious consideration. The bears, who fought strenuously to gain an advantage from the disclosure, were beaten, and the week closes with the stock several points higher than before the fraud was known. The only losses resulting from the fraudulent issue are those that arose from the depreciation of the stock while the unauthorized certificates were on the market and before their character was discovered. People who were carrying the stock on margins were serious losers from this cause.

The leading produce markets were rather slow on Saturday, except oats. They were gamey enough, being terribly excited, as a consequence of small receipts, which leave nothing for shorts or shipment after filling the current demand for local consumption. Wheat and corn were firmer on the fact of wet weather, with small receipts and news that wheat is sprouting extensively in the shock owing to incessant rains. They say, too, that oats are suffering in the same way. There was a good shipping demand for wheat and corn. Barley was much stronger, the rain being alleged as a sufficient cause therefor. Provisions were tame, but closed firmer in sympathy with grain. Mess pork closed 15c higher, at $20.62½ bid seller August and $20.82½@20.85 for October. Lard closed 2½c higher, at $12.22½ bid for August and $12.27½@12.30 seller September. Short ribs closed 15c higher, at $12.47½@12.50 seller September. Spring wheat closed firm, at $1.01½@1.01¾ bid seller the month. Red winter wheat closed 1c higher, at $1.03 bid for car-lots. Regular wheat closed ¼@¾c higher, at $1.00⅞@1.00¾ seller August and 99⅞@99¾c bid seller September. Corn closed a shade firmer, at 76¾c bid for car-lots and 75¾@75⅞c for September. Oats closed 2½@2¾c higher for cash and seller the month, ⅝c higher for September, and ¼c higher on the year, at 51½c cash for new, 59c for old No. 2, 43⅜c for August, and 37⅛c for September. Rye closed unchanged at 67c for spot, and 60c bid for September. Barley closed 3c higher on No. 2, at 92c, with No. 3 for October at 70c. Hogs were firm at $7.40@8.10 for light and $7.40@8.65 for heavy. Cattle were active and firm at $3.00@8.00. The receipts for the week were 28,100 cattle, 63,700 hogs, and 7,600 sheep, against 29,928 cattle, 102,372 hogs, and 4,719 sheep for the same week last year.

The dry-goods market was without essential change. There was a fair small-order trade on city and country account, and prices were again quoted steady. Boots and shoes are moving a little more freely, but the market is still far from being active. Millinery goods are receiving a little more attention. Clothing remains dull. There was a good degree of activity in the grocery market, and prices averaged firm. Sugars remained easy. There were no changes in prices of dried fruits, though raisins, prunes, currants, and the small domestic dried continue easy. Fish are in light supply and remain firm. No changes were reported in bagging, leather, coal, and pig-iron. Oils were quiet as previously quoted.

The trade in green fruits is active, apples and peaches remaining steady, raspberries and blackberries ruling lower, and grapes and watermelons selling off somewhat from Friday's prices. The watermelon crop is coming forward freely. Eggs continue firm at 20c per doz. In building materials activity is still reported, prices generally remaining unchanged. Hides are quiet outside of a fair inquiry for green-cured, and Eastern orders are light. Grease and tallow are moving slowly at our figures given elsewhere. Potatoes are easy, with light sales in a jobbing way at $1.25@1.50 per brl. Wool is unchanged. Hay was quiet and easy for the stock on hand, though an active demand for the better grades existed, and could not be filled. Timothy seed was firmer at $2.20 for August delivery. Flaxseed was 1c lower, selling at $1.25 delivered.

Quite a brisk business was done in lake freights yesterday, a goodly share of the charters being for Canadian ports, the rate paid to Kingston being 5⅛c. The rate on wheat to Buffalo was 3c, and on corn 2¾c. Engagements announced up to the close of 'Change aggregated 195,000 bu wheat and 134,000 bu corn.

Rail freights were reported steady on the basis of 25c per 100 lbs on grain and 30c on provisions from Chicago to New York. Through to Liverpool was in smaller demand at 43c via lake and 48c via rail. Flour in bags was quoted at 42½c via lake and 47½c via rail.

The receipts of wheat at Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Toledo, and Detroit, reported Saturday, aggregated 382,000 bu. The shipments from the same points were reported at 672,000 bu. The shipments reported from New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore were 760,000 bu.

The daily consumption of corn in this country is not far from 3,000,000 bu. The entire quantity in sight, including that afloat on the ocean, is only about 8,000,000 bu, or less than three days' supply. Of course one may quote in this connection the fable of the clock pendulum, which was consoled by the admonition that it was only required to make one tick at a time. The visible supply of corn is generally small at this time of the year, but one does not remember a time since the reports began to be massed that the quantity was so small as now. If it should prove, as many people fear, that there is very little corn in first hands, we may see tight times before the next crop is available. Some 300,000,000 bu of corn are yet needed to tide us over into the new crop. The demand is increased just now by the scarcity of oats, but that can scarcely continue long. There are plenty of oats to come forward. The mischief is that the bears counted on their coming forward before they are ripe. The sale of 7,000,000 bu short in this market for August would scarcely be warranted, even under favorable weather conditions, as new oats do not move freely till the latter part of August, and we are bare of stock on old. But with wet weather the market is retarded longer than usual, and we seem to be now in a wet spell which may last a long while yet.

As illustrating the value placed upon their respective judgments, it may be stated that a wager was made Saturday between two members of the oats crowd for and against the selling of August oats before the close of the month at 37c. The wager was $100 to $50 against such an eventuality. It is hardly necessary to add that the believer in high prices is "long" to a very considerable extent.

Such was the interest in the oats deal on Saturday that the small space between the corn and wheat pits, where the buyers and sellers of the horse-feed do congregate, was much too contracted to accommodate the many operators who desired to have a hand in the game. It was suggested that if this jammed-up state of things should continue long the oats operators could with justice claim a special pit for the transaction of their business. Should prices continue to advance one will probably be provided for a portion of the crowd by the close of the month, unless the majority of them be broken out of the deal.

PROVISIONS.

HOG PRODUCTS—Were rather quiet and again irregular. Prices turned down a little early in the day, and then reacted, the later quotations being an improvement over those of Friday afternoon. This was especially the case with ribs, which advanced sharply near the close under a little demand, some of which was for shipment. There was not much change in the tone of advices from the Stock-Yards or from Liverpool, and a good deal of trading in product seemed to be of the scalping order. The summer packing of this city is reported as 1,225,000 hogs, against 1,709,000 to same time last year, and 2,012,000 to do in 1880.

MESS PORK—Declined 12½@15c per brl, then advanced 30c, and closed 15c above the latest prices of Friday, with round lots, spot or seller the month nominally about 10c below the price for September. Sales were reported of 25,250 brls seller September at $20.45@20.75; 22,500 brls seller October at $20.55@20.82½; 6,250 brls seller the year at $18.85@19.05; 3,000 brls seller February at $19.37½@19.50; and 1,500 brls seller February at $19.62½@19.60. Total, 59,500 brls. The following gives the range of the day on the leading deals, including the call transactions:

	Closed Friday bid.	Range Saturday.	Closed do. bid.
August	$20.45	.....	$20.62½
September	20.55	$20.45 @20.75	20.72½
October	20.67½	20.55 @20.82½	20.82½
The year	19.00	18.85 @19.05	19.12½
January	19.42½	19.37½@19.50	19.60

LARD—Declined 5@7½c per 100 lbs but closed 2½c above the latest prices of Friday, with round lots spot or seller the month about 5c below the price for September. Sales were reported of 500 tcs seller the month at $12.20@12.25; 10,250 tcs seller September at $12.20@12.30; 12,250 tcs seller October at $12.27½@12.37½; 2,250 tcs seller November at $12.27½@12.30; 250 tcs seller the year at $12.20; 2,250 tcs seller January at $12.17½@12.22½; and 1,500 tcs seller February at $12.32½@12.35. Total, 34,250 tcs. The following gives the range of the day, including the call transactions:

	Closed Friday, bid.	Range Saturday.	Closed do. bid.
August	$12.21	$12.20 @12.25	$12.22½
September	12.25	12.20 @12.30	12.27½
October	12.32½	12.27½@12.37½	12.37½
November	12.30	12.30	12.30
January	12.25	12.17½@12.22½	12.22½

MEATS—Were dull and steady till near the close, when they advanced about 15c per 100 lbs, and closed firm. Sales were reported of 75,000 lbs shoulders at $9.15; 850 tcs sweet-pickled hams at 13¼@13c; 1,700,000 lbs short ribs at $12.45 spot; $12.60 per do (winter cured); $12.45 seller August, $12.30@12.50 seller September, $12.35 seller October, and $10.40 seller January. The prices of the leading cuts were as follows at the close of trading:

	Shoulders.	Short ribs.	L. & S. clears.	Short clears.
Loose, part salted	$9.45	$12.30	$12.50	$12.90
Do, boxed	9.70	12.55	12.75	13.15
August, loose	9.45	12.30	12.50	12.90
September, loose	9.50	12.35	12.50	12.98

Short ribs closed at $12.45 bid seller August and $12.47½@12.50 seller September. Long clears were quoted at $12.10 loose and $12.35 boxed; Cumberlands, 12¼@12⅝c boxed; long cut hams, 13¼@14c; sweet-pickled hams quoted at 13@13½c for 16@12 lb averages; green hams, same averages, 12@12½c.

Bacon quoted at 10¾@11c for shoulders, 13¼@13½c for short ribs, 13¾@14c for short clears, 14¼@15c for hams, all canvassed and packed.

BEEF—Was quiet at $12.25@12.50 for mess, $12.75@13.00 for extra mess, and $19.50@20.00 for hams.

BREADSTUFFS AND SEEDS.

FLOUR—Was again dull, with no material change in prices. There was a good inquiry for old, in proportion to the small supply, and rather more new offering than was wanted. Sales were reported of 250 brls winters, 1,000 sacks winters, 600 sacks springs, at $8.00 for patents; 140 brls low grade winters at $6.80; and 100 brls rye flour on private terms. Total equal to about 1,980 brls. Winter flours were quoted at $6.25@6.75 for choice, $5.75@6.25 for good, $5.25@5.75 for new, and $4.50@5.25 for supers; springs were quoted at $6.25@6.75 for good to choice, Minnesota patents at $7.50@8.75, and rye flour at $4.00@4.75.

OTHER MILLSTUFFS—Were firm, though in larger supply. Sales were reported of 10 cars bran at $13.00@14.00, and 4 cars middlings at $16.00@23.65—all per ton.

REGULAR WHEAT—Was rather slow, but averaged a shade firmer. The market fell off ¼c early, but then advanced ⅞c, and closed ¼c above the latest prices of Friday. There was little change in the tone of foreign quotations, but there was a fair demand on European account. Shippers were less disposed to operate, however, for the reason that the new wheat is pretty well scattered round among the elevators, and some buyers thought it well to wait till vessels can obtain cargoes without "going round the creek" for them. The demand was, however, good enough to keep up spot wheat at a considerable premium over next month's delivery. The market otherwise depended chiefly on the weather. The skies were again overcast, and the telegrams from the country indicated widespread fears of damage owing to the rain; it was reported that half the wheat in Michigan is sprouting. Of course the bad weather hinders thrashing where the wheat has been cut, and this keeps down receipts, leaving it impossible to say how freely the farmers would otherwise market their wheat at the recent reduction in prices. Seller September opened at 98⅞c, sold at 98⅛c, advanced to 99¼c, and receded to 99⅞c bid at the close. Seller the month ranged at 99@1⅛c above September, and October was about ¼c above September. The year was 1⅛@1¼c below October. The following table shows the range of the day on the principal deals:

	Closed Friday, bid.	Range Saturday.	Closed do. bid.
Seller August	98½	99½@1.01½	$1.00½
Seller September	98½	98⅛@ 99	99⅞
Seller October	99½	98⅞@ 1.00	99⅞
Seller the year	98	97½@ 99	98⅝

WINTER WHEAT—Advanced about 1c per bu under a good demand in proportion to the supply, and closed firm at $1.03 for car-lots of No. 2 red, with about the same figure for seller the month, which had sold sparingly at $1.02@1.03. Seller September was nominally ⅛c over August. Spot sales were reported of 40,000 and 85 cars Nos. 1 and 2 red at $1.02@1.03¼; 3 cars long-berried do at $1.04½@1.05; 8 cars No. 3 at 96@97c; 1 car rejected at 80c, and 9 cars by sample at 87c@$1.05. Total about 85,000 bu.

SPRING WHEAT—The only sale reported was 1 car of poor, by sample, at 80c on track. For old No. 2 in store $1.20 was bid, and new No. 2 was unmentioned. Seller August was nominal at 1@1¼c above the price of regular for this month.

CORN—Was slow, but averaged firm. The market declined ⅜@⅝c early, but then advanced ⅞c, and closed a shade above the latest prices of Friday. Liverpool reported a strong demand, with an upward tendency, and there were export orders in New York which were reflected here, making the shipping demand rather active, and this seemed to cause the change of tone from the early weakness in futures. Our receipts were light for the season, but those of the week were in excess of the reported shipments, and the wet weather was not regarded with apprehension, except as some were afraid it might be followed by an early frost. There were some limited buying orders for futures which were not filled because the market went above the figures named. Outside of this there was not much speculative demand. Car-lots of No. 2 closed at 77c asked, rejected at 74c, and high mixed at 79½c. Spot sales were reported of 41 cars high mixed at 78½@79½c; 15,000 bu and 56 cars No. 2 at 76¾@77c; 33 cars rejected at 74@74½c; 15 cars by sample at 66@82c on track, and 40 cars do at 70@83c free on board. Total about 115,000 bu. Seller September opened at 75½c, sold at 75¾c, advanced to 76c, and closed at 75⅝c bid. Seller the month ranged at 1@1¼c above September, October was 1¼@1¾c below September, and the year was 7¼@8¼c below October. The following table shows the range of the day on the principal deals:

	Closed Friday, bid.	Range Saturday.	Closed do. bid.
Spot, fresh receipts	76½	76½@77	76½
Seller August	76½	75⅝@77	76½
Seller September	75½	75½@76	75⅝
Seller October	74½	73¼@74⅜	74½
Seller November	70½	69¾@70⅝	70½
Seller the year	66½	66¾@67	66½

OATS—Were again excited and higher, the moving causes being the continued wet weather, the demand from the August "shorts," and the reported firmness in the grain at the East. August delivery advanced at one time 2¾c over Friday's latest figure, and closed 2¾c higher. Cash oats advanced 2@2½c, new No. 2 selling at 50@51½c, old No. 2 at 58@59c, and No. 2 white at 63@64½c in store. Old No. 2 white on track sold at 63c. Seller the month ranged at 41⅞@43⅜c, closing at 43⅜c. Seller September sold at 36⅛@37⅜c, closing at 37⅛@37¼c. October sold ½@⅝c below the September delivery. Seller the year was more steady, selling at 35½@36c, closing at 35⅞c. Samples were in demand and higher. May delivery sold at 45c. Cash sales were made of 17 cars at 54½c for old No. 2 white; 50@51½c for new No. 2; and 51@53c for new No. 2 in store; 19 cars by sample at 51@53c for new rejected mixed; 55@57c for old rejected mixed; 55@56c for old rejected white; 58c for new No. 2; 59@63c for old No. 2; 62c for new No. 2 white; and 65@66c for old No. 2 white on track; 9 cars at 43@43½c for new rejected mixed; 32@35c for old rejected mixed; 61c for old rejected white; and 54c for new No. 2. Total equal to about 34,000 bu. The following shows the closing prices Friday, with the range Saturday:

No. 2 oats.	Closed Friday, bid.	Range Saturday.	Closed do. bid.
Spot, old	55	58 @59	59
Seller August	41⅛	41⅞@43⅜	43⅜
Seller September	36¼	36⅛@37⅜	37⅜
Seller the year	36¼	35½@36	35⅞

RYE—Was active and firmer, spot No. 2 selling at 67@68c, closing at 67c bid. August in round lots sold at 67½c, September at 60@60½c, closing at 60c bid, and the seller the year 67c was bid. Cash sales were made of 4 cars and 15,000 bu at 67@68c (the latter for old) in store; 4 cars by sample at 68½@69c for old and new No. 2, and 63½c for rejected on track; 2 cars at 62c for new rejected, and 69c for new No. 2 free on board. Total equal to about 5,000 bu.

BARLEY—Was fairly active and firmer for futures, No. 2 for September delivery selling at 90@92c, closing at the outside price, and No. 3 for September and October selling at 70c. Cash sales were made of 1 car by sample at 60c for new No. 3 on track.

SEEDS—There was some trading in timothy seed, August delivery selling at $2.20, an advance of 5c over Friday. Flaxseed was a shade weaker, selling at $1.25 delivered. Clover seed was quotable at $4.50@5.00 for prime. Others neglected. Sales were reported of 3 cars flaxseed at $1.25 delivered.

Eccentricities of Hotel Guests.

Detroit Free Press.

"Do you see that man going off with that bell-boy?" asked a clerk in one of the leading hotels in this city of a reporter for the Free Press yesterday. An affirmative answer was given, at which the clerk continued: "That man is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, and is at the head of a business which probably amounts to upward of a million dollars a year, yet he cannot write his own name. He stops with us four or five times a year, and I always register his name for him without asking any questions, for I know of his inability, and he knows that I know it."

"How about his bill? I should think a hotel-clerk might cheat such a man," said the reporter.

"We never cheat anybody," said the clerk, in an injured tone, and he continued: "I pity the clerk who tries to swell old ——'s bill. I don't know whether he can read figures or not, but you may bet he can tell mighty soon whether his bill is right or not, even to a cent!"

The above remark led to a very interesting chat, during which the clerk related a few of the eccentricities he has met with during twenty years which he has spent behind hotel-desks. One of the oddities was told of a well known star-actor who never takes a meal outside of his own room, yet who never eats anything—at least in the hotel—beyond Graham bread toasted, black tea, cold roasted or smoked meats, with a dessert of toasted cheese and crackers. "I presume the simplicity of this diet is the cause of his eating his meals in his own room," said the clerk.

Another interesting note was of a wealthy man, a resident of this city, who seldom misses an evening that he does not visit the hotel reading-room and spend from one to two hours reading the Detroit daily papers.

A novel way of carrying money was revealed by the clerk, who told of a guest who always has from $500 to $1,000 on his person and upon reaching the hotel hands the clerk a package done up in tissue paper in such a way as to look like a package of tobacco or a roll of calico, or anything besides bank-notes. His package of cash has become so well known to the clerks that when they see it in the safe they remark: "Hello, old tissue is here again."

Illustrative of some of the trials a hotel-clerk has to put up with, was told the hobby of an old man who insists on having two rooms with connecting doors, a man to remain in the room and keep awake with the gas turned on full head while he sleeps. Fear of sudden illness and possible death, "which fear has existed seven or eight years to my knowledge," is the reason the old gentleman requires a companion.

MY ANSWER.

For The Chicago Tribune.

Why do I love to ramble alone
Through the mossy wood and the shady lane?
Because the songs that are sung therein
Awake in my heart an answering strain.
And, if I whisper the notes I hear,
All but the ones too sweet to tell,
I wonder if they will bring to you
The peace they have taught to me so well.

The little flower near the hanging rock
Perfumes the air by the wayside walk;
But few can see the pretty head
That droops so low on the slender stalk—
Hidden from all in sweet content,
Caring naught for admiring gaze,
Only grateful its life is spent
In scattering sweets o'er the shady ways.

Away in the branches the birdies build
Their cunningly-woven nest;
But the storms arise, and their home is torn
From the oak-tree's sheltering breast.
And yet, with a patient, cheerful chirp,
The birds their work renew,
And stronger weave and faster bind
The nest the winds o'erthrew.

The bee comes buzzing to the rose,
To steal its honey sweet,
Unmindful other bees have borne
The spoils he hoped to greet.
And now he seeks the thistle-cup,
Within rich stores to see;
The rough outside a treasure veils,
And this he knows—wise bee.

The sunset dips its brush, and paints
The trees, the flowers, the sky,
And writes, "If Earth so lovely seem,
What beauties past it lie!
And, if my hour can bathe the soul
In such a stream of peace,
Think what must be the bliss beyond,
Where rest and joy ne'er cease!"

And now do you know why I ramble alone
Through the mossy wood and the shady lane?
And the songs that are sung do you understand?
Do they wake in you the same answering strain?
O come and listen to Nature's songs,
And learn the lessons sweet they tell!
May they bring to you, as they've brought to me,
The peace and the joy they teach so well!

An abandoned male infant was found late Friday night on the front-door steps of No. 390 North La Salle street. Pinned to the little dress was a note stating that the wearer came into the world Aug. 1. The waif was sent to St. Joseph's Foundlings' Home.

The Chicago Union Veteran Club held their picnic at Desplaines yesterday. While the threatening weather prevented many from participating, yet there was a fair attendance, and every one who did go put in a full day's work of fun and enjoyment.

Charles Koch, a 14-year-old boy whose home is at No. 17 Thomas street, yesterday fell twenty feet down an elevator shaft at Walker & Oakley's place, corner of Elston avenue and Ingraham street, and sustained injuries that will probably result fatally.

Frank W. Cutler, who claims to be a druggist, was locked up at the armory last night upon a charge of vagrancy, it being claimed that he makes a practice of beating hotels out of board and lodging. The Matteson House, and Atlantic and McCoy's hotels are among the victims.

By falling down an elevator-shaft yesterday morning at Ansley's soap-factory, No. 1216 South Clark street, John Heifert, a German employé of the place, was very dangerously injured. He was removed to the Alexian Brothers' Hospital. Heifert has a family at No. 3031 Broad street.

Maurice Lavin, a bookkeeper for the Lone Star Shirt Company, has joined the increasing army of defaulters. His peculations were of small amounts, aggregating probably in the neighborhood of $200. He kept the money intrusted to him to pay the small accounts due by his employers.

The temperature yesterday, as observed by Manasse, optician, 88 Madison street (TRIBUNE Building), was as follows: At 8 a. m., 75; 9 a. m., 77; 10 a. m., 76; 11 a. m., 77; 12 m., 75; 1 p. m., 73; 2 p. m., 75; 3 p. m., 76; 6 p. m., 75. Barometer, 8 a. m., 29.61; 6 p. m., 29.65. Wind northeast, with barometer rising.

Mr. J. F. Healy, whose home is at the corner of Clark street and Sheffield avenue, was thrown from a wagon by a runaway team at the corner of Clark and Michigan streets yesterday morning, sustaining a dislocation of the left shoulder and some very severe bruises. He was removed to his home in a patrol wagon.

Mr. George John Prussing, who died last Friday of cirrhosis of the liver, was for many years Superintendent of the Prussing vinegar works. He was a single man, and in the 60th year of his age. He came to Chicago first in 1846. His brother is Ernest Prussing, who is in the real estate and loan business.

The Lincoln Park Board has decided to give an open-air concert in the park twice a week, and will select two evenings at once. A new music-stand is to be built for the musicians. On account of the weather the South Park concert was postponed until next Saturday, when it will take place in Jackson Park.

While walking along Hubbard court near the lake about 4 o'clock yesterday morning Officer Alexander Ross witnessed what was probably a suicide, but possibly a little joke. The stillness of the hour was suddenly broken by the loud report of a pistol from the direction of the breakwater, and by the momentary light which the flash afforded the officer could plainly distinguish the weird form of a man. He hastened to the spot, but found it deserted. Lying on the boards of the breakwater, however, was a thirty-two-calibre revolver, one of the chambers of which was empty and still warm from the recent shot. Lieut. Kipley detailed officers to drag for the remains of the supposed suicide, but the search was unsuccessful.

While workmen were engaged in reconstructing a malt-tower at Seipp's brewery yesterday the scaffolding on which they stood suddenly gave way and Henry Wolfbaum and Lewis Renkowich, two carpenters, were precipitated a distance of nearly fifty feet. The latter had an arm and three ribs broken, but the other man escaped with slight bruises.

There will be a meeting of the West Side dry-goods clerks this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Parker Hall, corner of Halsted and Madison streets. The early closing of stores on the West Side is assuming the proportions of a popular movement. Petitions for the signatures of patrons are being liberally signed, pledging themselves not to buy goods after 6 p. m.

F. C. Pierce fell overboard last evening about 5 o'clock at the Government Pier, and owes his life to the prompt assistance rendered him by the well-organized combination of fishermen stationed there at all hours of the day and night. As these life-savers let out fishing-rods for a living they are well worthy the patronage of all good citizens who visit the pier.

Telegrams received here yesterday morning from Boston announced the death of John P. Robinson at North Conway, N. H. He was a very prominent boot and shoe dealer for many years and Director in the Elliott National Bank of Boston; also, one of the Trustees of the Union Trust Company of this city. He was a very worthy and influential man, over 70 years of age.

The Amalgamated Iron and Steel Workers continued in secret session during yesterday at Greenebaum's Hall, and in the evening the members of the convention and their friends indulged in a social hop at Central-Hall, corner of Twenty-second street and Wabash avenue. The convention will continue its sessions with closed doors until Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

The employés of the Western Electric Manufacturing Company held their second annual basket picnic at Woodlawn yesterday. About 400 persons were present, and the program of games, music, and dancing made the day a most enjoyable one for all concerned. A game of base-ball between the mechanical and shipping departments resulted in an easy victory for the mechanical.

Before Commissioner Hoyne yesterday John S. Henry, of No. 640 West Twelfth street, was held over to the United States District Court on a recognizance bond on a charge of selling tobacco without a license. He pleaded ignorance, and had been engaged openly in the traffic since last December. Warren Smyth, of South Chicago, was held over to the same court for selling liquor without a license.

The July report of C. M. Albenson to the Executive Committee of the North Side Citizens' League gives the following facts: During the month of July thirty-two cases of selling intoxicating liquor to minors and drunkards against twenty-four saloonkeepers were prosecuted by the North Side League. Of these thirteen were fined by the Justices, seven nolle pros. taken by the agent, and twelve cases are pending in court, continued under bail.

A lawyer named W. B. Bradford did something yesterday afternoon which displeased John Young, of No. 123 Monroe street, and Mr. Young hit Mr. Bradford in the mouth. The lawyer, being weak from an attack of dysentery, did not strike back, but, as the difficulty occurred in the Exchange Building, just outside of Justice Brayton's court-room, the striker was promptly run in before his Honor by Detective George Hartman and held in $300 bond for assault and battery.

Justice Ingersoll yesterday held William Sharp and James Horn, a pair of Twelfth street boodlums, to the Criminal Court for larceny. They had a peculiar method for taking other people's property. They would procure a horse and wagon, drive to some large lumber-yard, load up with choice lumber, and coolly drive away. They played their game once too often, however, and were caught last night driving out of John Clark's lumber-yard on Twenty-second street.

Charles Snyder, a carpenter, went into Nick Younker's barbershop, at No. 235 Larrabee street, last night while under the influence of liquor, and, when the barber refused to shave him because he was drunk, he made a row, and was eventually ejected from the place, after having been quite badly beaten and cut in several places. Dr. Brandell, who attended him, says that he is seriously injured internally, but that the cuts, of which there are several, are of no particular consequence.

The Young Men's Auxiliary Republican Club of the Sixteenth Ward met last evening at 311 Larrabee street, Mr. Danke presiding. Beyond an informal discussion as to the merits of the candidates for the Congressional nomination from the Fourth District nothing was done. After the adjournment a mass-meeting was held, and Gen. Thomas, who was present, was invited to make a speech. He spoke briefly, eulogizing the Republican party, but making no allusion to his candidacy for the Congressional nomination.

One week from today a grand excursion will be given by the Chicago Lodge, No. 4, B. P. O. Elks, to Mount Greenwood to the dedication of the Elks' Rest and the unveiling of a monument. The program arranged for the entertainment of the excursionists is varied and tempting. It includes an oration by States-Attorney Luther Laflin Mills, addresses by other distinguished citizens, and vocal and instrumental music. Simon Quinlin and W. D. Eaton will speak on the occasion, and the invocation will be delivered by the Rev. Henry G. Perry. Trains leave Wabash depot at 2 p. m.

C. G. Klemm, the smooth-talking young fraud who swindled so many business firms in the city on the strength of his extended acquaintance and pleasing address, and who forfeited a $500 bond signed by J. B. Taylor, is still making himself scarce. Klemm Sr., who is a very respectable citizen, yesterday visited Justice Wallace and announced his willingness to make good all the losses sustained by the various firms at the hands of his erring son. Possibly the whole affair will be patched up without young Klemm getting his just deserts. It will cost his father a good round sum, however.

The heavy rains of the past few days did considerable damage throughout the city in the way of flooding basements and cellars and overflowing low lands. The most serious injury wrought by the rainfall was the undermining of the row of one-story frame buildings on Franklin street, between South Water and Lake streets, owned and occupied by R. Peacock, the lumberman. The entire row, consisting of five buildings, along with the sidewalk, was precipitated to the ground, several feet below the street-level, and almost entirely wrecked. The damage will amount to several hundred dollars.

Coroner Matson held an inquest at the Town of Lake yesterday in the case wherein an ignorant Dane named J. C. Holm was arrested on the suspicion that he knew more than he wanted to tell regarding the death of one of his children, a baby, the body having been buried in the sand on the Lake-Front. The body was exhumed, and from an examination made by the County Physician and from other evidence the jury found that death had been caused by infantile convulsions, and that the father was not responsible. He was accordingly released. Justice Thomas fined the man $50 for violating the health ordinance relative to the interment of corpses, which fine Holm promptly paid.

At the usual weekly meeting of the Custom Cutters' Association of this city, Mr. E. P. George, delegate to the convention lately held at Dayton, O., gave a very interesting report of the proceedings. It was listened to with great attention, and contained many happy suggestions which will be of lasting benefit to the cutters of this city. A unanimous vote of thanks was accorded Mr. George for the very able and efficient manner in which he had performed his duty. The remainder of the evening was taken up in discussing the most suitable manner of celebrating their anniversary, which comes off at an early date.

William Canning, the self-confessed thief who purloined a lot of jewelry from the wholesale house of Lapp & Flershem, No. 81 State street, where he was employed as a salesman, waived examination before Justice Wallace yesterday, and was held to the Criminal Court in bonds of $1,000, going to jail in default. Detectives Thorpe and Tierney yesterday recovered several more valuable rings stolen and pawned by young Canning. The jewelry firm has announced its intention of bringing suits against a number of the pawnbrokers who received some of the stolen articles and sold them too soon. Canning thinks that altogether he stole about $1,000 worth from his employers.

A young man giving the name of Henry Howard, who was accompanied by a young woman claiming to be May Howard, his wife, were arrested at the Michigan Central Depot by Detectives Elliott and Wiley last night, on complaint of Charles Manck, of Princeton, Ind. Some time ago Howard and his wife, who travel with sideshows doing the "second-sight" act, made the acquaintance of Mr. Manck, whom they found just soft enough for them. They were broke and their effects were in pawn, but through Manck's assistance the clothing was redeemed, and all three came to this city, Manck, paying the fares. They put up at No. 218 Washington street, where, yesterday, in Manck's absence, they broke open his trunk and took therefrom $150. They then skipped out, and were about to leave the city last night for Cincinnati. They had $80 with them, which, with the value of the tickets, made up the lost amount. They were booked for larceny at the armory. Manck, the loser of the money, is the son of wealthy parents, but seems to have more money than he knows how to use properly.

The liquor cases brought by officers of the Citizens' League yesterday before Justice Hudson were: H. Krause, 137 Larrabee street, selling liquor to minors, fined $20 and costs; Charles Keefer, 540 Division street, selling liquor to a drunkard and to the drunkard's child; was found guilty of the charge, but allowed to enter a plea of guilty of disorderly conduct, having abandoned the saloon business on the 1st of August, and fined $10 and costs. Before Justice Kaufmann: Fred. H. Herdrich, 169 Chicago avenue, and C. Grogan, 83 Chicago avenue, were charged with keeping a disorderly house selling liquor to minors, and held under $600 bail each until Aug. 11. The case of F. Tickoelter, 161 North avenue, for keeping a public nuisance, was continued under $300 bail until Aug. 11.

A trio of West Side toughs—Sam Booth, John Smith, and John McKenna—were before Justice Walsh yesterday with three separate charges of robbery staring them in the face. The complainants, all of whom were held up the same night at different hours, were William Lewis, of No. 193 Niagara street, who was knocked down and robbed of $4; John Maxwell, a Scotchman, living at No. 128 West Lake street, who was robbed of a gold watch and chain; and John Frazer, an engineer at the New England Mills, who was relieved of a small amount of cash while his assailants kept a revolver pointed at his head. In the Lewis case the identification was not positive enough to hold the defendants. Smith and Booth were held in $500 each for the Maxwell robbery, and McKenna and Smith were held in $300 each for the Frazer robbery.

CITY-HALL.

The County Treasurer sent $50,000 to the City Treasurer yesterday as a partial return of the tax collections.

The auctioneer's license of Morris Marks, No. 169 Madison street, was revoked by Controller Gurney yesterday for carrying on business in an unlawful manner.

The Health Department is going after persons who have not yet placed fire escapes and standpipes upon buildings, which they are required to do under the ordinances.

Ashland avenue bridge is broken and the Department of Public Works is repairing it so as to make it secure until the new one is built, for which drawings are now being made.

The Law Department of the city is pretty much all away. Frank Adams is in Minnesota, and his assistant, Mr. F. S. Winston, left last evening for a few weeks' absence. City-Attorney Grinnell is at his old home in Vermont. Only the junior clerks are left to run the shop.

T. W. Tracy, who was fined yesterday by Justice Wallace for a violation of the building ordinance, had been granted a permit to put up a shelter-shed without sides or floor and with a fire-proof roof. He, however, constructed a frame blacksmith-shop, which was inclosed. He was assessed $25 and costs.

The following building permits were issued yesterday: Two-story dwelling, 24x42 feet, No. 816 Talman avenue, to cost $2,000; Gribben, Sexton & Co., one-story addition to foundry, 97x100 feet, rear of No. 78 to 84 Erie street, to cost $4,000; C. Kramer, three-story and basement store and flats, 50x66 feet, West Madison street, near Campbell avenue, to cost $12,000; M. A. Smith, two-story and basement flats, 24x60 feet, No. 688 Park avenue, to cost $5,000; William N. Arend, two-story and basement dwelling, 20x41 feet, No. 487 Belden avenue, to cost $5,000.

The following fines for violations of the building ordinance were imposed yesterday by Justice Wallace: Ludwig Newmeth, No. 3585, and Vincent Moore, No. 3537 Marshfield avenue, $50 each for violation of Sec. 1,003; John Moore, No. 1485 Thirty-fourth court, $50; M. Myers, No. 1004 Thirty-third street, Thomas Eagan, No. 991 Thirty-second street, Charles Williams, corner of Marshfield avenue and Thirty-fifth street, Fritz Fonk, corner of Thirty-sixth and Paulina streets, P. W. Tracy, Thirty-fifth and Ulman, and Frederick Schier, the contractor, $25 each.

Mr. E. Walker, the attorney for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, has been looking up the facts whether Henry Rice had a license to store powder within the city, and whether he ever filed the necessary $10,000 bond required by the ordinance to protect the city. The explosion of Rice's powder-magazine caused great damage to the railroad corporation's property, and if there was a good $10,000 bond filed the city would be protected. But there was neglect in this regard, and no record of the filing of such a bond can be found. As it is now, if Mr. Rice refuses to make a settlement of the loss, the question of the liability of the city will be tested. There are a large number of interested people who have sustained damages, and there is a prospect of a great many suits in consequence.

To show how carelessly things are conducted in the acceptance of license bonds the following facts will show: The license of Kalbow & Son, night scavengers, was revoked Friday. On that day these worthies were fined $20 each and costs for dumping nightsoil on the public streets. They couldn't raise money enough to pay their fine. Yesterday Carl Lubke, who is a tailor at No. 39 Nutt street, but who gave his address as on Eighteenth street, was granted a license as night scavenger, and Kalbow & Son, who couldn't raise $42 wherewith to pay their fines and costs, were accepted as bondsmen. The truth is, Lubke is merely the other name for Kalbow & Son, and they will do the night scavenger work the same as before. James Woodville, the scavenger, whose wagons are charged with purposely getting on the railroad track ahead of street-cars, denies that it was done intentionally. The Health Department states that this is the first complaint that was ever made against him, and that he has aided the department in bringing to justice violators of the ordinance. The night scavengers have banded together, and offer a reward of $25 for all violators of the scavenger ordinance who are convicted. Persons who prosecute will be assisted by the Health Department. D. B. Moore, No. 243 La Salle street, James Woodville, No. 716 West Lake street, and Thomas Burton will see that, upon any conviction for violation of the scavenger ordinance, the fine is paid to the party or parties who prosecute. All complaints should be filed at the Health Department, where they will be given proper attention.

THE SANITARY WORK.

The report of the Tenement House and Factory Inspectors for the past week shows as follows: In tenements there were 23 special examinations made, and 187 houses, containing 2,208 rooms, occupied by 500 families, of 2,898 persons, inspected. Of the inhabitants, 1,487 were children, 731 being boys and 756 girls. There were 46 notices served and 47 nuisances abated. Of factories there were five special examinations made. There were 125 factories, 86 stores, and 30 miscellaneous places examined. The total number employed is 2,925, of which 2,465 are males, 460 females, 260 boys, and 164 girls. There were 22 notices served and 10 nuisances abated. The following premises were reported upon:

No. 570 West Ohio street, owned by Mrs. C. Heitman, one-story frame, three rooms. Drainage defective and privy full and offensive.

No. 77 Goethe street, owned by Gerke, flour dealer, three-story brick of nineteen rooms, occupied by thirteen persons. Defective plumbing, defective drainage, and full catch-basins, and offensive privies, and there are no traps to the soil or waste pipes.

Nos. 2931, 2929, 2927, Dearborn street. Defective drainage and plumbing, untrapped waste-pipes.

No. 85 Jackson street, owned by William Dee, a four-story brick with basement, wherein are employed thirty-one persons in various capacities. The sewer is defectively constructed, and there is sewer-gas noticeable in the building.

Nos. 572 and 572½ West Ohio street, owned by C. J. Hull, two-story and basement brick, twenty-four rooms, occupied by eight families of forty-one persons. Ventilation in basement is poor, drainage bad, and water-closets offensive. There is an open sewer within a foot of the rear windows. In the basement the rooms are dark and damp, and the whole family occupying them is ill.

Nos. 59 and 61 Canal street, owned by A. S. Sherman, four-story and basement brick, in which seventy-six persons are employed in various manufactures. The water-closets are under the sidewalks, filthy and offensive. The means of exit in case of fire is poor from the fourth floor. The owner has been notified to provide better exit.

COUNTY-BUILDING.

Commissioners O'Neill and Klem yesterday visited the Normal School to inspect some repairs recently made to the roof of that institution.

Deputy-Sheriff Stacey announces himself as a candidate for the office of Coroner, and believes he will show considerable strength in the convention.

The Committee on Town and Town Accounts met yesterday and passed upon the usual number of bills for the relief of paupers in the various county towns.

The Committee on Jail and Jail Accounts have unanimously agreed to recommend to the board that the widow of George Antis, who was accidentally killed in the Criminal Court building, be retained as janitress of that building. The sense of the committee was that Antis had lost his life while in performance of his duty, and as his family was left in indigent circumstances, the widow was given the preference over several hungry applicants.

After Aug. 10 the books now being used in the equalization of assessments will not be open for public inspection, the committee deeming it advisable to make this ruling in order to facilitate business. There is a vast amount of work yet to be done by the committee, and the continual interruptions by those who have grievances are sufficiently aggravating without the additional trouble of continually dragging out the tax-books for needless investigations.

LOCAL ITEMS.

An exchange says that "'Sweet sixteen' is all bosh when referring to a girl. ELEPHANTINE PRANKS.

Barnum's Elephant "Emperor" Runs Amuck Through the Streets of Troy, Upsetting Everything in His Path, and Injuring Several Persons.

New York Herald.

TROY, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Last night, after 10 o'clock, the large elephant Emperor, of Barnum's circus, refused to follow the other animals across the railroad bridge in the upper part of the city. He turned and started down River street, followed by three smaller elephants. The keepers and policemen gave chase, but the elephants ran faster than a horse could, and going through the principal business and residence part of the town continued in company until they reached Adams street. At this point Emperor was attracted by the light in the Rensselaer Rail Mill, and, dashing through the open passage, entered the lower room. He was followed by his companions. A panic ensued among the workmen, who hid in every possible place until the huge beasts had taken their departure, Emperor staying the longest, and on his way out knocked down Michael Casey and a lady who was with him. They received a rough shock. When Emperor got outside he stepped on some red-hot rails which had just come from the rolls, and, giving an awful roar of pain, started up Madison street. When Emperor reached First street he was smarting with pain from his burns, and seeing Patrick Maher he hit him in the stomach with his trunk, knocking him out of time. The beast continued across vacant lots, and near the corner of Van Buren and First streets came slyly behind Patrick Burns and threw him over an embankment. Mrs. Burns was also knocked down. Lizzie Prentice, in trying to get out of the animal's way, fell and was seriously hurt. The enraged elephant turned into Second street and ran down as far as Tyler street. On his way he picked up a barrel and threw it through a barn. Turning into Tyler street he saw Michael Minehan, 55 years old, smoking a pipe, and tossed him against a fence, knocking several boards into splinters. Mr. Minehan has three broken ribs, an injured spine, and a body that is black and blue with bruises. He feels comfortable today, but suffers from internal injuries. Emperor continued down Union street to Polk, where he met Edward Burke. He tossed him in the air, sprained his arm and hands, tore his clothes, and badly bruised his body.

The huge beast continued on his way to the steel-works. Mrs. Langley was standing in the door of her husband's saloon, and Emperor, making a rush, caught her around the body with his trunk. David Murphy was standing by, and, pulling out a revolver, discharged the weapon. He was so excited that he missed the beast, which, thoroughly frightened, scampered down the track to the steel-works. Mrs. Langley went into convulsions, and her friends for a time despaired of her recovery. Today she is better, but still very nervous and excited. Continuing his erratic course, Emperor next came into contact with Patrick Molten, whom he picked up and threw against a door. Mrs. Molten had her 8-months-old baby in her arms, and as she ran for the door the elephant struck her with his trunk and threw her up seven steps of the first flight of stairs. The baby had a miraculous escape from injury. Molten's left shoulder is dislocated. Emperor next saw John Mara and knocked him down. A rod further on Jerry Barlow was standing in his doorway and was knocked down. Mara had two ribs broken and is thought to be ruptured. The elephant then entered the brilliantly-lighted steel works, walking over several red-hot steel "blooms." Maddened with pain he ran rapidly to the river, jumped in, and swam to Burden's blast furnace, half a mile away. His burns caused him frightful pain, and landing at Burden's he knocked a fence into splinters and rushed into the mill. The men were startled, and the enraged beast, howling terrifically, chased them around. A panic ensued. Emperor slashed around with his trunk, throwing fragments of iron all over the place, and then made his way up Main street. Over fences and through fields he tore until he reached St. Joseph's Cemetery. By this time the people of that entire section of the city knew that an elephant was loose, and they proceeded en masse to the cemetery.

Showers of missiles caused the elephant to retire. He retired to a neighboring oat-field and remained there until this morning, when he allowed his keeper to approach him and permitted a rope to be passed over his neck. He was led through the streets to the place from which he started on his runaway freak. Not one of his victims heard his approach, and as none of them expected such an adversary he was able to take them unawares. It is reported that Emperor is the circus elephant that has killed several people and caused trouble in different places. His trainer, while reticent on this point, admitted that Emperor's temper is very ugly. He said it would not be safe to keep him on the road another season.

When Emperor ran away from his comrades at the Rensselaer Iron-Works the other elephants ran toward the river, and one jumped in. After swimming a short distance he was glad to get out. His keeper tied him to a tree and captured the other two. The one that was tied managed to get his foot loose, and the three scampered off again. They tore down the fence at the German Catholic Church and cut up other capers. They were finally captured and conveyed to Green Island.

Mr. Hutchinson visited the victims today and settled all damages. The aggregate amount paid out was nearly $4,000.

THE IRON MARKET.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 5.—Whatever may have been the effect of the Western strikes upon the local iron markets, Philadelphia has as yet failed to feel any stringency on account of the reduced production. The market for the past week has been as quiet as ever. Pig-iron has been less active, but is firmly held, and Gray forge is selling at an advance of 50 cents a ton. Sheet and structural iron is steady, but very firm and strong. The demand for tank iron, which was especially active after the recent strikes in the oil region, has been fully met, and many of the mills are again open for orders. Rails are steady, with a better demand looked for in the immediate future. Prices now are $48 to $50 at the mill. Boiler tubes are scarce, and some mills are running night and day to fill orders on hand.

D. M. Towner, dentist, established in Chicago twenty years, gives vitalized air, and extracts teeth without pain. Makes artificial teeth at reasonable prices, and warrants them to be both useful and durable. Office over United States Clothing Store, Madison and Halsted streets.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS

Business Rather Dull in All Grains Except Oats.

Small Receipts and Anxious Shorts Force Up the Prices of Horse-Feed.

A Sharp Advance in Short Ribs at the Close of the Day.

There was not much doing in produce circles yesterday, excepting in oats. That market was excited and very much higher, chiefly for this month, which went up 2 to 2½ cents, while the longer futures advanced about half as much. The receipts were again very small, and the shorts were humping around in fear of not being able to fill on as favorable terms later in the month as they could do yesterday. The trading was chiefly between the longs and shorts, there being very little new business doing. One or two of the shorts were standing around in the market all day, apparently watching, but didn't decide upon doing anything, and their deals remain about as wide open as they were earlier in the week, with symptoms of a big fight to come a little later in the month. The bad weather is keeping oats back a great deal more than had been expected by the people who sold short for August. The receipts of thirty or forty car-loads a day are nothing as compared with the 700 or 800 car-loads that were expected, and which may come in a fortnight hence, provided the rainy weather lets up between now and then so as to admit of their being got ready for market. There were bets made on the floor that the receipts will amount to nearly 1,000 cars per day before the month is out, and that, in consequence of the larger supply, prices for August will drop to the neighborhood of 37 cents per bushel. Choice oats sold yesterday as high as 66 cents on track, a fact which was quoted by the longs to prove that they are

NOT ASKING TOO HIGH PRICES

for this month when they set the figure at less than three-fourths of that amount.

The receipts of wheat and corn were also small, but prices fell off early in the day, chiefly because of a lack of outside orders to buy futures. A demand started up towards 11 o'clock, when car-lots came on the market, and it was found that they were in very good demand, exporters taking all the spot wheat offered, while there were New York orders here for corn supposed to be for export. The stocks of both remain very low, though the quantity of wheat in store is a little larger than a week ago. It has not increased anything like so much as was feared would be the case, and some of the shippers say that there is not enough here to enable them to take on cargoes at some houses, which accounts for a discrimination in prices observable at times in the market. Shippers will pay as much as half a cent per bushel more for receipts of houses which are known to have a considerable quantity in stock, so that a vessel-load can be taken on at that elevator without having to move around the creek in search of the balance of a cargo.

THE LONG-CONTINUED WET WEATHER

was quoted as a season for grave fears that wheat is sprouting in the fields, and there were some country advices to that effect. But it was intimated by the bears that the senders of this news had not been out into the fields themselves to take note of progress, but were simply loafers around country groceries, who speculate in grain because they have nothing else to do. The farmers are supposed to be really busy at work in the fields, trying to take care of their grain as well as possible, and have not much time to spare to carry news into the country depots, nor even to carry in their grain.

Barley jumped up another two cents yesterday on account of supposed spoiling by bad weather. Rye was a little firmer in sympathy.

The provision market followed the lead of grain rather closely, tumbling off early, but recovering later. There was not much offered for sale, and apparently not much wanted. About the only really noteworthy item in the trading of the day was a sharp advance in the prices for ribs near the close owing to the receipt of two or three orders from outside to buy.

PUTS AND CALLS.

Spear & Driver were understood to be the heaviest short buyers of oats yesterday.

The barley crowd were congratulating Mr. Kroeschell, of Kroeschell Brothers, upon getting the contract for the boiler and steam-fitting work to be done at Sibley's seed warehouse.

D. C. Scranton, an old-timer, who went to a farm in Michigan a few years ago, was on 'Change yesterday, and welcomed by all the older members of the board. He said that not far from half the wheat in Michigan is sprouting, as a consequence of the rain.

The Board of Real-Estate Managers will open the bids for the mason and cut-stone work of the new Board-of-Trade Building Tuesday. About twenty bids for the former and ten for the latter have been received. No award will probably be made for a week or two, as the committee propose to give the matter full consideration before making up their minds on the subject.

President Dunham was sporting a new charm on his watch-guard yesterday, being nothing more nor less than a gold bear. It was greatly admired by his friends, but the only trouble with them in understanding the situation was to know whether it applied to wheat or to oats. As his firm is supposed to be long in the one deal up to the eyes, and short up to the ears in the other, it was suggested that a bull would have been very appropriate company for the bear under such circumstances.

THE SETTLING COMMITTEES

appointed to determine the prices of wheat and oats for last month have been rather severely commented upon in the alley, if not up-stairs. Some people who favor the bear side have said all sorts of things in insinuation against some of the gentlemen, quoting, for instance, the fact that one of them lives within a block of the leading bull, and that another one is interested in an equally indirect way, and so on and so on about all of them. It may be but justice to the gentlemen to say that, so far as THE TRIBUNE reporter could ascertain, the committees were really made up without reference to the wishes of either party to the deals. It is an open secret on the board that some fifty names were selected, and in each case the effort was to choose men who were not suspected of having any connection with the deals or strong personal friendships for parties who were interested therein. Fully two-thirds of them declined to served upon being asked to do so, and the best selections that could be were made from the remainder.

SPORTING.

Wallace Ross Challenges Hanlan.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—Wallace Ross, of St. John, N. B., has issued a formal challenge to Hanlan to row him a five-mile race, two and a half miles and return, for $1,000 a side and the championship of the world, the race to be rowed within six weeks. If not accepted within three weeks Ross will claim the championship of the world, and be prepared to defend it against all comers. Hanlan was interviewed tonight, and says Ross is a coward; that he knew perfectly well that he (Hanlan) had no intention of rowing this year. He still sticks to his decision not to accept a challenge this year, but will be prepared next year to row any person for any amount.

The Game of Lacrosse.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 5.—The lacrosse match between the Louisville and Chicago clubs today resulted three to nothing in favor of the Louisvilles.

Pedestrianism.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—The score at the close of the walking-match stood: Hart, 527 miles; Noremac, 505; Harriman, 500; Campana, 360.

MINOR LOCAL CRIME.

John Humbert, an employé at B. L. Anderson's lumber-yard, was on his way home with two companions last night when they were attacked by a gang of toughs, and a fight ensued. In the row Thomas Lane, of No. 3455 Laurel street, who belonged to the attacking party, was cut by Humbert in two places on the right leg, the wounds being painful but not serious.

Mike Miller and a partner known as "Humpey" Miller, who were employed to watch the ruins at Barth & Co.'s tannery, which was visited by fire a few nights ago, took advantage of their position to steal some hides. They were caught by Detective Pat Costello with a number of skins in their possession, and locked up at the Despiaines Street Station on a charge of larceny.

Louis Nessel, employed by Phil Smith, of No. 165 West Jackson street, as a collector, was arrested last night by Detective Costello upon a charge of embezzlement, his employer claiming that he failed to make a proper return of his collections.

Revived Happy Recollections.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

A seedy-looking fellow dropped into the city editor's room, and failing to borrow a half-dollar he begged to narrate his experience. "I used to be an officer of State, I did. I was Sheriff, and member of the Legislature, and Constable, and Clerk of the Courts, and Judge, and a candidate time and again, and had a high old frolic, I did."

"I don't believe it," said the city editor.

"Why don't you?"

"Because I have a letter here which says you are a thief and a liar, and a scoundrel and a villain, and a traducer and a perjurer, and a defaulter and a plotter, and a low-down brawler and a lover of all that is vile, and wicked, and dishonest, and offensive to decent people, and s———."

"Aha! stranger, go on and read that all over again, and read it loud. It sounds like old times. It brings back the days when I ran for office. It reads like an editorial in the opposition paper, and brings again to my memory that blessed period when I felt I was somebody and life was worth living. O, glorious hours of my past, will ye ever come back to me?" and the tears rolled down his cheeks as the city editor pronounced again the magic words, and then gave him a quarter to sober up on.

CLOSING IN.

About my life the twilight shades are deep—
And soon, ah, soon! I must lie down and sleep;
How long, I know not . . . Through the darkening air
Of my worn soul strange Thoughts and Fancies fare.
Some steal like solemn fantoms silent by,
Lifting cold eyes that glitter warningly;
Some, with aerial swiftness, flit and pass;
And some, scarce glimpsed athwart the twilight glow,
Glance bat-like, with black pinions, to and fro;
While from afar a dreary wind, whose breath
Seems sick with odors of some place of death,
Moans round me, with the low, half-muffled fall
Of music wailing a funeral call.
O wind of wo, through skies of ghostly gray!
O mournful closing of a mournful day!

Would Heaven that even now, at this last hour,
Fate could uplift me on a storm of power,
Nerve the frail limbs, roll back the ebbing life,
And whirl me to the inmost heart of strife,
Where, from some hallowed field by heroes trod,
My soul might pass on cloud and fire to—God!

THE VALUE OF MIRACLES.

A LECTURE BY PROF. FISHER AT THE SCHOOL OF CHRISTIAN PHILOSOPHY.

New York Word.

At one of the recent sessions of the Summer School of Christian Philosophy at Greenwood Lake the Rev. Dr. Taylor, of Newark, N. J., read a part of the fourteenth chapter of Matthew and offered prayer. The paper of the day was by Prof. Fisher, his subject being "Miracles and Their Place in Christian Evidence." Miracles, the Professor said, rested on two kinds of evidence, the historical and the internal. Christianity is a historical religion, a succession of events in which the supernatural is mingled with natural causes. Miracles constituted a part of revelation, and were not to be considered as appendages of it. They were the credentials of the Apostles in the promulgation of the Christian faith, the visible evidence of the fiat of God delegated to His Apostles. The Professor argued that miracles did not clash with natural laws, but were merely the overcoming of the forces of Nature by the power of a superior will, and were evidences of the design of the Creator of the universe. In answer to the objection of Hume that a miracle was not possible, because it would be an infraction of natural law, and to the objection of Huxley that miracles were possible, but were explainable by natural law, Prof. Fisher said neither of these positions was tenable, inasmuch as there was no interruption of natural law in the performance of miracles, but merely an overcoming of the forces of Nature for a specific result and at a particular time. The most reasonable hypothesis on which to account for miracles was that of divine intervention. The truth of a miracle rested on the testimony of those who witnessed it, and if that was seemingly well accredited the miracle must be accepted. A belief in miracles, the Professor said, was not a necessity for the acceptance of the Christian faith; the internal evidence must support the historical testimony. Of the use of miracles, he said that they were designed to convince those who witnessed them of the delegation to the apostles or to Christ of a power beyond that possessed by human beings and superior even to the laws of Nature. This power was exercised to convince those who were not wholly satisfied with an internal belief of the religion which they preached, and who demanded a visible sign.

In this connection Prof. Fisher said: "The tenets of Christianity, the transcendent excellence of the character of Christ, have been considered the main evidence of the supernatural character of the Gospel; but, on the whole, it has been on the internal evidence that the main stress has been laid in recent days in the conflict of doubt and unbelief. There can be no question at the present day, however, that doubt should first give heed to internal evidence. It is not by witnesses to miracles that skepticism is overcome. How can more be expected from miracles alleged to have taken place at a remote day than from the same miracles upon those in whose very presence they were wrought? Those who so expect forget the declaration of Christ that there were moods of disbelief that even the resurrection of the dead would not be able to dispel. They failed to consider that for the establishment of miracles as matters of fact something more is required than scrutiny such as would avail for ordinary occurrences. Miracles and proof of miracles from testimony cannot be spared. We crave some manifestation of an objective character," said the Professor. "We want some attestation, and the question occurs whether after all there might be some power of Nature to which the moral power of Christianity might not be traced. We ask for a power superior to Nature, a sharp manifestation of those elements of power, and when our anticipations are verified by answering proof our inchoate faith rises into complete confidence. Miracles are the component parts of that Gospel which is the object of our belief; they are comprehended within the work; and the resurrection of Jesus, His victory over death, was the realization to man. Miracles are the natural complement of internal evidences. Two sorts of proof lend mutual support and conspire together to satisfy the candid inquirer that Christianity is of supernatural origin."

At the close of the lecture the Rev. Lyman Abbott asked: "Do all miracles stand on the same footing?"

"So far as the question of possibility is concerned," answered Prof. Fisher, "they do; but when it comes to the question whether this or that miracle actually occurred, there may be different degrees of evidence, of course. I would like to ask Dr. Abbott what his view is with regard to the relation of internal evidence to the evidence from miracles."

"It seems to me," said Dr. Abbott, "that the object of a miracle is to give an assurance of the divine authority for the word of the Bible to one who already has desired to accept and believe it."

"That," said the Professor, "appears to have been the case with all the Gospel miracles. The requirement of our Lord is that there shall be a certain moral state, a certain spiritual condition. I have been very much struck with that incident of the healing of the paralytic by the Savior. In answer to the objection that he had assumed to forgive sins, a power that belongs only to God, Christ said, 'That ye may know that the Son of Man has power on earth to forgive sins'; and the miracle comes in then so naturally that it seems to meet a justifiable demand. Here is a man who undertakes to forgive sins, to discharge a prerogative that belongs to God; and now that you may know that the Son of Man has power to forgive sin, he said to the man sick with the palsy, 'Arise.'"

Philadelphia Record.

In obedience to the order of Bishop Stevens, St. Clement's P. E. Church some time ago abandoned its ritualistic forms, extinguished its candles, the gorgeous chasuble was neatly folded away, and instead the long white surplice was used as the vestment at celebrations. In course of time the rector, the Rev. O. S. Prescott, resigned, and the Rev. W. B. Martin succeeded. While the old order of things has not been completely restored, yet again are the seven sanctuary lamps flickering, shedding forth their amber-colored light, the candles are burning at the altar, and at times when it might be thought beyond necessity of giving light.

The alb and chasuble are now worn in many Episcopal churches, though a few years ago they were unknown in the diocese, and are still so strange to a majority of the clergy that only the initiated know how to put them on. And such things as a stole colored otherwise than the funeral black is also a curious object recently imported. This strange device is worn at the Church of the Annunciation, Norris and Camac streets.

Any one attending the midday celebration there will see the two eucharistic candles and half a dozen others ablaze on the altar to supplement the glare of the midday sun, which finds its way through the veiled windows. These two lights called eucharistic are not lighted at any service but that of the holy communion, which fact is intended to make them more important, and the doctrines taught thereby more pronounced and emphatic.

In going the rounds to see the things forbidden by the Bishop, such as genuflections, the use of candles, and unrecognized vestments, the visitor might drop into the wealthy and influential Church of St. Mark's, Sixteenth and Locust. Here vestments have been/ the order of things since Dr. Nicholson's rectorship at St. Timothy's, Roxborough. There are no candles, as a rule, but the Bishop would be very much puzzled if he were to try and put on their vestments, which are all of the most approved pattern. The long surplice, so dear to the elder clergy, is rigidly banished from the church, and no one who has not been instructed can celebrate according to the adopted method. There are also bowings and the like, which are specially forbidden by the Bishop.

Although the Bishop has not forbidden them, yet in a letter to the standing committee he has classed acolytes, or "servers," among the things symbolizing erroneous or doubtful doctrine. These servers are prominent in St. Clement's, the Annunciation, and St. Timothy's.

Vestments and eucharistic candles are the order also at the Church of St. James the Less, Falls of Schuylkill, and were even at the time when they were forbidden at St. Clement's. It is also said that on a certain high day a gong was sounded at a certain point of the service for the purpose of exciting devotion. This might be considered a novelty, but should objection be raised to the latter it would involve the chastising of another church, that of St. Matthias, Nineteenth and Wallace streets, the Rev. Robert A. Edwards, rector. On the eve of the Feast of the Circumcision a gong was used at this church for a similar purpose. The gong used was an improvement on the ordinary type, and by an ingenious mechanical arrangement of springs and hammer the use of a boy could be dispensed with. On the occasion in question a large congregation was assembled in the chapel to keep vigils, and, the device having been set in motion, at a certain desired time of the service it set free the hammer, the gong sounded, and all the people bowed their heads in silence. It is understood that when Bishop Stevens returns recuperated by his European tour he will inquire into these matters and apply the law.

THE Y. M. C. A.

IMPROVEMENTS IN THE FARWELL HALL BUILDING.

The new lecture-room in the Y. M. C. A. building, 148 Madison street, was informally opened Saturday by having the noon-meeting conducted in it for the first time. The room formerly occupied as a reading-room and library has been much improved by having been thoroughly renovated and rendered easy of access by the hallway from Madison street leading directly into it. The name Lower Farwell Hall has been dropped, and it will henceforth be known as the lecture-room.

All the extensive changes in the Y. M. C. A. building which have been going on for some time past are now nearing completion, and arrangements are now being made for a grand formal opening about the beginning of September. When all the changes are effected the association will be as thoroughly equipped for its work, so far as accommodations are concerned, as they can possibly desire. They will occupy the entire five floors of the building, and in fitting up the rooms have kept the comfort, convenience, and enjoyment of the members conspicuously in view.

On the first floor, adjoining the lecture-room, the room formerly occupied as the Bible-work room has been set apart for the use of the Chinese, and their night school and Sunday-school will be held there. Old Lower Farwell Hall has been transformed into a gymnasium, which will be in charge of Prof. O. W. Miller. The main entrance to it will be from Arcade court, but it can also be entered from Madison street in front by a side door in the main entrance hall.

The second floor is taken up with Farwell Hall proper, gentlemen's cloak-rooms and dressing-rooms, the Secretary's private office, the general business offices, and the reading-room. The latter is in front, looking out on Madison street.

On the third floor, in rear, are two rooms to be occupied as a library and as quiet rooms for the members. The library contains upwards of 4,000 volumes of the most carefully selected works. In the front of this floor are two large rooms, divided from each other by folding doors, which are to be used as gentlemen's parlors and reception-rooms.

On the fourth floor, in rear, are the ladies' parlors and Bible work. Adjoining these are cloak-rooms, etc. In front a large room has been fitted up for the Literary Society, to be known as the literary-room. The Senate will hold their debates there, and during the winter months evening classes will be conducted, instruction being given in free-hand drawing, bookkeeping, etc., the different classes to be in charge of the best instructors to be obtained. There will also be classes for the practice of vocal music. The rooms on this floor have been tendered to the members of the different denominations to hold their Monday morning conferences, and to any religious committees or associations that may require them, such as the County Sunday-School Association, the Woman's Christian Association, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, etc. These can only have them in the daytime, however. In the evening they are reserved for the use of the association.

The fifth floor is taken up with the offices of the Secretary of the Evangelistic Committee, the Yoke-Fellows' room, and in front there is a guest-chamber for the accommodation of guests. There is an elevator in the building, which will be kept running daily from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m.

OBEY THE LAW.

A CRITICISM OF THE REV. MR. RITCHIE'S SERMON.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—I wish to call attention to one point in the Rev. Arthur Ritchie's sermon, printed in your issue of July 31. He uses an argument which will not bear the test of legal experience and which recognizes a false principle in human government. He argues that if a presbyter differs with his Bishop on a given point he is justified in declining to obey the Bishop's orders, and to do as he pleases until the matter is brought to trial and decided by a "lawfully constituted assembly"—that in this way a "test case" can be secured. This seems very poor logic. A law-abiding citizen of a spiritual or a temporal Kingdom is supposed to obey authority even though sometimes it may be doing him wrong or injustice. In civil actions we don't pretend or dare to set up our judgment against the decision of the court no matter how unjust it may be, but with as good grace as possible obey its instructions until we can secure another hearing. I fear the theory of "disobey, and be tried for it," would prove a very serious "test case" to the offender. The same principle holds good in spiritual matters: and though there are some who would ignore this fact, those who are honored with membership in the Episcopal Church admire the feature of the church's system—that there is obedience from the layman up to the highest office; never allowing our private judgment to cause disobedience. Every one has his rights, and he exercises them without conflict with the rights of others; and, when they differ, they obey and appeal. It is very easy to see that this is the only basis of authority anywhere, and we find it intelligently exercised in the church.

There is no class of men in the country that apply this principle more strenuously toward the laity than those who hold the views of Mr. Ritchie. Obedience to priestly authority they deem a necessity. They are right, and we cannot see why they show so little regard for Episcopal authority as the argument of that sermon implies. The plea of infallibility is no excuse. It is a question of authority. I have no right to exercise my fallibility in preference to a Bishop's fallibility while I get the fallible decision of a "lawfully constituted assembly." All three are liable to mistakes, and therefore authority claims our obedience to the powers that be at all hazards. In this world of mistakes and prejudices the only safety for State or Church rests in obedient submission, until we can secure another hearing or a higher decision. It is ruin to take the law into our own hands until we can secure a decision that meets with our approval. For myself, I would rather obey and appeal, and so test the merits of the case, than disobey any power God has placed over me, that thereby I might test the soundness of my judgment.

I would not be supposed for a moment to be personal in anything I have here written. I am acquainted with the Rev. Mr. Ritchie, and some of my people think I favor his practices by practices in my own parish church. I am simply rectifying in a degree what I consider an argument false in theory and contrary to the practices of government.

A PRESBYTER OF THE DIOCESE OF ILLINOIS.

GENERAL NOTES.

London has more than a thousand charitable institutions. The aggregate income of these is over $100,000,000.

A revival of the efforts to abolish Sunday bathing at the seaside camp-meeting resorts has broken out with new fervor. It appears to do little good.

Plymouth Congregational Church in this city is undergoing repairs which will cost between $3,000 and $4,000. It will be reopened early in September.

The conference to ameliorate the condition of the Jews began in Vienna last Wednesday, and it is expected that the entire problem respecting the Russian refugee question will be settled.

The Jewish Messenger calls attention to the urgent need of several free synagogues in New York City for the benefit of the poor, who cannot attend the synagogs already in existence.

A beneficent association in Boston makes a specialty of giving poor people tickets for rides on street-cars. Invalids have the preference, the idea being that a ride to the suburbs and back is quite as beneficial as medicine.

One of the most uncommon mixtures in church affairs is the organization of a Union Church at Newfield, Conn. Although the membership of this church numbers only thirty, it comprises Adventists, Methodists, Congregationalists, and Baptists.

A Methodist in North Carolina sang so loudly and discordantly as to disconcert all the other singers and annoy all the other worshipers. They therefore had him indicted as a nuisance. On his trial recently he won the case, the Judge deciding "the disturbance of a congregation by a singer, when the singer does not intend so to disturb it, but is conscientiously taking part in the religious services, may be a subject for the discipline of his church, but it is not indictable."

The rapid increase in population in the vicinity of Humboldt Park has led the Missionary Committee of the Chicago Association to establish a Baptist mission on that field. The hall on California avenue, near North avenue, has been rented, and services will be held there today.

A summer-home for poor children was opened last month at Bath, Long Island, by the New York Children's Aid Society. Since that date 700 little girls from tenement houses have spent a week at the home, and 800 poor boys have been given an excursion to the home for a day's enjoyment.

The New York Sun thinks that the boasting of ministers of their love of torturing and killing fish for "sport" is unbecoming the profession and contrary to the Christian principles they "profess;" that while catching fish for food is allowable, that gloating over the agony they inflict for the love of it is out of character.

The handsome new stone church of the Congregational Union of Hinsdale, just completed at a cost of $15,000, and entirely free from debt, will be dedicated today. The historical address will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Bascomb, the congratulatory address by the Rev. Dr. Savage, and the dedicatory sermon by the pastor, the Rev. J. Ellis.

The St. James' Gazette says: "Rowland Hill's Chapel, built a century ago, and known as the 'Surrey Chapel,' is about to be converted into a manufactory. The centenary of the chapel was celebrated and its intended desecration deplored at a luncheon got up for this purpose a few days ago, to which Mr. Spurgeon was invited. He declined, however, to avail himself of the invitation, declaring that if Rowland Hill were to rise from the dead it would not induce him to leave his study on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Spurgeon would perhaps act wisely by shutting himself up all the more closely in his study in the event of Rowland Hill's resuscitation."

A largely attended meeting of the Salvation Army was held in London on June 29 in aid of the purchase of the Grecian Theatre and Eagle Tavern, to acquire which £16,750 had to be raised within the next three weeks. Gen. Booth, who presided, said the property they purposed buying could be adapted so as to accommodate 10,000 people. Not only did they intend to purchase this property, but they would never rest until they had a hall for the army in every square mile of the metropolis. When they got the cages they could find plenty of birds to fill them. The establishment of the training barracks and training-hall at Clapton had been attended with great success, 10,000 persons having been present at service there and in the grounds last Sunday evening. He had no doubt they would be able to attract tens of thousands to the Eagle—folks who had drank, danced, sworn, and served the Devil there before, and whom they mean to convert. The Eagle was within five minutes' walk of Mr. Bradlaugh's Hall of Science. God bless Mr. Bradlaugh! ("Amen!") There was nothing he (the General) would like to see better than Mr. Bradlaugh at the penitent form. [Loud cries of "Amen!" "We will bring him there."] Mrs. Booth then spoke. Subscriptions toward the new undertaking were then announced by the General amid loud cries of "Amen" and "Bless the Lord," ranging from five shillings to 20 guineas, £100, £200, and £500.

PERSONALS.

Cardinal Manning celebrated his 74th birthday on the 15th of July.

The Rev. Sumner Ellis will supply the pulpit of St. Paul's Universalist Church of this city during September.

The Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, D. D., has resigned the rectorship of Trinity Episcopal Church, New Orleans.

The Rev. Galusha Anderson, of this city, is announced to preach today in Emanuel Baptist Church, New York City.

The Rev. Dr. Muller, of Erie, Pa., declined a nomination tendered him for Congress, though his election was assured.

Mrs. J. S. Herrick, of Madison, Wis., has given $10,000 towards the Professorship fund of the Chicago Theological Seminary.

The Rev. F. J. Brobst, of the Clinton Street Congregational Church of this city, has gone to the seashore for a month's rest.

Col. Ingersoll's lectures are being translated into Japanese by Buddhists to counteract the influence of the Christian missionaries.

The Rev. Mr. Dolman, a popular pastor of Green, Erie County, Pa., has been arrested on a charge of attempting to murder his wife.

The Rev. W. H. H. Murray recently delivered a lecture in San Antonio, Tex., in which he declared the Hell of Scripture to be a myth.

Mr. Moody will spend two weeks in Paris during the month of October. He proposes to do evangelical work among the English and Americans.

The Rev. Alvah Bond, D. D., pastor for many years of the Second Congregational Church, Norwich, Conn., died in that city recently at the age of 90 years.

The Rev. Charles E. Stowe, son of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, does not get along well with his flock at Saco, Me. Many of his congregation are opposed to his advanced ideas on evolution and kindred ideas.

Mr. James W. Scoville, of this city, in addition to former gifts to the Chicago Theological Seminary, has just paid over to its Treasurer $10,000 for the endowment of the "Scoville Professorship of Elocution."

The Rev. B. F. Fleetwood, of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, has returned from his vacation, and will occupy his old pulpit today as usual. The enlargement and improvement of the church building rapidly progresses.

Mr. Ira D. Sankey, Mr. Moody's coadjutor, arrived at Montreal from England last Sunday on his way to his home in Newcastle, Pa., where he will remain for a few weeks' rest, and then will rejoin Mr. Moody in England in September.

PIOUS SMILES.

The Rev. Dr. Boggs believes in church debts, because, he says, they increase the interest.

Is pew-gilism prohibited on Sunday?—Philadelphia Bulletin. It is if you give no quarter.—Boston Transcript.

They've got the telegraph through to Jerusalem now, and if the miracle business were in progress there at present we should have a special giving full particulars the next day.—Boston Post.

A Sunday-school teacher read to his class that the Ethiopian eunuch went on his way rejoicing after Philip had talked with him, and then asked, "Why did he rejoice?" A boy answered, "Because Philip was done a-teachin' him."

Lady Visitor: "Your boy looks very bad, Mrs. Jones; what's the matter?" Mrs. Jones: "Yes, ma'am, he be very bad; and, what's more, the doctors has made him worse. I'm sure we poor people need to pray with all our hearts, 'From all false doctrine, good Lord, deliver us.' I never saw its meaning afore."

The full term of three years had nearly expired, and they were discussing at the breakfast table the certainty that they must move and the uncertainty as to where, when the young miss of the parsonage drew a heavy sigh. "O I was thinking what a mistake mother and I made when we married a Methodist minister!"

The following story is told of a distinguished Edinburg Professor: Desiring to go to church one wet Sunday, he hired a cab. On reaching the church door, he tendered a shilling—the legal fare—to cabby, and was somewhat surprised to hear the cabman say: "Twa shillin', sir." The Professor, fixing his eye upon the extortioner, demanded why he charged two shillings; upon which the cabman dryly answered: "We wish to discourage traveling on the Sawbath as much as possible, sir."

A lady in Greenfield had company at tea a few evenings since, on which occasion her two little boys were invited to await the chances of a second table, in which arrangement they readily acquiesced. But the visitors lingered over the ruins of short-cake and pot-cheese to indulge in an entertaining and somewhat protracted "feast of reason," etc., and the evening shadows had begun to thicken, when a member of the household discovered the elder of the boys (it was his 7th birthday) crouched upon the doorstep outside nursing the remnant of his patience, and asked him, "Where is Paul?" With a deep-drawn sigh the lad responded: "I don't know; I s'pose he's somewhere prayin' the Lord for his supper!"

"Nothing is wrong but by comparison," said a pompous little man to a sad-eyed individual on the court-house steps. "Now, sir, would you think it was wrong to walk out Sunday morning for pleasure?" "No," replied the taciturn sad-eyed man. "Well, sir, would it be any the worse to ride in a buggy?" "Not as I am aware of." "Twouldn't, eh? That's what I thought. Now, sir, would it be any worse to take a pair of sculls and row about half a day off the lake-front on the Sabbath?" "It would that," said the sad-eyed man. "Now that is just where your bigotry comes in. Now, sir, please tell me where the difference between the two diversions comes in." "Why, can't you see it?" "I must frankly admit my inability." "Well, rowing is a cussed sight harder work."

OUR SOCIETY.

A Dearth of Matrimonial Events During the Week.

Social Gatherings, Lawn Parties, Picnics in the Woods, Excursions.

The Pleasure-Seekers at the Summer Watering-Places.

Matrimonial and Social.

Wednesday afternoon Mr. George Van Zandt, Cashier of the Prairie State Loan & Trust Company, was united in marriage to Miss Grace T. Goodspeed, daughter of Jerome W. Goodspeed, formerly of this city, and now of Elcho, Colo. The ceremony, which was attended only by immediate relatives, was performed by the Rev. T. W. Goodspeed, of Morgan Park, at the residence in Lawndale of the bride's grandfather, Capt. D. H. Small. Mr. and Mrs. Van Zandt, after a short honeymoon in Wisconsin and Michigan, will be "at home" to their friends after Aug. 15 at their residence on Commercial street, Ravenswood.

Mr. Albert E. Hall, of Chicago, was married to Miss Clara L. Beers at the residence of the bride's parents in Englewood Thursday evening, Aug. 3.

St. George's Benevolent Association will hold its twenty-third annual picnic at Mount Greenwood Park Thursday, Aug. 10. Trains leave the Twelfth street depot at 8:30 and 11:30 a. m. English games will be played for prizes.

The twenty-third annual picnic of the French Benevolent Society will be held at Sheffield Station next Sunday. Trains will leave the Lake Shore depot at 9 a. and 1 p. m.

Mrs. E. Lewis entertained a few friends at her residence, No. 44 Walnut street, Tuesday evening in honor of her son Charles, it being his birthday. Many handsome gifts were presented. Among those who graced the beautiful parlors were the Misses Ford of Troy, N. Y.

Wednesday, July 26, the Amaranth Dramatic Club gathered at Jackson Park to enjoy a picnic. The party arrived at 4:30 p. m., and at once repaired to the fine shaded lawns for the practice of archery. Among the many members and invited guests the best scores were made by Miss Emily Moore, three hits; Mr. Ed Levey, three hits; Mr. Leon Jacobs, two hits; Mr. Joseph I. Abrahamson, two hits; Mr. Ike P. Levey made one hit to parts unknown. At 6:30 supper was served at the Hyde Park Hotel, after which the party enjoyed a moonlight ride on the beautiful waters of the miniature lake of the park. At 10:49 "home, sweet home" was thought of, and the merry party boarded the train for Chicago. The last meeting was held Wednesday evening, Aug. 2, at the residence of Mr. Leon Jacobs, No. 363 West Randolph street.

The popular Foxhall Pleasure Club will give a moonlight excursion this evening on the steamer Peerless, leaving the city at 6 o'clock.

Monday evening a farewell reception was given at the residence of Miss Maud Wallis, No. 219 North State street, to Mr. Fred H. Bowman, of the Ascension Church choir, who is about to go West. The boys of the sanctuary department of the church presented him with an elegant token of their regard in the shape of a gold watch. A number of the young people of the church were present.

A social party was given Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Sophie Cahn, of Cincinnati, at the residence of William Mida, No. 20 Wisconsin street.

July 29 a very enjoyable surprise party was given by the friends of Miss Nellie B. Malia at the residence of her father, Sheffield avenue, Lake View, the occasion being the nineteenth anniversary of her birthday. It was a very large and select party. Music and dancing were the order of the evening, which was kept up until the wee hours of the morning, when, after a bountiful repast, all departed well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

The Pleasure Seekers had a pleasant private basket picnic last Sunday at Abt's Grove, Riverside.

Inflated skirts are looming up.

Persian mauve is a color which keeps its favor in the world of fashion.

Pink silk stockings and low-cut patent leather shoes are considered to be in high style with archery costumes.

Young ladies in Paris dress almost entirely in white costumes. When color is worn it is seen upon the sash or in the floral garniture.

French evening dresses of soft white Victoria silk are sometimes arranged with a graceful scarf drapery of the silk crossing the bodice diagonally, and then forming a panier at one side, while at the other side a lighter material of striped gauze, spangled tulle, or lace is also draped a panier.

Of all the modes of bonnets introduced in the beginning of the season, the one which has proved the most popular is the trim little French bonnet of last year, in various modifications—the capote, the jaunty little princess, and a shape much resembling the Marie Stuart bonnet, but not so pronounced in its pointed dent upon the brim.

Cachemire-pattern bands are quite in favor, and are likely to be more so as the autumn approaches. Most of these imported Indian trimmings, with dress fabrics en suite, are of sufficiently high price to add considerable value to the possession of a toilet of this kind. These rich Oriental trimmings are employed only on dark dresses, or those of neutral tint.

Black failles, satins, poplins, watered silk, and also thinner materials, such as grenadines, silk gauzes, and tulle, are all in high fashion. Black silk skirts covered with grenadine plisses and bouillonnes, and accompanied by silk or satin casaques or Jacquettes trimmed with black Spanish lace and jet, make thoroughly elegant toilets, enabling the wearer to vary them by colored trimmings and floral garniture if desired.

Painted lace is very much employed on light dresses of one or more colors, such as pale blue merveilleux and pale pink moiré; the painted lace, colored to correspond with these two shades, would, however, only be used to trim the principal portions of the dress—the sleeves, bodice, and edgings, to the drapery. The flounces, panels, or anything requiring a large amount of garniture would be of the same lace with the designs left uncolored.

The short skirts for the summer are trimmed at the edge with voluminous ruches, chicorées, shell plaits, coquilles, and the like, either of the same or a different material. Many skirts are trimmed nearly to the waist all around alike, or have different arrangements for the front and back, separated by panels. Those trimmed all around are invariably accompanied by the Spanish scarf tied at the back, and draped at the extreme edge of the pointed bodice, or just under the basque which falls over the skirt.

Two novel watering-place toilets are as follows: The first is a dress of dark olive brocaded India gauze over an underskirt of very light blue silk, trimmed with two deep flounces of dark olive-colored Spanish lace. The second dress is of deep gold-colored satin, with over-dress and corsage of coffee-colored lace, and garniture of scarlet geraniums and white marguerites with deep-brown hearts. The sleeves in this last-mentioned dress are dispensed with. Upon the shoulders are placed epaulets formed of the floral garniture of geraniums and daisies.

Sleeves are excessively short, and gloves correspondingly long. Dress skirts are shrinking upward, being short enough all around to display the handsome tinted and embroidered stocking, as well as the shoe. Boots are seldom worn with evening dress, and satin is the favorit material for the very fashionable Beatrice sandals, many of which have floral designs painted on the front, and occasionally along the sides as well. A pretty foot looks far better with a flat decoration than to be heaped up with bows, rosets, and huge buckles. But when there is little or no instep, and the foot has no arch, the addition of these loops and clasps is, of course, an improvement.

It is getting to be quite the fashion this summer to wear the waves of false hair over the forehead which but a short time ago was looked upon by most ladies as too stagey and wig-like to be endured. Even those who were obliged by the scarcity of their own locks to resort to a "switch," which they twisted in with their own back hair, had still a strong dislike to anything in the shape of a coiffure or bandeau for the front of the head. Ladies who find it impossible to keep their own tresses in crimp at the seaside are, however, taking to these substitutes, one after the other, after overcoming a very natural prejudice against them. These artificial waves and short water-curls are now made so ingeniously that it is almost impossible to tell who does and who does not wear them.

Beads are as much the rage as ever. In almost every shape and in every shade of color they glitter on dress, wrap, gloves, parasol, and slipper. This mania is quite as great abroad as with us, judging from the appearance of a Parisian costume lately arrived. This remarkably stylish toilet is made of laurel-green brocade and plain laurel-green satin. The underskirt of the first-mentioned fabric is made quite plain, with an immense coquille ruche at the bottom. Over this are long panels of the plain satin, with a very rich passementerie around the edges in brilliant beads of laurel green, palest turquoise blue, bronze, ruby, and gold, which sparkle like gems amid a delicate network of dark green chenille. The edges of the scarf, which is draped above these panels, the Louis XIV. bodice, the parasol, and brim of the small green satin bonnet all glitter with a mass of the same beads.

Bodices of a thicker material than the skirt are very much in vogue, the latter being of tulle, silk, veiling, or lace, the former made of brocade, satin merveilleux, broché, and this season of velvet also. A very beautiful costume made for a Newport bride has an underdress of white silk covered with ruffles of Oriental lace and pleated frills of the silk. Over this is a Louis Quinze basque of amber and turquoise-blue brocaded satin, trimmed with the lace. At the left side of the square opening in the neck is set a bouquet of marshmallow blossoms and pale blue-bells, mingled with waves of lace. A second dress has a first skirt of dark myrtle-green tulle, worn under a bodice and paniers of green and gold brocaded "May" velvet, garnitured with Renaissance lace ruffles. Over this skirt is an odd scarf sash which mingles with the folds of the panier and the drapery of the tournure, and is caught up here and there with Marshal Neil roses. A dress in this same style has a black Spanish lace and black beaded tulle skirt, with bodice of black Lyons velvet, trimmed with magnificent jet ornaments and jet-beaded lace ruffles. The bodice is without sleeves, and in lieu of these are double fringes of jet pendants, which fall over the arm. A breast-knot of velvet loops, set half-way down the bodice, is brightened by a cluster of crimson roses and two drooping cream-white syringa blossoms, the white and crimson forming a striking contrast to the black velvet surrounding them.

White dresses are exhibited in every style, from the plain white muslin simply trimmed with ruffles of the same to the most costly and delicate toilet of satin and lace. Between these two contrasting models is a wide range of fabrics and garnitures, and one of the leading tissues is white nun's veiling, in cream or ivory tints—a dress of this material being this season almost as general, and as popularly worn upon every occasion as the regulation black-silk toilet has always been, as it is seen alike at church and ball, garden party, funeral, 5-o'clock tea, or wedding, and upon the promenade as well as for indoor-wear. Among a bewildering array of elegant white costumes—some imported, others made in this city—were three toilets of particular beauty. The first was a dinner dress of openwork cream-white veiling and cream-white moiré, the trimming upon the underskirt consisting of a shell-pleated flounce of the veiling, bordered with a flat band of white satin, this pleating being caught up at intervals, making the trimming to fall over the skirt in draped fan-shape. Across the front was a scarf draped a la Grecque, with a deep bordering of the openwork adorning both edges. The Camargo bodice of the moiré was trimmed with satin and lace, and buttoned up the front with Rhine pebbles. Another dress of ivory-white Sicillienne had the plain French gored skirt simply trimmed with a fringed-out ruche of the same, the only other trimming being two broad bands of pale-blue crape, embroidered in silver, which bordered the tunic and the band around the low square opening in the neck. This opening had a high inner chemiset of white tulle laid in soft folds and finished with ivory-white lace. The whole dress formed a chaste and dainty contrast to the many elaborate and high-colored toilets placed in juxtaposition, as did also a third dress of milk-white crape over an underskirt of white surah, trimmed with flounces of the same, edged with crape flutings. Above this was a low-necked, peaked bodice of the surah and an over-waist of the crape.

TO LULU.

For The Chicago Tribune.

Winds of Summer, as ye fly
Through the land,
Sweeping white clouds o'er the sky
In a band—
Touching flower or leafy tree,
Soft and low,
Tossing white waves on the sea,
As you go
Can you find a darling girl,
Once was mine,
Sweet as roses, pure as pearl—
My heart's shrine?
O I love her, love her so,
None can tell;
And I miss her, miss her so,
Though know'st well.
Touch her gently, Summer-wind;
Kiss her sweet;
Love her for me, Summer-wind,
Till we meet.

THE DRAMA.

Miss Mather's Debut, and the Costumes to Be Worn in "Romeo and Juliet."

The event of the year in dramatic circles will undoubtedly be the début of Miss Margaret Mather, which is to occur at McVicker's Theatre, in this city, on the 28th of the present month, the part in which the young lady makes her first appearance being that of Juliet. Ordinarily an event of this character would not call for any considerable amount of preliminary notice by the press, but in the case of Miss Mather the preparations for her advent upon the stage have been of so elaborate and costly a character that in these alone the public will take no inconsiderable interest. Eighteen months ago Miss Mather was a girl unknown outside of her immediate circle of friends and acquaintances. Believing herself to be possessed of dramatic ability, and having a longing for life before the footlights, she secured an interview with manager J. M. Hill, of this city, and to him stated her hopes and desires. Becoming convinced that the girl possessed in a remarkable degree the attributes of success as an actress, Mr. Hill, with the promptness and decision which characterizes all his movements, made a six years' contract with her, and at once began the preparations which will culminate in her appearance three weeks from tomorrow night. As above stated, the play on that occasion will be "Romeo and Juliet," and whatever may be the impression which Miss Mather will make upon the public mind, one thing may be stated now: the piece will be presented in a style of completeness and elegance never before seen in this country, and it is doubtful if even the recent production of the same play by Henry Irving in London surpasses in magnificence of costuming and completeness of scenery that which will be seen at McVicker's.

"I do not claim," said Mr. Hill yesterday in conversation with a TRIBUNE man, "that Miss Mather is a great actress, or that she is by any means a finished one; but I do expect to show the people the best amateur they have ever seen, and one that will certainly develop into an artist of whom this country may well be proud. And should she fail—which I do not for one moment expect—I shall have one great satisfaction, and that is that I am not alone in my opinion as to her greatness. Of course there will be deficiences in her first performances. She may, and probably will, over act in some places, and in others she may be too weak, but these defects are minor ones, and will disappear with experience. Of course she has had the benefit of numerous rehearsals, but these can never take the place of an actual performance on the stage. One public appearance is worth more than six months of rehearsals."

Mr. Hill then led the way to a room in which the costumes to be used in "Romeo and Juliet" were displayed, and an inspection of them was had. In the first two scenes of the play Miss Mather will wear the famous white satin dress made at Paris expressly for her use in this play, and which was described in THE TRIBUNE some weeks ago. The garment is certainly one of the most elegant ever seen upon the stage, but is only in keeping with the other costumes which Mr. Hill has provided. In the third scene Miss Mather will appear in a pink satin dress, hand-embroidered with silk of the same shade as the dress, this work being especially beautiful. The dress is made with a court train, low corsage. In the scene with the Friar another change of costume occurs, a wedding dress of canary-colored silk being used. The garment is draped with lace, and over it will be worn a magnificent lace shawl, the value of which approaches $500. Another garment that will attract attention is a white silk wrapper, with point-lace sleeves below the elbow, and the front trimmed with lace. This is to be worn in the "parting scene," and when placed on a handsome woman should be something more than pretty. In the scene between Juliet and the Friar a cream-colored cashmere will be worn by Miss Mather, the sleeves being cut open and looped with red satin cords. The material is soft and forms a very pretty drapery. This dress is also worn in the potion scene. A plain white satin dress with no ornamentation will be worn in the tomb scene, and in this scene one of the most beautiful effects of the entire performance may be expected. Contrary to the usual style of stage setting, the tomb will be represented as beneath the church, the characters descending by means of a flight of stone steps. Outside the grated door of the tomb a light is burning, so arranged as to bring into strong relief the form of Juliet, and the incidents which lead up to the death of the unhappy girl take place within this chamber.

"I had at first thought," said Mr. Hill, after the dresses had been examined, "not to have Miss Mather wear any diamonds in Juliet, those selected for her being designed for use in 'The Lady of Lyons,' but I have concluded that the use of such jewelry will not be inappropriate. She will, therefore, wear a necklace and earrings. The necklace is composed of twenty-six diamonds, weighing from two to four carats each, which were purchased separately by me, and then mounted in this shape. The smaller stones will be used in the back of the necklace, the increase in size being gradual until the centre of the necklace is reached. The earrings weigh six carats each, and are perfect mates in size and color."

Further inquiry developed the fact that the cost of the necklace was about $11,000, while the earrings represent a small fortune.

In the banquet scene of "Romeo and Juliet" Mr. Hill has introduced a new and pleasing feature by providing rich and appropriate dresses for all the guests, those of the ladies being especially handsome. They are of silk and satin, all different, and are ten in number.

The costume to be worn by young Salvini as Romeo has a body of crimson velvet, turned away at the collar and faced with old gold satin, on which there is some beautiful hand-embroidered vine-work in green satin. The vest is of blue silk ornamented with gold cord. The sleeves of the coat are hooped and puffed, the puffings being in old-gold satin, and the hoops of embossed velvet. The entire garment has a bustle of old gold, with embroidered vines in different shades of blue. The belt which this young hero wears is a very elaborate affair in old gold, with crimson and blue trimmings, the pocket being the same. He will wear sky-blue tights and shoes of embossed velvet the same color as the coat. The cap will be a tight-fitting affair of crimson velvet, four feathers of different colors held together by a silver buckle, and a light blue bow to match the tights. His sword-scabbard will be of the same color.

For the impetuous Tybalt a costume in which blue and gold are the principal colors has been provided. The coat is a light shade of blue, and is covered with black embroidery; the sleeves trimmed with gold lace. At the elbows puffs of black satin are used, these being embroidered in blue. The cape is a dark brown with tinsel woven all over it. The entire garment is faced with black satin, and the tights and cap match it.

Paris will wear a satin coat of light gold color, with green sleeves, puffed at the elbows and shoulders. Garnet trimmings on the sleeves set off the other colors very prettily.

Purple will be the prevailing color of Mercutio's costume, the coat being of velvet, with black satin puffs in the sleeves. It is richly ornamented with dark braid and beads. The front of the coat is faced with black satin, embroidered in purple silk.

"There is one thing I would like to say," remarked Mr. Hill, after the examination of the costumes was over, "and that is in regard to the special train which it was stated I had chartered to convey the critics of the principal Eastern papers to this city. I did contemplate such an idea, but owing to the railroads having entered into a pooling arrangement I was unable to do it unless I brought the people here by one line and returned them by another, and by doing this the train would not touch the points I wish to reach. Therefore the idea has been abandoned, but I am already in receipt of letters from the principal papers in the East and West, asking me to reserve seats on the opening night for their representatives."

"What plays besides 'Romeo and Juliet' are to be produced?"

"During the first week of the engagement," said Mr. Hill, "nothing but 'Romeo and Juliet' will be given. The second week will be devoted to 'Leah, the Forsaken'; and during the third, 'Romeo and Juliet,' 'Leah,' 'As You Like It,' and 'The Lady of Lyons' will be the attractions."

Something New.

Probably no man in the country is better known than Fred J. Engelhardt, or one who stands any better with the amusement-going public. He is original or nothing. His taking a monster whale intact over the whole country proves that. Now he has something new: he has secured Battery D armory and placed in it a number of attractions which are decidedly unique and without duplicates anywhere. Nearly two years ago he negotiated for the only genuine Century Plant in the country which was approaching bloom. Ever since then he has kept a corps of florists caring for it, and when it gave symptoms of flowering he constructed a magnificent tower, seventy-five feet in hight, with over 2,800 lights of glass and beautifully ornamented, to receive it. Last Sunday the plant was brought here by steamer and safely deposited in its house, and is now daily visited by thousands. As it is far larger than any plant of which authentic account is given, it is expected that it will reach seventy-five feet in hight when matured. The last leaves are loosening, and when the flowering stalk begins to grow it will progress at the rate of from ten to fourteen, and possibly twenty, inches a day. It will remain in bloom several months, and during our exposition will receive as much attention as any attraction in the world. In the armory building, which is beautifully decorated and lighted by electricity, Mr. Englehardt has placed a fine collection of marine curiosities, over 600 in number; also Maj. Forbes, of California, who with a common jack-knife whittles the most delicate and marvelous articles to the delight of his spectators. Last week a delegation of Chippewa Chiefs and warriors arrived here, and Mr. Englehardt tendered them the hospitality of his place, and finally concluded an arrangement with them whereby they remained and gave daily exhibitions, afternoon and evening, of their war songs, dances, etc. He has also engaged a fine band, under the direction of Prof. Henry Doehue, which gives grand promenade concerts every afternoon and evening in connection with the other attractions. The armory is open daily from 8 a. m. until 10 p. m.

Dramatic Notes and Announcements.

Robson and Crane open their season at Springfield, Mass., Sept. 25, with D. A. M.

Tomorrow afternoon Robert McWade will begin a week's engagement at the Olympic Theatre, appearing as Rip Van Winkle.

Fred Lotto has signed a contract with Salsbury's Troubadours for next season, replacing and playing the parts assumed by John Gourlay.

Mr. Charles R. Thorne Jr. did not start for San Francisco with the Union Square Theatre company last Thursday. He is still enjoying the sea breezes at Cohasset.

Mlle. Rhéa's picture, which is now being painted in London by Mr. Chartran, who recently was honored by "the first prix de Rome," will be life-size, taken as Juliet.

Mr. D. D. Lloyd, the author of John T. Raymond's new play, "For Congress," is making a change in the last two acts which will add greatly to their effectiveness.

Mr. Willie Edouin contemplates a vacation in Vermont at the close of his engagement at the Museum. Mrs. Edouin has almost entirely recovered from her recent severe illness.

Nate Salsbury arrived from England on Sunday last. He immediately took the boat for the Highlands of Navesink, the home of John Webster, where he will remain until the beginning of the season.

Rose Eytinge was a passenger on the steamship Spain, which arrived from London, England, on Sunday last. Miss Eytinge will at once put her play in rehearsal. Her season begins in Brooklyn Aug. 28.

"Taken from Life" will continue to run at McVicker's this week. A souvenir program will be presented to the audience on the night of Aug. 15, that date being the tenth anniversary of the opening of the present theatre building.

Hooley's Theatre, which has been entirely refitted, and is now one of the handsomest places of amusement in the country, will be reopened next Saturday evening, when the Kiralfys will produce the spectacular drama "Michael Strogoff."

Manager Chase has engaged this company to support Rhéa next season: William Harris, W. G. Reynier, Charles A. McManus, J. C. Amory, Leo Cooper, J. T. Sullivan, B. W. Wilson, Edwin Davis, Sara Von Leer, Ella Wren, Grace Hall, and Eugenia Lindeman.

"Pony" Moore, the senior proprietor of Moore & Burgess' minstrels in London, proposes to visit his son-in-law, Mr. Fred Vokes, in Boston in the autumn. He talks of building a theatre in New York next season on one of the three corner lots he owns on Eighth avenue, above the Grand Opera-House.

The Baldwin Theatre company of San Francisco appear at Hamlin's during the week of the 28th inst. in Belasco's latest, and claimed to be best, adaptation, "American Born." Miss Ada Ward, the noted Australian favorit, together with Mr. Charles Wheatleigh, John Dillon, and others, are in the cast.

The sensational incident in "Luck," Pettitt and Harris' new Drury Lane melodrama, the American rights to which (except for New York City, where Manager Stetson will produce it) have been purchased by Manager Eugene Tompkins, is the collision of two railway trains, for which very elaborate mechanical devices are necessary.

John A. Stevens at last accounts was in Paris. He is to open in "Unknown" at the Surrey Theatre, London, tomorrow. The engagement is for three weeks. He then returns to New York. His wife, Lottie Church, has sued him for divorce. Mr. Stevens has not defended the suit, but has presented her with a fine piece of property at Bath, L. I., and made other provisions for the comfort of herself and child.

Lawrence Barrett will be back from Europe Aug. 13 with his wife and daughter. His company the coming season will be much as it was last and the chief players will be, Louis James, Otis Skinner, Ben G. Rogers, F. C. Mosely, Charles Plunkett, Frederick P. Barton, Percy Winter, Errall Dunbar, Charles Rolfe, Homer Cope, A. T. Riddle, Garric Davidson, Marie Wainwright, Addie Plunkett, and Minnie Monk.

It is said that Lulu, the young man with the Barnum show, who is hurled from a catapult, is a native of Rockland, Me., and has a brother and sister now residing at Vinalhaven in the same State. He was born twenty-six years ago, and at the age of 3 was adopted by Mr. Farini, who trained him as an acrobat, and for years dressed him in girl's clothes and advertised him as a young lady, under the professional name he still bears.

The company playing at the Grand for the last two weeks gives place to the Acme Opera Troupe, who commence an engagement at this house tomorrow evening. Miss Sylvester has shown herself an actress of considerable versatility, and will be always welcome to Chicago. Miss Lillian Dunstan, the young lady who essayed the part of Old Fadet in "Fanchon," has every reason to congratulate herself upon the success of her first professional attempt.

Two noted colored minstrel companies started for Chicago direct yesterday—namely: Haverly's from Liverpool, England, and Callender's from San Francisco. Both are due in this city on the 28th inst., when they are to consolidate, and on the same evening open a "grand inaugural festival of music and merriment" at Hamlin's. Charles Frohman, Robert Filkins, and Charles MacGeachy are now at the Sherman House perfecting the preliminaries of the consolidation.

McKee Rankin resides upon his island (Bois Blanc) in her Majesty's dominions. Last week the customs officials were notified that Rankin was taking over a set of silverware and a mysterious basket from this side in his steam yacht. Upon investigation the officials discovered that the silverware was from Canada and the basket contained a huge watermelon. There was no seizure. The officials were congratulating each other over the "big haul" they were to make, as they would receive three-fourths of the valuation. They departed much crestfallen at their ill luck.

"Flint and Steel, Matrimonial Agents," a sparkling eccentricity from the pen of John F. McArdle, now running successfully in England, has been purchased by Mr. Harry Webber, who will produce it for the first time in America at Cincinnati during the week commencing Aug. 26. Martha Wren, Harry Pearson, Edward Arnott, Nellie Strickland, Eva Webber, and Henry Abbott will take part in the production, and entirely new scenery, painted by Mr. Hughes, the artist of Henck's Opera-House, from models sent by Fred J. Stinson, Theatre Royal, Manchester, will be furnished. The entire company leave for Cincinnati Aug 20.

In the production of "The Romany Rye," at Booth's Theatre, some improvements will be made in the scenery and effects which were not in the original production in London. In the fourth act the steamer will move from the dock and up the stage instead of remaining stationary, as done in England. This will require considerable machinery, as there are between forty and fifty people on the stage who will have to be moved with the ship. In the wreck scene in the last act a new effect will be introduced, showing the phosphorescent light on the water and rise and fall of the waves. This is an original invention of Mr. Ben Sherwood's, and has never been done on any stage before.

The Pall Mall Gazette says of Ristori's second experiment in speaking English at Drury Lane Theatre: As an interpretation her Elizabeth is in advance of her Lady Macbeth. Every aspect of the character as conceived by Giacometti is preserved with fidelity, and the representation has all the beauty and distinction that can be conferred by a method absolutely unequaled. Against these advantages it must be urged that much of the language is unintelligible. When speaking with her face to the audience Signora Ristori is audible. So soon as she turns away her utterance grows indistinct. In the case of Giacometti's prosaic dialog no such familiarity with the text as is experienced in "Macbeth" facilitates for the audience the task of comprehension. The difficulty does not end here. At points in the performance it is evident that the actress, occupied with the task of recalling what is next to be said, forgets her method and grows timid and vacillating in her movements.

Mayor Harrison has written a letter to Mr. H. L. Shepard, who is to be the manager of Mr. Miln, in which he says: "In the summer of 1881 I spent some time at Block Island in company with Mr. George C. Miln. During our walks I frequently heard him recite passages from the plays of Shakspeare for our entertainment. I then formed the opinion that he possessed the elements of a fine actor. At that time, however, he was a clergyman, and not knowing much about his theological views, nor anticipating his abandonment of the ministry, I concluded that whatever fame he might win as a preacher, he might have achieved still greater fame as an actor. I need not say I hope that Mr. Miln will be highly successful."

MUSIC.

A Nonsensical Attack on Beer.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Now that the Thomas concerts are over and the "big saloon" is closed let us see if they have not been demoralizing in some way.

Has it come to pass that music must have intoxicating accompaniment other than the intoxication caused by the music? If not, why are liquors sold at all of the Thomas concerts, and in fact all orchestral concerts, when held in the Exposition Building or Turner Hall? A person who has conscientious scruples against going into a place where liquors are dispensed, and if he or she loves music, and would appreciate and enjoy such grand harmonies as Mr. Thomas grinds out cannot go to these concerts because the "dark beverage of hell" is sold there, and they are indirectly abetting the sale of it. The author of this being a radical total abstinence man could not feel free to go and listen to the concerts, though an enthusiastic lover of music. As an individual I should like to see a reform inaugurated in regard to having liquors sold at large public concerts. There is no doubt that those who would go if beer was sold would go if it was not sold if the music was an attraction, and not have the drinkables form a part of the enjoyment of the music, while those who do not go because liquors are sold would go if they were not; thus the management would retain its regular patrons and secure many new ones. And are there no other evils going on at these places which might be obviated by the discontinuance of the sale of liquors?

Some gay musician may have had a young companion who had never tasted the damnable stuff, but asked by the enthusiast to enjoy the music in a proper (?) way, invites him to a social drink while the next symphony is being stringed and tooted, and being easily tempted, tastes, and is delighted at its effect; takes another, and he feels happy; and what is the result five times out of ten?—a drunkard's grave.

If any reform can be started against the giant evil in this direction, let the prohibition workers go at it. There is no doubt that the revenue arising from the sale of liquors at these concerts is enormous, and I think the receipts of money might be greatly increased by discarding liquors from the hall and giving those a chance to hear the entrancing music who will not patronize a saloon. Musical Gossip.

"Blind John Boone," a colored musical prodigy from Missouri, will give a concert at the Olivet Baptist Church next Wednesday and Thursday nights.

The French papers gravely announce that Mr. Maurice Strakosch intends to have an Italian opera season in Paris next winter, with Miss Emma Thursby and Mlle. de Belocca as chief artists.

"Dorothy, the Pretty Puritaness of Plymouth," is the title chosen for the new comic opera by Bishop and Goodwin, and in the book Cheever Goodwin has burlesqued Miles Standish and his associates.

Miss Arma Harkness, the Boston lady whose success as a violinist in Paris has been mentioned, made a successful appearance in London recently at the forty-eighth annual concert of Sir John Benedict.

Mr. W. J. Comley and wife, Lizzie Harold Comley, are at present salmon fishing north of Edinburg, Scotland. They intend going to Norway and Sweden, and subsequently south. Mrs. Comley will star next season under her husband's management.

Mr. Karl Merz, the well-known Ohio Professor of music and editor of Brainard's Musical World, who has been at Oxford, O., for the past twenty years, has been appointed Professor of Music in the university at Wooster, O. Mr. Merz's long experience undeniably fits him for the post.

Miss Hope Glenn, who has been engaged to accompany Mme. Nilsson upon her concert tour under Manager Abbey's management, is an American lady, formerly a resident of Chicago. She has been singing with success in London and the English Provinces, and is credited with having a very sweet and pure contralto voice.

John McCaull has a new libretto for "The Snake Charmer." It is said to be something witty and of real literary merit. Mr. McCaull thinks it the cleverest book he has seen, and proposes to put it up in brilliant style some time next season, introducing a couple of new songs by Audran, which that composer will write during the summer.

The Hess Acme opera company will be at the Grand Opera-House this week, the following being the program: Monday, "Chimes of Normandy"; Tuesday, "Maritana"; Wednesday matinée, "Bohemian Girl"; Wednesday night, "Bohemian Girl"; Thursday, "Fra Diavolo"; Friday, "Rose Friquet"; Saturday matinée, "The Widow"; Saturday night, "The Bohemian Girl."

Writing of Gilbert and Sullivan's new opera, Howard Paul says: "I hear that the libretto of the new opera to follow 'Patience' is whimsical to the last degree, and that the music keeps step with the words. From the rising of the curtain to the concluding chorus it is a great long guffaw, bursting with animal spirits, and overflowing with fun and the most daring of humorous situations."

Mme. Patti left London for her country seat in Wales after the opera season. She has refused more than one engagement for concerts in the provinces, and will not sing again until her American engagement with Mr. Mapleson. She will probably leave Wales in August, possibly for Paris, where costumes, etc., must be renewed, and afterward for Dieppe, or some other seaside resort. She will then return to Wales, and will sail with Mr. Mapleson in October.

Wilhelmj has written to his family at Wiesbaden, from Naples, to announce his intention of visiting them after the conclusion of his London engagements. He has been away from home nearly four years, during which time he has traveled all over the United States, China, Japan, Persia, and Italy. But for the political troubles he would also have made a tour in Egypt. Wherever he went he has had the warmest reception, and his fellow-countrymen are anxious to give him a crowning ovation. Wagner has sent Wilhelmj a cordial invitation to the "Parsifal" fêtes at Bayreuth.

The cablegram sent the New York Herald from London under date of July 26, stating that "Mlle. Aimée refuses to go to America with Brooks & Dickson, and has signed with Maurice Grau," if true, undoubtedly presages a legal contest. Messrs. Brooks & Dickson have a contract signed by Aimée herself, whereby she binds herself to make a tour in the United States "to commence on or about Sept. 21, 1882, for thirty weeks or longer," "company to be called the Aimée French company," and either party failing to keep the contract by its terms, forfeits $10,000 to the other. If Mlle. Aimée comes to America to play under any other management, Messrs. Brooks & Dickson will enforce the terms of the contract.

At the Theatre du Chatelet, Paris, a ladies' battle took place behind the scenes a few days ago. The action began between two ballet dancers, to extend rapidly along the choreographic troupe, and scratches were so freely exchanged that a couple of male spectators had the ridiculous idea of interfering, but had to beat a speedy retreat, which they turned to account by a squaring up to each other, and history saith both came out of the fray considerably damaged. The excitement of the company during the double conflict was so great that a general engagement seemed imminent, but luckily the curtain went up at the critical moment. A lavish imposition of fines cooled the warlike ardor of the Châtelet ballerines.

HOPE.

For The Chicago Tribune.

O spirit! pausing on the threshold here
To speak, when clamorous welcome dies away,
The far-off sunshine breaks upon thy face
From happy regions full of waiting light.
Blue skies have fallen asleep within thine eyes,
To waken over days as calm, as blest
As any we have known. Thus speaks the heart,
And we would fain believe the prophecy.
We cast upon the winds our withered flowers,
And follow where thy tender, rosy feet
Press even now through paths of blushing dawn.

JULIA H. THAYER.

Shooting a Frog.

Hartwell (Ga.) Sun.

A gentleman from Hartwell, Ga., sent on to the Great Western Gun Works and purchased a small parlor rifle, with 1,000 cartridges of the smallest size, the bullet being about the size of a duck shot. He went over to Benson's millpond frog hunting, and found a very large frog of the masculine gender sitting on a stump just above the water. He shot twenty-seven times at him, when his frogship lost his balance and dropped into shallow water. Upon taking the frog out it was found that he had swallowed twenty-six of the bullets, catching them in his mouth, supposing them to be flies. When he went to move, the weight of the lead carried him overboard, and when taken out was not dead but awful sullen. Western guns work frogs very slowly in this section. You need not believe this tale if you can't swallow a whale.

REAL ESTATE.

Business in Land Overcome by Midsummer Dullness, but Heavier than a Year Ago—Lots in Constant Demand—Building Not Keeping Up with the Increase of Population—Work on Pavements and Sewers During the Year—New Enterprises Settling in Hyde Park.

A steady demand for cheap lots in the vicinity of manufacturing centres is almost the only sign of activity visible in the real-estate market. Inside property, which is investment real estate, and acres which are for speculation, are inactive, as is natural in midsummer. The almost universal expectation is in favor of higher prices and considerable activity in the fall. New attention is being given to boulevard property, and desirable pieces find buyers at moderate prices. The city has many streets and avenues, but there are few boulevards in connection with the parks, and property on them must have a special value in the future.

But few notable sales were made during the week. James S. Waller sold 62¼x125 feet on the Washington boulevard with 50x93¾ feet in the rear for $15,000; N. B. Lent purchased 57x163½ feet on the Michigan boulevard of S. A. Kent, north of Twenty-eighth street, for $20,500; 25x178 feet, with house, No. 2824 Prairie avenue, sold to C. V. Hickox for $18,000; the Connecticut Mutual sold 43¾x153 on Fifth avenue, south of Jackson street, for $44,000. Some other sales were: Southwest corner of Washington boulevard and Paulina street, 88x122, improved, $18,000; 597 3-10x264 on Sheffield avenue, northwest corner of Noble street, $14,000; 25x178 on Prairie avenue, north of Twenty-ninth street, improved, $17,500; 2 8 5-12x100 on State street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth, $83,366; 50x150 on Washington boulevard, southwest corner of Sheldon street, $18,000; 100x161¼ feet on Prairie avenue, 100 feet south of Thirty-ninth street, by S. D. and D. D. Spencer, $13,500.

Simeon B. Buckner has sold to Josiah L. Hathaway a lot on Kingsbury street, northwest corner of Indiana street, east front, 297 feet to river, for $59,850, and John J. Simmons has transferred to Charles A. Taylor a lot on West Madison street, 110.3 feet east of Desplaines street, south front, consideration $12,000. A lot on West Monroe street, between Loomis and Laflin, 26x189 feet, improved, was sold by E. M. and S. W. Rowson to James H. Pearson, for $15,000, and a lot on Ellis avenue, northwest corner of Clinton avenue, east front, 67½x180 feet, by the estate of John B. Palmer to Thomas Brown Jr., for $32,000.

J. W. Farlin has sold a number of lots in Bickerdike's Addition in Maplewood, for $300 and $400 apiece, several lots on West Erie street for $900 apiece. He has just opened a new subdivision of five or six acres at Fifty-eighth and School streets.

Fifty feet on Michigan avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth streets, west front, have been sold for $250 a foot, an advance of $10 a foot on previous prices.

Real estate was very dull in July as compared with the preceding months, and was more active than in July, 1881. The following table shows the number of transfers for the month of July:

Location.	No.	Consideration.
City property	626	$3,180,853
South of city limits	131	336,500
West of city limits	85	211,262
North of city limits	120	172,775
Total	962	$3,901,465
Previous month	902	4,100,806
For seven months of 1882	7,238	31,199,810
For seven months of 1881	5,952	28,533,562
For seven months of 1880	4,413	19,691,051

Frank P. Whipple has sold two lots, Wallace and Thirty-ninth streets, for $490 each; two cottages and lots, Butterfield and Thirty-fifth streets, for $1,850 each; two lots, Emerald avenue and Thirty-ninth street, for $475 each; 44 feet on West Monroe street, near Seely avenue, for $4,400; one lot, Thirty-fifth street, near Dashiel street, $750; cottage and lot, Twenty-third street, near Portland avenue, for $900; house and lot in Maywood for $2,250; two lots on Wentworth avenue, near Thirty-fifth street, for $2,000; lot on Portland avenue, near Thirty-first street, for $725; lot on Wabash avenue, north of Thirty-ninth street, for $2,125; cottage and lot, Emerald avenue and Twenty-sixth street, for $1,100.

W. P. Larkin has sold at Humboldt Park and Garfield, during the week ending Aug. 5, the following real estate: To M. Lynch, Lots 15 and 16, in Block 13, Delamater's Subdivision, $725; to E. S. Shipley, house and lot on Humboldt street, $1,475; to S. G. Cox, house and lot on Heine street, $2,500; to H. Baumgart, Lot 3 in Hosmer & Rogers' Subdivision, $450; to H. J. Kordt, Lot 32 in Fairfield & Tudor's Subdivision, $425; to E. Walter, Lot 53 in Hosmer & Rogers' Subdivision, $500; to C. A. Henthorn, Lot 86 in Hosmer & Rogers' Subdivision, $710.

Saturday's Transfers.

The following instruments were filed for record Saturday, Aug. 5:

South of city limits	30	90,861
West of city limits	24	34,825
Total	184	$ 729,218
Total previous week	195	754,846

A Considerable Amount of Building Under Way.

Building is active in a small way. The needs of our additional population for houses have outrun the supply, and with the fulfillment of the present promise for the crops the chances are that Chicago will see an extraordinary amount of building during the next twelve months. In the permits of the week were those to J. C. McElroy, three-story store and dwelling, 39x60 feet, Nos. 1001 and 1003 West Lake street, to cost $10,000; John McEwen, four-story and basement factory, 41x90 to 150 feet, No. 243 North Wells street, to cost $35,000; H. Fürst, three-story flats, 60x44 feet, Nos. 514, 516, and 518 Union street, to cost $10,000; P. Schneider, three-story store and dwelling, 26x100 feet, No. 247 North avenue, $10,000; J. L. Campbell, four two-story dwellings, 20½x36 feet, No. 57 De Kalb street, $8,000; F. Larned, six two-story dwellings, 120x41 feet, on Stanton avenue, $15,000; William Sebastian, three-story and flat, Nos. 353 and 355 Sedgwick street, $12,000; C. Kanler, three-story and flat, No. 1019 Madison street, $9,000; Johnson & Arneson, four-story factory, 50x156 feet, Nos. 239 and 241 Noble street, $8,000; Fred Wasco, three-story store and dwelling, 20x85 feet, No. 197 Division street, $13,000; Brunswick & Balke, five-story warehouse, 100x64, No. 111 Huron street, $30,000; Hammond Library, two-story library building, 48x65, Ashland avenue, near Warren, $15,000; J. L. Campbell, two-story dwelling, 21x36, No. 426 Leavitt street, $15,000; J. Goldenberg, three-story store and dwelling, 31x82 feet, No. 2800 Wentworth avenue, $15,000; E. B. Sheldon, three-story flats, Nos. 14 and 16 Lincoln avenue, $8,000.

C. O. Hansen, architect, is building four apartment houses on Hurlbut street, near Garfield avenue. Each is three stories high, and costs $6,500. He is building a flat 25x68 on Sedgwick street, by Webster avenue. It has seven rooms on the first floor and eight rooms on the second floor. The cost will be $11,000.

At the Stock-Yards Armour & Co. are putting up a brick building 64x46 feet, the stone foundation of which is nearly completed, on the west side of their main building. It is intended to shelter the boilers, engines, and working fixtures of the cold-air machines which they have recently placed in operation. Near the site of this new building they are sinking an artesian well, which has already attained the depth of 850 feet. It has a bore of 4⅝ inches. Their large stables are being enlarged by a brick addition.

The Chicago Tack Company have completed at Grand Crossing a new building 50x26 feet, two stories high, to be used as a storehouse.

The American Architect says that, notwithstanding the high prices of labor and materials, the aggregate of building operations in New York during the past six months surpasses that for a like period at any time within the history of the city. Between Jan. 1 and July 1 1,365 permits were issued from the Bureau of Buildings for new structures and 1,998 permits for alterations. The total estimated cost of the new buildings was more than $26,000,000, or nearly $20,000 apiece, but this high average is partly due to an unusual proportion of very expensive structures, such as office-buildings and apartment-houses. The latter, particularly, are steadily advancing in popularity, and the more recent ones are constructed with great thoroughness and a corresponding outlay of money. The fashion of lofty building has spread rapidly, and structures of nine and ten stories are becoming common.

About two and one-quarter miles of the Washington boulevard have been completed as far as the roadway is concerned. The amount of money expended thus far upon the improvements, Mr. Woodward places at about $145,000, the amount of the entire assessment being $316,000. The cost of the roadway was $78,073; the sidewalks, $35,185; and trees, $3,576.

The Importance of Good Sand for Mortar.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—There appears to be a good deal of looseness in the letting of contracts for buildings of an important character in this city, and the looseness consists in a matter which is one of vital importance to the welfare of the community. Persons who are building private residences, or other structures, may be supposed to know what they are doing when they make contracts, yet a practical observer cannot help noting the alarming effect which the "cheap and nasty" system is liable to have upon not only our public but our private buildings, and, incidentally, upon matters that concern the people at large. In letting a contract there is usually nothing said about the quality of sand—one of the essential elements in the durability of a structure—and the contractor is left free to use what he can find ready to his hand. As everybody knows, good sand takes a hold on brick, resulting in a solid material that may defy the most considerable storms and accidents. The mouldy stuff found in the dug-out basements is easier to get at, and cheaper, and this is what too many contractors are putting in, oblivious to the result of erecting a wall which is just about in the same condition as one made of plain brick without any mortar at all. Several such structures are now being erected on this plan, and it occurs to me that it is a matter justifying interference on the part of the authorities. In a building at the corner of State and Twenty-second streets this material is being used, as well as in other places. The owners may not be aware of it, and in one sense it is their own lookout. But in the event of a fire in the top story of one of these structures, the under part giving way would result in dire disaster to the men the city employ to protect its interests. I ask if it is not part of the duty of the Superintendent of Buildings to see that in the construction of buildings of an important character material should be employed which will reasonably insure safety to neighbors in the event of a fire. Hyde Park Real Estate.

The demand for property in Hyde Park during the past week has been generally good. The proposed occupation of Oakland Square by the Chicago City Railway Company and the increased facilities afforded to suburban residents by the Cottage Grove avenue cable system now rapidly approaching completion will undoubtedly draw numbers of people to that vicinity. Quite a number of new houses are going up in Oakland and numerous street improvements are being made.

At Kenwood several residences are in process of erection, and the demand for property, especially along the lake-shore, is strong. The demand for houses to rent is far in excess of the supply. A large number of houses built during last winter at Hyde Park have been all rented and none are to be had at present.

The prospect of the location of several large enterprises in the Calumet region has caused a slight increase in values and a feeling of encouragement among real-estate men interested in that region. At Stony Island, near the crossing of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis and the Chicago & Western Indiana Roads, two lots 35 by 135 feet were sold last week for $900 and $700 each. There is a large demand at South Chicago and vicinity for lots on long time by laboring men employed in the factories which are springing up on every side.

Mr. Davis, who recently purchased the South Chicago Hotel, will proceed at once to erect a large brick block on the corner of Ninety-second street and Commercial avenue. The block will contain a hall of large size, the lower story being used for stores and offices, and the whole will cost about $50,000.

Lake View.

Although this is the dull season of the year for real estate, there is a great deal of inquiry for houses and residence sites, and a large number of sales have been made at the price asked for by the owners. This is especially true in what is known as the Lake-Shore district, north of Lincoln Park, and which contains very choice residence property, and as good as can be found anywhere. Among the sales that have taken place the past week we note the purchase by Mr. F. L. Baldwin of the Greenleaf homestead on Melrose street. Mr. E. R. Bacon, of the Board of Trade, has bought ninety-four feet on Wellington avenue, corner of Waubun, at $50 per foot. Baird & Bradley also report the sale of three lots (north front) on Wellington avenue, east of Waubun, at $40 per foot. Mr. Charles Linderman has bought about five acres from the Ogden estate, on the corner of Sheffield avenue and Noble street, for $14,000. A number of other important sales have been made which only await the abstract-makers before being closed.

MORTALITY STATISTICS.

Frank Smith, 1½ months, No. 7 Ruble street; gastro-enteritis.

Lizzie Arens, 11 months, Clay street; cerebro-spinal meningitis.

Arthur Broking, 1 year 7 days, No. 9 Ruble street; eclampsia.

William Green, 11 months 3 days, No. 429 Elston avenue; diphtheria.

Lena Hoppe, 15 days, No. 2936 Laurel street; inflammation of the bowels.

Clara Ruttkowski, 8 months, No. 978 West Twentieth street; cholera infantum.

Lizzie Huels, 4 months, No. 2 James street; heart-disease.

Amanda Anna Wicki, 2 years, No. 896 West Fourteenth street; malignant scarlet-fever.

Theophilas Staupolski, 8 months, No. 12 Julian street; gastro-enteritis.

The Stolen Body of the Earl.

London Telegraph, July 19.

Yesterday the Dunecht mystery was partially solved by the discovery of the missing body of the late Earl of Crawford and Balcarres. The real perpetrators of this barbarous act of desecration have not yet been detected, though there is reason to hope that this wished-for consummation may yet be attained. The man now in custody states that shortly after midnight on the date of the crime—in May, 1881—he was poaching on the wooded "policies" of Dunecht, and that during his peregrinations in the semi-darkness he came upon a party of four men, whose suspicious movements had a short time previously attracted his attention. When he came close upon them they were busily engaged in burying the body. Upon their observing the intruder, the strangers set upon him, threw him down, and presented a revolver at his head. At that moment, however, his assailants, by the nets and other gear which he carried, discovered the nature of his occupation. He was accordingly sworn to keep the matter of the desecration secret, with the alternative of certain dreadful penalties and on so promising was allowed to go his way. The man who has made this statement, and is in custody, is named Charles Sutor. He is about 41 years of age. His declaration was made voluntarily. He is not believed to have been one of the actual perpetrators of the crime, and has only now revealed the secret because of the weight with which, as he says, it continued to press on his mind. It is proved beyond doubt that he is the "Nabob" so often mysteriously mentioned in the course of the investigations.

THE EXPOSITION.

Preparations for the Approaching Exhibit of Machinery and Fine Arts.

With the approach of fall comes with great regularity the note of preparation at the Exposition Building for the annual display so dear to the heart of the rural visitor to Chicago. The work of getting ready for an exhibit as large as that annually made upon the Lake-Front is no mean undertaking, but years of experience have led to the simplification of the task, and by the time that the appointed day for opening the show arrives order has been evolved from chaos, and the city has a show for sight-seers to visit worthy its reputation as the inland metropolis of the United States. Believing that some details of the work which has been done this year and of that which remains to be done would be of interest, a reporter yesterday sought out Mr. J. P. Reynolds, the old-time Secretary of the Exposition, and asked him for information on these points.

Mr. Reynolds said that the allotment of space to exhibitors was substantially finished. Every inch of available space on the ground floor had been taken, and the requests for space in the galleries had overrun their capacity. The demand was larger than that of last year, and in all branches there would be numerous novelties shown. Of course, the general line of exhibits, manufactures, etc., continues the same from year to year, but the goods shown are all new and mark the progress made since the last display. This year there will be three or four exhibits of electric lights and electric appliances generally, and the Exposition will be specially rich in its display of processes of manufacture.

CHANGES AND IMPROVEMENTS

have been made or will be made in all departments. The big engine will occupy its old position, and machinery in motion will still be placed at the north end of the building. Since last year the city has taken a space of 28x130 feet in the northern annex for an engine house, and this will cause some crowding in the department of agricultural implements, which will have to be extended into the northern end of the main building. All the principal dry-goods and carpet houses, jewelers, dealers in textile fabrics, furniture, and articles of household use or personal adornment will be represented, and with more varied display than heretofore. Visitors from the country will, as usual, be afforded an opportunity for a trip in the big elevator and a sight of Chicago from the point of vantage thus attained.

There will be no fruit display at the south end this year, the space formerly devoted to this purpose being given up to the food exhibits, canned goods, and the like. The conservatory in the transept will be curtained off and heated by steam, thus rendering it available for a display of rare exotics which have been specially obtained at a cost of several thousand dollars. The central fountain will softly murmur over the heads of visitors, who can indulge at once in resting their wearied limbs and gazing upon the finny wonders of the aquarium. The Fish Commissioners of Illinois and neighboring States have made extra efforts this year to furnish this department with a fine display of fish, and it will no doubt be of interest to all. In the galleries there will be shown many of the lighter objects of miscellaneous goods, for which there is no longer room on the main floor, and the display of natural history and mineral specimens will be larger and of more diversified interest than ever before.

THE GREATEST IMPROVEMENT

noticeable in a brief trip through the building was that which is being made in the Art Gallery. New hardwood floors have been put in all the rooms, which are further adorned with dadoes of sea-grass matting and rich cloth hangings. New skylights have been put in and all the ceilings repainted. The first room, in which are the bas-reliefs, will be devoted to the selections from the collection of Mr. Claghorne, of Philadelphia, illustrating the progress of engraving from the earliest times to the present. A great many pictures have already arrived and will be put in place as the decorative work is completed, which will be within a few days. Mr. Reynolds said he believed the art display this season would be specially attractive and include many valuable works new to Chicago.

Last evening closed the summer-night concerts, and the Exposition people now have control of the south half of the building. Tomorrow the partitions will be torn down and the booths removed to the places which they are to occupy during the seven weeks' show. By Aug. 15 all will be ready for installing exhibits, and the Exposition will open on the evening of Wednesday, Sept. 6. The musical program to be offered this year will be exceptionally good, a large orchestra with Liesegang as conductor having been engaged. There will be a number of solo artists, including the cornetist Liberati, and performances will be given both afternoon and evening. As usual the Exposition will open at 8 a. m. and close at 10:30 p. m., and 25 cents will be the price of admission, entitling a visitor to remain fourteen hours in the show if he wishes to do so. A number of railroad excursions have been or are being arranged, and it is believed that the attendance at Chicago's big show this year will be much larger than in any previous season.

THE KLEIN BURGLARY.

Officer Haines in His Own Behalf.

Richard Buckley and his gang of crooks, including Frank Johnson, who confessed to the Klein burglary, Mike McNulty, and Mike Grady, were arraigned before Justice Woodman yesterday charged with the burglary to which Johnson confessed and implicated his pals. The case was continued for ten days, the defendants being held in bonds of $2,000 each. Officer Haines, who has figured in this case considerably, says that some of the statements made reflecting on him were unfair. He says that after a reward had been offered by Mr. Klein, who placed $850 in his (Haines') hands, an arrangement was made with Officer Fitzgerald, by which the latter was to meet the thieves and receive the goods. Officer Fitzgerald was to let the thieves understand that on giving up the plunder they would receive the money referred to; but, according to Haines, this was only a "blind," and the thieves were to be captured as soon as they put in an appearance. This shrewd and deep-laid scheme, which could hardly have imposed on a child, did not work with the thieves, who had got $1,200 worth of silk in their possession, and who, distrusting the promise, did not keep the appointment, though Officer Fitzgerald finally got the goods. Haines says Capt. O'Donnell did not compel him to return the money to Mr. Klein.

YACHTING.

What the Amateur Sailors Are Doing on the Lakes.

The Viking is at Old Mission, and will sail from there to Charlevoix.

Mr. Wilder is cruising along the east shore of Lake Michigan in his yacht Nameless.

The Idler started on a cruise to Mackinaw last evening, and will probably be followed by the Countess tonight.

The Cora sailed for Mackinaw on Thursday. Commodore Griswold was accompanied by his son, and will be joined at Sturgeon Bay by Messrs. Fitch and Fleming.

Mr. A. Booth's new steam-yacht was launched Friday afternoon. It was christened Alfred Booth. It will soon be ready for service, and great things are expected of her by the owner.

Mr. G. W. Rodgers, owner of the Harry Burke, has had his gallant craft provisioned and all ready for a three weeks' cruise, but owing to business engagements has been unable to get away.

A postal from Commodore Griswold, dated Friday, gives the information that the Cora arrived at Kenosha at 10 a. m. on that day. The run from Chicago was made against head-wind and quite a sea. The Commodore reports all well.

The Hon. Jesse Spalding, Collector of this port, who is President of the Sturgeon Bay Canal Company, has notified the Chicago Club that the canal is henceforward a free passage for the yachts of the club and those belonging to its members. The courtesy is appreciated by the club, and is withal a graceful compliment from Collector Spalding, and perfectly characteristic of the man.

The Idler has been at Miller Brothers' yard for a day or two receiving a new mast. Thursday last, having completed her repair, and while lying at the wharf ready to go down the river to her anchorage in the basin, a mud-scow ran into her and carried away her bowsprit. Her owner, Mr. Fisher, says if the lubberly canalboats and the pugnacious bridgetenders will allow him to he will eventually reach his anchorage.

In the cruise to Mackinaw no two yachts have started at the same time. It is the intention of Commodore Griswold to remain at Mackinaw with the flagship Cora until the arrival of the Viking, Idler, and Countess. The latter two yachts will cruise in Lake Superior for about two weeks. The Cora will spend a week or more in the vicinity of Traverse Bay. Col. Loomis in the Viking has started out to make the rounds of the lake shore, stopping at all the ports on both shores. The fleet will return on or before Aug. 29, as the regular club-meeting will be held on that day, at which time arrangements will be made for the September regatta. The Cora now holds the Fisher Cup, and it is expected that the Wasp, Harry Burke, and Nameless will compete for the prize, although Capt. Prindiville, with the Wasp, is the only one who has as yet challenged Commodore Griswold. The Countess is expected to sail the Idler for the Chicago Club Cup about the same time, and the races will possess many points of interest to lovers of the sport.

THE IRISH POLICE.

Threatened Trouble in the Ranks—Reasons Therefor as Detailed by an Ex-Member.

DUBLIN, Aug. 4.—A strike among the Irish constabulary is threatened. The discontent among the men is widespread, and between 5,000 and 10,000 threaten to resign. They demand increased pay and quicker promotion.

The foregoing telegram was shown to Mr. James Hackett, an ex-member of the Irish constabulary, or rather of that branch of it known as the Dublin Metropolitan Police, yesterday, at the office of Mr. Frank Parmelee's stables, where Mr. Hackett is now employed. On being asked as to the amount of truth contained in the dispatch he replied: "There is no doubt that very widespread dissatisfaction prevails among the force, but not exactly for the reasons stated, although these have had considerable influence in increasing the dissatisfaction. In the first place, it should be stated that the real cause of discontent is the nature of the duties which the men are called on to perform. Their principal duties for the past three years have been to assist at evictions, to carry out the behests of the Irish landlords, and to make searches of farmers' houses for arms. Now many, fully one-half, perhaps, of the force, are drawn from the ranks of the farming classes. I have known hundreds of instances where sub-constables served at evictions in Kildare and Meath on the very day when their own fathers were being evicted in Limerick or Down. That they could not relish their employment under the circumstances is not very strange. Another cause of discontent among the best men is that they are associated with some of the lowest and meanest ruffians in the country. The Government would be afraid, and there is good reason for their dread, to have the companies stationed in the country villages made up wholly of men of respectable parentage. Consequently, out of every five men, the usual allotment to a village sub-station, two or three may be of the farmer son class, while the others will be the sons of bailiffs, landlord understrappers, or the morganatic sons of landlords, who usually play the part of spies on their better comrades. Then, again, the Irish policeman bears no resemblance to an American policeman, or to a policeman in any other country that I know of. The Irish policeman is expected to persecute and not protect the people.

HIS PROSPECT OF PROMOTION

depends on the amount of annoyance which he gives to the people. Should he be considered too lenient by his superior officers—and leniency to them means politeness to the people and some degree of consideration in dealing with them—he is subjected to fines and penalties. The Irish police force in fact is looked upon by the Dublin Castle officials as a political engine directed against the wishes and feelings of the people, whom the Castle officials regard as mere rent-producing animals.

"If there is not to be a strike or a revolt among the Irish constabulary now," continued Mr. Hackett, "you may be sure that there will, and the question of pay will have little to do with it. The strike will be almost entirely owing to the nature of the duties which the men are called upon to perform."

"What about the question of promotion?"

"Oh, that has very little to do with it. The respectable, decent fellows of the force hardly expect promotion. They will not do the very dirty work required of them in order to secure promotion. The persons who are advanced in the force are such men as Jeremiah Stringer, who attained such notoriety during the Parnell-Dillon trial in 1879. His character for sobriety, decency, or manliness does not stand very high, but he has been a persecutor of the people; he is backed by landlord influence, and was appointed special detective at a special salary, and had his expenses paid. When Dublin became too hot to hold him he was transferred to Enniskillen with the rank of Head Constable, and was specially complimented by Mr. Forster. All rewards go to favorits. I remember when Mr. Deudson, Lord Mayor of Dublin, complained of the fines imposed on the Metropolitan police, that Forster said the rewards bestowed on the worthy officers were fully equal to the fines. But as I said before, the recipients of the rewards are Castle favorits, and such persons as Jeremiah Stringer, Mallon, who arrested Parnell, got $250 for that job, and Thorpe, the Police Instructor, who wrote out the warrant for Forster's use, got $125, and so it goes."

"Was there any tendency to strike in your time?"

"Yes, but some person gave the thing away, and the leaders were separated or were mixed up. I was one of the parties who waged a

GENERAL LAYING DOWN OF ARMS,

but it could not be proved against me at the time, but I was, until I quit the force, under watch."

"What was the occasion of your quitting?"

"About the time that Mr. Parnell was arrested and John Dillon rearrested there was considerable excitement in Dublin. There was a meeting to express indignation, and when the crowd was about to disperse some of the over-officious police irritated some of the people known in Dublin as 'corner boys,' or 'roughs' as you call them. The latter threw stones, and, instead of directing the men to arrest the stone-throwers, the officers directed them to attack the people who were going from the meeting. Many respectable men were clubbed. The affair was made the subject of inquiries in the House of Commons, and many English members were very severe in their censure of the police on the occasion. Forster, then Secretary, was irritated, and he determined at once to have revenge. He caused the police to be wholly withdrawn from the streets of Dublin for fully three days. They were sent on what is called special duty, given their meals at irregular times, and plied with drink. During the three days the 'corner boys' had it all their own way in Dublin. Windows were broken, petty thefts were common—in fact, the roughs behaved as roughs will on such occasions. Forster pointed to this state of things as denoting necessity for severe measures on the part of the police officials. On the evening of the third day we were drawn up to receive instructions from Mr. Talbott, the Dublin Chief. These instructions were of such a nature that I went up to Mr. Talbott and said to him that I always considered that my duty was to preserve, not to incite to a breach of the peace. He refused to listen to me—told me to take my place in the ranks. I refused, stepped back, with three others—Whalen, Brennau, and Addingham, the two latter Ulster Presbyterians—and THREW DOWN MY ARMS.

I made affidavit to these facts at the time, and everything I said was corroborated by an affidavit made by Dr. Richard Fitzgerald, of the Richmond Hospital, Dublin. When men are asked to club innocent people, as I was then asked to do, do you wonder that there should be dissatisfaction? I am not surprised at the information conveyed in the dispatch. The boys were preparing for it before I left. It will come."

THE SCOVILLES.

Suit for Divorce by the Madame.

The long-threatened bill for divorce of Mrs. Frances M. Scoville against her husband George Scoville was filed yesterday in the Circuit Court. She states that on the 1st day of January, 1853, she was married to George Scoville, and has had by him four children, three of whom are of age and one, Bertha Catherine, is now 9 years old; that since her marriage she has always behaved herself toward her husband as a chaste, dutiful, and affectionate wife, but that he on the 1st of May last, at No. 70 Monroe street, shook her and twisted her arm in anger and with extreme cruelty; also, that on or about the 13th of June last he again, in anger and with extreme cruelty shook her and twisted her arm, "and that at divers other times and places since said marriage he has been guilty of ill-treatment and repeated cruelty toward your oratrix, making her life miserable." On this account Mrs. Scoville asks that she may be divorced and forever freed from the bonds of matrimony now existing between her and her husband, and may have such other and further relief in the premises as equity may require. Mr. R. P. Blanchard appears as attorney for Mrs. Scoville.

"DOCTOR JAMES."

The Notorious Specialist Admitted to Bail.

Judge Drummond yesterday entered an order staying proceedings in the case of the notorious Smith Whittier, alias "Dr. James." Whittier, who is an old offender, was recently convicted before Judge Blodgett of sending obscene matter through the mails, and sentenced to three years in State's Prison. He obtained a respite twice on promising not to try to get his sentence changed, and then used the time in applying for a writ of review. The only objection to the sentence is a technical one: that he was not present in court when the verdict was read. Judge Drummond said the authorities were at variance on this point, and as there was a doubt in the matter he would grant the writ of error and a stay of proceedings until the case could be argued. In the meantime Whittier is to be allowed to roam at large on giving $2,000 bail.

BASE-BALL.

Chicago Now Virtually a Tie with Providence in the Championship Race.

Success of Chicago at Boston Yesterday, and Defeat of Providence at Cleveland.

Detroit Beaten by Worcester the First Time This Year—Other Games—Ball Gossip in General.

The League Championship.

The effect of the past week's play has been to place Providence two games in the lead over Chicago—an advantage less formidable than appears on its face, as it has been gained by playing a larger number of games. Providence has played fifty-eight games, or three more than Chicago, and has twenty-six yet to play, while Chicago has twenty-nine. The two clubs are in fact almost precisely a tie. Providence has won 62 per cent of the games played; Chicago has won 61⅘ per cent. Considering the fact that Chicago has three more games to play than Providence, the standing of the two clubs is as nearly even as is possible. Last year Chicago won 66⅔ per cent of the games played—that is, two out of every three—and Providence won 55 per cent. Neither club will reach the same percentage this year. This week Chicago has one game with Boston and three with Providence, while the latter has only the games with Chicago. Should Chicago win tomorrow's game from Boston and take two out of three from Providence the score would be a tie in games won, but the advantage of the situation would still be with Chicago by reason of the larger number of games remaining to play. Detroit has one game with Worcester and two with Troy, and Boston has one game with Chicago and three with Cleveland. The week is therefore a critical one for the four leaders. The standing of the different clubs at the close of yesterday's play was as follows:

	Boston	Buffalo	Chicago	Cleveland	Detroit	Providence	Troy	Worcester	Games won	Games yet to play
Boston	—	4	3	4	4	5	3	7	30	27
Buffalo	2	—	6	6	2	3	3	5	27	29

Chicago 12, Boston 2.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—Bobby Matthews was put in by Manager Morrill to pitch today, and the Chicagos took to him very kindly from the outset, batting him as they pleased. On the other hand, Goldsmith pitched so effectively that the hits of the local team were scattering and few in number. In addition to this, he was elegantly supported, and in respect to fielding the Bostons did well in the main, Wise distinguishing himself by making a wonderful one-hand stop, and Hornung and Rowen making some beautiful catches. The attendance was 2,200.

Cleveland 2, Providence 1.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 5.—The Clevelands managed to down the Providence team today in a closely-contested game by the small score of 2 to 1. In the fourth inning Glasscock got first on a fumble by Wright, stole second, went to third on a put-out, and scored on Muldoon's double. In the same inning Ward tied the score for Providence, making a two-bagger, taking third on a passed ball, and scoring on York's single. There the game stood until two hands were out for Cleveland in the ninth inning, when Muldoon got a base hit, took second on Nava's wild throw, and tallied the winning run on Esterbrook's two-bagger. The visitors both outbatted and outfielded the home team. Seven hundred and fifty spectators were present. Esterbrook has recovered from his attack of malaria.

Worcester 9, Detroit 5.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 5.—The Worcesters batted Derby very freely today, especially in the fourth inning, when singles by Corey, Irwin, and Hayes, three basers by Stovey and Bushong, and a home run by Creamer earned four runs. The Detroits batted well but couldn't bunch their hits. The fielding was loose on both sides. The Worcesters will release O'Brien, who is playing very poorly, and have engaged McGloughlin, of the Atlantics, for short-stop. Wood of the Detroits was fined $50 for being out all night.

Gossip of the Game.

Troy is playing short for the Alaskas of New York.

Clifton Carroll is the name of the new Providence player.

Corey, of the Worcesters, will play with the Athletics next year.

Will White and Snyder have signed with the Cincinnatis for next season.

More home runs have been made this season than at any time since the adoption of the dead ball.

At Troy, N. Y., the umpire, McLean, fined Whitney, of the Boston, $10 for questioning his decisions on balls and strikes.

Bohn, who has been pitching for the Louisville nine lately, and has not proven a success, has signed with the Atlantics, of Brooklyn.

Mike McGeary is to try his luck again as a manager. Report has it that he will endeavor to stir up the old fever in Springfield, Mass.

But two of the famous old Atlantics of Brooklyn, are now on the diamond. Ferguson, of Troy, is one, and Start, of Providence, the other.

The American Association, it is said, will admit but two new clubs next season. New York and Milwaukee are mentioned as the successful applicants.

The Courier says the Buffalos are paid "to play ball and not to get drunk." Manager O'Rourke is out in a public letter denying that they do get drunk.

The New York Clipper states that a first-class American Association club will represent that city next year, and that Ferguson, of the Troys, is named as manager.

The members of the Providence team have published a card in which it is denied that there is any ill-feeling or jealousy entertained toward Capt. George Wright.

The Fort Wayne Gazette says that Scott, first baseman of the Spalding team of Chicago, "is considered by our people the finest first-baseman ever seen in this city."

The Merritt Club, of Camden, N. J., claim to have at their back the sum of $20,000, and they intend competing for the championship of the American Association next year.

The Troy Times says it is not at all probable that the Trojans will drop out of the league next year, and adds as a clincher, "financially the season thus far has excelled that of other years."

Smith, the big first-baseman of the Troys, who was brought from California to paralyze the pitchers of the East, has been released. He was a fair fielder, but was too easily fooled by the tossers that he was expected to knock out.

"F. B., Braidwood": It is impossible to decide whether Kelly or Gore ranks the higher in base-running. Gore is rather the swifter in running, but Kelly makes up for this in his keener judgment as to chances and openings. Both are the "best in the world."

The Buffalo papers abused Sullivan shamefully on account of his umpiring last week, and the crowd followed suit of course. Sullivan is known and respected in Chicago as thoroughly honest and competent, and moreover his umpiring was in the main entirely satisfactory to both the Buffalo and Cleveland teams.

Arrangements have been completed in Grand Rapids, Mich., for the organization of a stock base-ball club in that city. The amount of stock, $2,000, is already more than half subscribed, and will all be secured. It is proposed to organize an Amateur League for the Northwest, to include Detroit, Grand Rapids, Fort Wayne, Chicago, and other cities.

Mullane, pitcher of the Louisville team, has signed with St. Louis for next year, and the Louisville press is all torn up about it. This is only the beginning of that sort of trouble. There are lots of good players in the American Association teams who are in no hurry about signing. Some of them will be wanted for league teams, and they very wisely hold off to get the benefit of competition. More than one non-league club is doomed to come to grief on this account.

The Mystic Base-Ball Club of Lake View has been organized with the following nine: W. Hutton, catcher; E. Rastall, pitcher; J. Cybourn, first base; A. Andrews, second base; W. Richardson, third base and Captain; E. Holland, short-stop; W. Stevens, left field; [illegible] Lawrence, centre field; W. Harris, right field; W. Mooney and J. Pedrift, substitutes; W. M. Dresler, manager. The Mystics beat the Iroquois by a score of 12 to 3. All challenges from city and suburban clubs should be addressed to W. D. Stevens, No. 97 South Water street.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch says: "It is almost certain that the following will be the roster for next year's team: Flint and Clapp, catchers; McGinnis and Mullane, pitchers; Comisky, first base; Stricker, second base; Latham, third base; McClellan, short field; Cuthbert, left field; Walker, centre field; and Clapp, right field." It is not only "almost" but absolutely certain that Flint will not catch in St. Louis next year. Chicago has never yet had to enforce the "five-men" rule to keep players, and to suppose a non-league club can take away a player Chicago wants to keep is to suppose a rank absurdity.

Bancroft is at it again. Casey, the new third-baseman, has been released already, and Whitney, who played the same position a part of last year, has been engaged. Considering the amount of verdancy and foolishness in the management—enough to "rattle" any ball club that ever lived—it is at once a mystery and a marvel that Detroit should be third in the race. Casey, a tiptop batsman, was released because he made one error in a game against Chicago, and Arthur Whitney, who is one of the weakest hitters in the league, was telegraphed for to fill his place. If men were discharged out of the Chicago team for making errors at critical points and losing games thereby there would not now be one man in the team who began the season in it.

In reply to a statement in the Providence Press to the effect that Worcester has no business in the league, the Spy says: "Worcester is supporting its distanced team as well as any city in the league would support a team in the same position—better, in fact, than the Providence people did their nine last year, when it had an attack of hard luck early in the year. Worcester people would support a winning club in good style, and hopes to have one another year. The patrons of the game in this city have been plucky, and they deserve a better nine than they have had for the past two years. They never yet threatened to disband their team in the middle of the season, as the Providence people did last summer when their pets fell behind. Worcester has always met its base-ball engagements honorably, and will not be turned out of the league so long as it shows its ability and desire to continue to do so."

Williamson has been dispensing taffy in Detroit with a liberality suggestive of unbounded resources in that line. He told an interviewer he was awfully anxious to join the Detroit team next season. This was only a few days after he had been heavily fined for failing to appear on the field at the appointed time. He said: "If the Chicago Club should refuse to release me I must either continue to play with them or go outside of the league. That won't help me to come to Detroit. I like this city, and have no objection to the publication of my wishes in respect to joining the Detroit Club." Williamson two years ago had California on the brain, and fully decided to stay on the Slope, but when the day came round for signing for the following season he showed up among the first at Chicago headquarters. He has no earthly idea of playing in Detroit next year, or anywhere except Chicago.

Harry Luff, the first baseman of the Cincinnati nine, has been released. While in Pittsburg recently he met an old schoolmate, who made him a flattering offer to join a civil engineering corps, Luff being a graduate of the Philadelphia Polytechnic School. The matter was taken under advisement, and when he reached home he found a telegram asking him to report at once. He had by this time about decided to remain with the team, but on Tuesday came a turning point. In the game on that day he was fined $5 for trying to catch an assist by Wheeler with one hand. If he had caught it everything probably would have been all right—but he lost it. He thought this fine was wrong, as long as Snyder was not also mulcted for colliding with him and making a wild throw. The fact seemed to prey upon his mind, and, after due deliberation he decided to accept the Pittsburg offer. He stated the case to the Directors, and wished for his release, informing them that he would go any way. He says that he has decided to quit base-ball, and to confine himself strictly to his calling. He graduated first in his class, and is reported to be a marvelous mathematician. Luff is a good fellow, a fine player, and Cincinnati loses a strong man.—Enquirer.

NEENAH AND MENASHA,

The Twin Cities of Winnebago Lake.

A Peculiar Train-Boy, and His Stock in Trade.

Chicago Visitors—Amusements of the Guests—Lively "Kids."

Southern Summerers—The Chicago Tribune—Wet Weather.

Special Correspondence of The Chicago Tribune.

NEENAH AND MENASHA, Wis., Aug. 4.—Green Lake saw the last of me at 7:22 a. m. yesterday, and I shudder when I recall the number of magnificent lies I told the guests there when I promised to return again. I should like to be with them always, but an all-ruling Providence won't have it that way. I liked Green Lake. The people there shook me by the hand, and even the weather

SHOOK ME UP CONSIDERABLY.

From Pleasant Point to the depot I had a damp and muddy ride, and when I reached the latter place I seated myself comfortably on a coil of barbed-wire to await the arrival of the iron-horse which was to speed me on toward the north. It was rainy, and the weather was very cold. All I had about me was a Plankinton-House check for my overcoat, and that gave but little warmth. At last the train pulled up to the station, and I was on the wing again.

At Fond du Lac we had to make another change of cars; and, when I boarded the Green Bay train, I took a seat in the smoker, in close proximity to the candy-bank of

THE TRAIN-BOY.

This train-boy appeared different from any I had ever seen before, as his face wore a patient and careworn expression, and his general appearance led one to think that he did not care whether school was in session or it was vacation. In him there was a total absence of that Billy-the-Kid air which characterizes the average train-boy. He was very industrious, and circulated his three baskets, a box of cigars, and a bundle of newspapers with great frequency. To encourage his industry I purchased a cigar; but, after I had lit it, I regretted that I had assumed the rôle of a philanthropist. He had seven emaciated bananas in one basket, about two quarts of historical peanuts in another, and the third basket contained several boxes of figs which I recognized as having been traveling with Barnum last season. His sales were not rapid; but he did not seem to care whether the wheels of commerce were clogged or not. I like his ways, and believe some day he will be rewarded with a directorship of the road, or, possibly, a conductorship.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the train arrived here, and I was driven to which is the only summer-hotel here. It is presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Roberts; and the neatness of all the surroundings testifies that a woman's hand is at work. The hotel is on Doty's Island, just out of the twin cities as they are called, and the situation is a delightful one. In front of the house is a wooded grove, in which are chairs and hammocks, and scattered through it are vases and beds of cultivated flowers. Beyond it stretches Winnebago Lake—a beautiful body of water. It is something over thirty miles long, extending down to Fond du Lac, and ten miles wide. High, wooded lands surround it, and the fishing is excellent. Near the hotel is a log cabin which is said to have been occupied by Gov. Doty in his time; and a point out in the lake, near it, is indicated as the spot where the treaty with the Indians was drawn up and signed. The cottage is at present occupied by a party of visitors from Memphis, who generally spend every summer here. On the other side of the hotel is the cottage of

PERRY H. SMITH JR.,

of Chicago. It is unoccupied at present, but Mr. Smith is expected up here soon. At the lake-shore is a pier, at which a number of row-boats are moored; and men are always on hand to take fishing-parties out on the lake. During my stay here the weather has been cold, rainy, and disagreeable, and I have seen but few fishing or rowing parties go out. Clear weather is best for fishing here, and the guests do not care to take a wetting without some reward.

The hotel has been well patronized this summer, and at times all the rooms have been occupied. Wednesday evening F. H. Winston and family, of Chicago, stopped here on their way home from the North.

AMONG THE CHICAGO PEOPLE who have registered here are: L. C. Young and family, S. D. Kimbark, Miss Mamie Kimbark, Charles Kimbark, F. H. Peters and family, W. C. Drew and family, J. W. Peters, C. Wolf, E. C. Bock, Gus Walbann, George F. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Abner Smith, J. S. Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Barnes, Miss Barnes, Mrs. James Turner, Mrs. W. Hine, Mrs. Dollie Turner, Fred Hine, H. C. Humphrey, John K. Hogan, E. H. Hughes, Miss Winifred Scammon, Master Scammon Jones, Miss Carrie Jones, D. C. Rauck, W. M. Stanton, E. W. Beattie and family, J. S. Williams, and J. W. Ayer and family. On the register, opposite the name of S. D. Kimbark, appears the legend: "Splendid luck. Result two day's hard work, one mutton-head." This does not speak well for Mr. Kimbark's exploits in the aquatic line.

THE AMUSEMENTS

of the guests here are not numerous just now. The cold weather makes aquatic sports disagreeable, and what enjoyment they have must be had within doors. Among the gentlemen a favorit game appears to be "crack-loo." Each player flips a coin up against the ceiling, and the flipper of the coin which falls nearest a crack in the floor takes the pot. In the evening little parties steal away and indulge in a little of the fascinating "draw," with a small limit, to pass time away. The ladies attend to their knitting and to their children. This resort has its full quota of children, who make their full share of noise. Almost every summer-hotel I have visited on my trip has had a crowd of noisy "kids" running about the piazzas and halls. The parents let them out every morning to get rid of them, and they run wild all day. At night there is and each mother claims her young ones. After that there is comparative quiet until they are turned out the next morning.

A SORT OF "ROUND-UP,"

Life at the hotel, though, is very pleasant. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts are very nice people, and endeavor to make each one of their guests feel perfectly at home. They succeed admirably; and, when other resorts are dull and deserted, they have a house full of guests. The fishing season is at its hight in the fall and spring, and at such times large parties of lovers of piscatorial pleasures come up here for short stays.

I was talking with a Southerner here the other day, and, in the course of conversation, asked him why it was that were at the Northern resorts. He said that they were a class of people that liked to be by themselves; and that they had discovered a number of very pleasant resorts in the mountains of Virginia and Tennessee. It was much cheaper for them to go there than to come North; and, as all of them were not in first-class financial circumstances, they took in the cheaper places. The wealthy Southerners who came North preferred to go to the Eastern watering-places, where they could cut a swell, and didn't care for the quiet of the Wisconsin and Minnesota resorts. He said he thought Lake Minnetonka, Minnesota, was visited by a comparatively large number of Southern people this summer, as they found it livelier than the other summering points. An outbreak of yellow-fever in the South would send many people up here, he thought.

SO FEW SOUTHERN PEOPLE

THE TWIN CITIES

of Neenah and Menasha are very lively little places, and a good deal of business is transacted there. The water-power furnished is excellent, and many large mills are run by it. Paper, woodenware, etc., are manufactured in large quantities. The streets are clean and well laid out, the business blocks are substantially built, and there are a number of handsome residences in both places.

Since I have been up here I have found it very difficult to get THE TRIBUNE. The large edition sent up this way is sold out before it has reached us, and at every station I see large numbers of people anxious to purchase the paper. The train-boys tell me that their sale of TRIBUNES and that they could sell twice as many if they only knew enough to order enough. They increase their orders nearly every day, but the demand always exceeds the supply, and TRIBUNES are loaned from house to house in the little towns.

The rain which has followed me since Sunday noon is still on my track, and the farmers who were praying for it a week ago are now praying for clear weather. The roads and fields are flooded, and much damage is being done to crops. I leave Neenah in the morning, and have not decided yet what resort I will visit next. BIFF.

Got His Watch Back.

Charles Dovey, a commercial traveler, whose home is in Philadelphia, was agreeably surprised on Saturday by receiving by express a valuable gold watch which he had handed to Jesse James in June, 1880, at the latter's request, a loaded revolver being one of the arguments used by Mr. James. At that time Mr. Dovey had charge of a coal-mining company's office in Kentucky, and the unexpected visit of Jesse James and his three confederates was made on pay-day. It happened that the money had been delayed on its way from the bank and the robbers got only a few dollars and Mr. Dovey's watch, which has just been returned by Mrs. James with the following note: "Kansas City, June 15, 1882.—Mr. Charles Dovey—Dear Sir: Inclosed you will find a watch. If it is yours please send me by return mail a receipt for the same. Yours respectfully, Mrs. Jesse James." Mr. Dovey is informed that Mrs. James is making a general restoration of the stolen property left by her lamented husband, so far as she can ascertain to whom it belongs.

THE LATE FANNY PARNELL

Arrangements for a Memorial Service—Resolutions of the Irish Americans.

The committee having in charge the Fanny Parnell memorial meeting, to be held under the auspices of the Ladies' Land League Sunday, Aug. 13, at Twelfth Street Turner-Hall, met at the house of John F. Scanlan, 409 West Taylor street, Friday night, Miss Fanny O'Grady in the chair. The program was agreed on, which is as follows: Meeting to be called to order at 2:30 o'clock, followed by a funeral dirge by the orchestra; nominating of committee on resolutions, recitations, Fanny Parnell's appeal to her countrywomen. Orations to be delivered by an Episcopalian clergyman, a Catholic priest, and by an Irish and American layman; reading of resolutions; adjournment. Notice will be given of who the speakers will be as soon as decided. One of the leading lady elocutionists of the city will recite the poem.

Committees were appointed on following:

On Invitations of Societies—Patrick Kane, William Madden, Frank Lawler, George Rogers, P. Carmody.

On Invitations to the Stage—Miss F. O'Grady, Mrs. G. Rogers, Mrs. Lynch, Mrs. J. J. Curran, Miss Herbert, Miss Donohu, Miss Kate Lowrey.

On Speakers—John F. Scanlan, Miss O'Grady, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Curran, Miss Donohu.

On Decorations—Mr. O'Connor, P. McQueeny, Eugene Sullivan, Capt. P. Casey, John Corbet, J. E. O'Brien.

Reception—James Clark, J. B. Ryan, John Corbet, Ed O'Byrne, Patrick Kane, James Monahan, Dr. Harcourt, William Madden.

The meeting promises to be very impressive, and great interest is being manifested by the Irish people, who have been very much attached to Miss Parnell. The societies who desire to take part, and all are invited, will report to Miss Fanny O'Grady, 119 Blue Island avenue. The committee adjourned to meet at the Land-League Hall, 208 Blue Island avenue, next Tuesday evening.

THE IRISH-AMERICAN CLUB.

The following preamble and resolutions were adopted by the Irish-American Club at the last meeting of that body:

"No formal set of resolutions can even feebly express the deep sorrow felt by the members of the Irish-American Club at the sudden death of Miss Fanny Parnell, one of the brightest minds and truest hearts that have given dignity to the struggle of the Irish people for social and political liberty. Miss Parnell has fallen in the flower of her youth a victim to the overwork and the overexcitement which naturally accompanied her endless efforts in support of the cause which her soul espoused. A member of a family distinguished for ability and patriotism, she was the most gifted and the sturdiest of even her patriot race. It is no mere flattery of the dead that urges us to this expression. The fame of Miss Parnell will be forever associated with her proved devotion to the principle of Irish nationality manifested in her deeds and in her writings. She made the harp of her country speak again in the proud accents of defiance. She disdained to voice the meanness of political despair. Her every utterance was one of hope, and her songs kindled the fires of passionate rebellion against the rule of the foreigner in every Irish heart that came within their heroic influence. Of her and her kindred it may truly be written that

As torrents mold the earth
They channeled deep old Ireland's heart
By constancy and worth.

Our sympathy with Miss Parnell's stricken family is only exceeded by our grief for her early death. Ireland could ill afford to lose a daughter so noble and so devoted. We can do no more than lay our tributes of admiration, of affection, and of respect upon the coffin that contains her honored relics.

Resolved, Therefore, that in the death of Miss Fanny Parnell the Irish race and the cause of Irish independence have lost a friend whose loyalty could never fail, and a champion whose genius elevated the character and dignified the cause of her people and her country.

Resolved, That we hope her remains may repose in Irish earth, beneath the shadows of the monuments that rise above the graves of our bravest and our best, among which we know that Irish hearts and Irish hands will raise, in her faithful memory, an obelisk that will attest to future generations of her race the gratitude with which she was regarded by the people of her own generation.

Resolved, That we can best show our devotion to Miss Parnell's memory by walking in the honorable path of patriotism which her life illustrated, and by sustaining the cause which she so disinterestedly upheld.

Resolved, That these resolutions be engrossed and presented to the family of Miss Parnell in token of our condolence with them and of our inexpressible regret for her loss.

AMERICAN PIANOS.

They Are Finding a Good Market in Europe.

In the unexampled prosperity of our agricultural community and the great abundance of our crops of all kinds during the past decade the general public can find a reason why our exports now exceed our imports, while the contrary was true in former years; but it is not so generally known that in the exportation of a great many manufactured products the balance of trade is now handsomely in our favor. We import no agricultural instruments, while a very large proportion of the united product of all American factories in that branch of business is made for the farmers of Great Britain and Continental Europe. Of sewing-machines the same can also be said. But both of these industries are peculiarly American, having been invented by Americans, and being brought to a higher state of perfection here than circumstances would warrant them in reaching in any other country.

It is, however, in the exportation of articles which are particularly of European origin that we should feel most pride, as it proves that the pupils, being able to learn no more from their masters, have sought out new and untried paths, and have succeeded so well that the results of their experiments and labor receive preference wherever placed in competition. We refer to some of the finer class of manufactured goods—viz.: watches, clocks, pianos, etc. Reference to the tables of the Bureau of Statistics shows that the demand for American watches and clocks abroad amounted to $1,250,000 last year, while the actual value of musical instruments shipped out of this country was in round numbers $1,000,000.

On inquiry at Messrs. Lyon & Healy's music-store in this city we learn that the sale of European-made pianos in this country, which some years ago was quite large, has now practically ceased. They also inform us that of all the pianos shipped to Europe seventy per cent were made by the celebrated house of Steinway & Sons, of New York City. When we remember that only a few years ago the balance of trade in musical instruments was in favor of Europe, this present showing of such a large sum in our favor is very flattering to the ability and genius of our home manufacturers—especially to the well-known house that heads the list. We learn that this firm, besides their great factories, etc., on Long Island, have also a factory in Hamburg, Germany—a fact which is not generally known here—and in spite of the fact that their pianos cost the purchaser some 50 or 60 per cent more than the home-made pianos their sale throughout Europe is very large and is yearly increasing. Returning travelers report hearing Steinway's pianos in the salons of the nobility as well as in those of a number of the crowned heads of Europe, and as many of them are the greatest patrons—and discriminating ones too—of musical art and artists, it is very sincere flattery for the maker whose instrument is selected by them. So great a reputation have Steinway & Sons acquired throughout the Continent, and so great has been the revolution which they have made in the system of piano-building, that almost all European makers have adopted their system, and endeavor to copy after them in all their improvements. With such success attending the initial efforts of our pianomakers in introducing their instruments in a part of the world where such competition exists, we have no fears for the future, especially where the leaders in the movement are such tried and trusted artists in their profession as are the Steinways.

THE LACROSSE CHAMPIONSHIP.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 5.—In today's match between Louisville and Chicago for the lacrosse championship of America Louisville won in three straight games; time, 17, 4, and 1 minute, respectively. Genry scored the first and second games, and Maguire the third.

The first of a series of championship matches in Chicago to be played this month will take place Aug. 12 between the Chicago and Calumet clubs of this city at the Base-Ball Park; Aug. 19 the Ottawa club of Grand Rapids, Mich., play the Calumets; Aug. 26 the Badger club of La Crosse, Wis., play the Calumets.

SUPERIOR TO ALL.

The Conrad Seipp Brewing Co. have gained a world-wide reputation for their celebrated bottled lager beer. Those who have neglected to keep it heretofore should send their orders direct to the factory.

DON'T COME HOME

from your summer vacation until you have a germicide put into your house. It is more dangerous to come from the pure air of the country to a house that has been closed, absorbing sewer-gas and bad odors, during your absence. The germicide keeps the air sweet and pure and is a valuable adjunct to the sewerage system. Orders by mail promptly attended to by addressing the Germicide Co., 305 Wabash avenue.

MARINE NEWS.

An Exceedingly Brisk Demand Yesterday for Grain-Carriers.

Room Taken for Over 350,000 Bushels of Wheat and Corn.

Dock and Other Notes—Vessels Passed Port Huron—Vessel Charters—Around the Lakes—Port List.

Lake Freights.

The demand yesterday by shippers of grain for vessel-room was exceedingly good and a large fleet of vessels was engaged. The charters were about equally divided between wheat and corn, and the destination of the grain was distributed. Rates were firm at the ruling figures of the week, except in the case of cargoes to Kingston, which advanced from 5¼ cents a bushel to 5⅜@5½ cents. The fact that the Canadian Cabinet has the question of collecting customs dues on shortage under consideration, with a fair prospect that the obnoxious law will be modified or repealed, has had a tendency to create a better feeling toward Kingston among vessel-owners. While freights did not advance the past week, vessel-owners have nothing to complain of. There was no weakening of rates and the demand for vessels was good; in fact, some days the supply was not equal to the demand. When the immense crop of this year is all harvested and commences to move there will be an urgent demand for carriers, and everything leads to the conclusion that during the latter part of the season we will see freights at a moderately profitable figure to vessel-owners. The following comprised the vessels chartered yesterday:

For Buffalo.	Bushels.
Steamship James Davidson, corn	67,000
Propeller James Fisk Jr., wheat	24,000
Propeller Avon, wheat	50,000
Propeller Fountain City, corn	20,000
Schooner Pensaukee, wheat	36,000
For Erie.
Propeller Lycoming, wheat	50,000
Propeller Annie Young, corn	30,000
For Kingston.
Schooner J. M. Scott, wheat	20,000
Schooner Yankee Blade, wheat	16,000
For Sarnia.
Schooner Lottie Wolf, corn	22,000
For Midland.
Schooner Eagle Wing, corn	17,000
For Collingwood.
Schooner Peerless, corn	12,000
Total capacity	364,000

Dock and Other Notes.

The schooner Yankee Blade is going to Kingston with a load of wheat.

It was very dull yesterday, the tows of tugs being few and far between.

Only one or two lumber-laden vessels were at the market docks last evening.

Religious services will be held at the lumber-market docks today, weather permitting.

The schooner Conneaught has been in port seven days, unable to sell her cargo of slabs.

The big schooner David Vance, Capt. Lew Vance, arrived yesterday from below with a cargo of coal.

The old schooner Curlew, sunk in the North Branch for years, has been raised and towed to Ogden Canal.

The fine passenger propeller Fountain City, of the Western Transportation Line, leaves for Buffalo Tuesday evening.

The schooners Myrtle, Ellen Ellinwood, and R. Kanters were chartered yesterday to bring lumber to this port from Muskegon.

Soundings of the river have been completed from Wells to Twelfth street bridge. The average depth of water in the river between the two bridges is a little over sixteen feet.

Clark street bridge is closed to travel. Yesterday morning about 2:30 o'clock the propeller Avon, bound up the river, ran into the north approach of the bridge and damaged it so seriously that the bridge had to be swung open. The propeller sustained but slight damage.

Departed—Steam-barge Escanaba.

Arrived, loaded, and departed—Steam-barge Inter-Ocean, steam-barge Monabansett and consort Metacomet, steam-barge J. T. Truesdell, steam-barge Minnesota and consort Massasoit, schooner Barbarian, schooner Golden West, schooner C. H. Burton, schooner S. A. King, schooner C. M. Knapp, schooner T. L. Parker.

Wind east, light.

Port of Buffalo—Coal Freights—Other News.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Arrived from Duluth—Propeller Empire State, flour, copper, etc.

Cleared for Chicago—Propeller Rochester, cement, etc.; propeller W. H. Barnum, coal; schooners Charles Foster, M. W. Page, Melbourne, and Wayne, all laden with coal. For Escanaba—Schooner C. P. Minch, coal. For Duluth—Propeller Jarvis Lord, coal.

Lake receipts for the week: Corn, 559,500 bushels; wheat, 1,327,300 bushels; flaxseed, 9,300 bushels; flour, 46,050 barrels; lumber, 11,500,000 feet; ties, 25,970. Lake shipments for the week: Coal, 36,200 tons; cement, 7,500 barrels; rails, 1,530 tons; salt, 17,800 barrels. Canal shipments for the week: Wheat, 1,186,210 bushels; corn, 255,000 bushels. Rail shipments for the week: Wheat, 302,850 bushels; corn, 100,300 bushels; oats, 37,540 bushels.

Coal freights, which have been weak to Chicago and Milwaukee for some days, today suffered a decline of 10 cents. The only vessel on the spot, the propeller Boston, was engaged to load for Chicago at 75 cents. The same rate was offered for several vessels to arrive in a day or two, but it was refused. The scarcity of coal for shipment is the cause of the decline. There are but about a half-dozen vessels on this lake bound here, and brokers are of the opinion that rates will be better again next week. The schooner D. S. Austin has been engaged to carry coal hence to Green Bay at 95 cents, and ore back from Escanaba to Erie at $1.20, making an unusually good round trip as things now are. The schooner C. P. Minch takes coal to Escanaba at 85 cents, and the propeller Jarvis Lord coal to Duluth on contract. The rate on the steamship W. Edwards' coal to Chicago is 80 cents, not 85 as reported yesterday.

Canal-freights were steady on the basis of 5¼ cents for wheat and 5 cents for corn to New York. The shipments of wheat for this week are unusually large, far ahead of any other week this season.

The schooner D. S. Austin has had her topsides recalked, and is now in good trim for the fall work.

The schooner F. S. Marsh came here light for Ashtabula and is getting a leak stopped at the Union Dry-Dock. She will load coal for Chicago on an 85-cent charter made some days ago.

Milwaukee Marine Items.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 5.—The Canadian schooner Pride of America, which has been laid up at this port since Oct. 3, 1881, was today chartered to load 22,000 bushels of wheat for Kingston at 5½ cents. Iron-ore freights are strong at $1.10 and $1.15 from Escanaba to Ohio ports.

Capt. David Cochrane and Clerk John Sanderson, of the steamer John A. Dix, have purchased the three-fourths interest in the Dix from Engelman and Kitzinger for $22,500. By this purchase Messrs. Cochrane and Sanderson become sole owners of the vessel.

The schooner Blue Belle is receiving a new foremast and a new centre-board at the Milwaukee ship-yard.

Conrad Starke, Superintendent of the Milwaukee Tug-Boat Line wrecking expedition at work on the schooner E. M. Portch, arrived in the city today. He reports the weather of the past week very unfavorable for this work. Several more piles are to be driven around the vessel and two chains placed under her. She will then be lifted a little, when the sand will be pumped out of her. Mr. Starke feels confident that the vessel can be recovered, but says that it will take time. He reports that the Kirtland, Wolf & Davidson wrecking expedition at work on the schooner J. O. Thayer, stranded at the same port, have succeeded in placing a derrick on her, and the work of removing her cargo of coal commenced.

Truman and Cooper, the wreckers at work on the steam-barge Grace Paterson, stranded on Two Rivers Point, expect with a few days' fine weather to have her afloat.

Cleared—Steam-barge Cumberland, steam-barge Charles W. Palmer and consort Ogarita, and schooners Lew Ellsworth and Melvina, for Escanaba; steam-barge Aberevin and consort Maize, for Ogdensburg.

Vessels Passed the Welland Canal.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

Cleared—Steam-barge G. A. Whiting, steam-barge Hiawatha, steam-barge Kate Butteroni, schooner Guiding Star, schooner Teutonia, schooner Minnehaha, schooner Goshawk, schooner J. C. Harrison.

Passed down—Propellers Nyack and Arctic.

Passed up—Propeller City of Duluth.

The Grain-Shortage Question at Kingston.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5.—The customs authorities state that the allowances of shortage on vessel cargoes is one bushel in 1,000. When the order was issued few vessels of over 20,000 bushels came to Kingston; but now that big cargoes arrive the proportion will be as agreed upon. If the shortage is greater than one bushel in 1,000, duty will have to be imposed on the total amount. The latest order in Council may, however, change the arrangement.

Entered and Cleared at Erie.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 5.—Entered—Schooner Luzerne, from Cleveland, light; steam-barge Raleigh, from Marquette, ore; schooner Montcalm, from Toledo, wheat; propeller W. H. Barnum, from Buffalo, coal; propeller Niagara, from Toledo, light.

Cleared—Propeller W. H. Barnum, for Chicago, coal.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

PERSONAL—NAPOLEON WAS A SOLDIER and a statesman, but he descended to banish women. Antony threw a world away for one. Nero fiddled while Rome burned; and now I step aside from my legitimate profession, which is to overcome as I positively, cheaply, and scientifically do, all defects of beauty. Before I tell why I imitate Napoleon et al., ladies who are new to Chicago and don't know that I am a fixture here for near fifteen years, and have a reputation growing widely, I will tell them that my Sain Bleacher, etc., whitens perfectly without touchiness, removing every discoloration and wrinkle, $2; my fat stimulant increases flesh each week, pint $3; my blackhead lotion removes instantly all specks, $1; my pimple lotion cures any case, $2; Spanish balm cures wrinkles around the eyes, $2; my hair color and bleacher and invigorator, $1.50 and $1, are unrivaled, and also color and bleach; my permanent depilatory kills hair, $2; my make-up outfit, tiger-lily rouge and pencils, $1.50; my wart and freckle compound is sure, $1. I color brows and lashes and remove moles. But as I was saying with Antony and Nero, I have digressed in our pursuits. I have now confounded the noses of women and men, and have stopped their awful snoring lights, and sweet dreams and sweeter silence shall now charm us. I will tell next Sunday all about my Anti-Snorer. Ladies, call on me at Palmer House, parlor floor. Follow hall from elevator to the right to 117. DE LA BANTA.

SUBURBAN REAL ESTATE.

FOR SALE—BY FRED M. WOODS, AT Downer's Grove: Beautiful building lots, 50x180, $2 to $4 per foot; land high and rolling. Downer's Grove is on the C., B. & Q. Road, 15 miles from the west limits of the city; has hourly trains each way; fare 11¼ cents. The land is 180 feet higher than Chicago, very rolling; streets are nicely graded and lined mostly with sugar maple trees. Lying adjacent on the west is a sugar maple grove of 300 acres, protecting the town from the west winds so prevalent in the other unprotected suburbs. It has the best school in the county, 4 churches, 20 good business houses. About 100 people go in and out daily. It is conceded by all that Nature has done more for this suburb than any other on the road. Being surrounded by one of the richest farming communities in the State, living costs only about one-half as much as in the nearer suburbs. The town has a fine butter and cheese factory, where the best dairy products can be had at manufacturers' prices; also fresh buttermilk always on hand, and pure cream. Fuel is cheap; the best of summer wood can be laid down at your door for $3.50 per cord, and sugar maple at $6. If you are looking for a home compare all these advantages with those offered by other dealers. We don't offer lake breezes to breed rheumatism, but the substantials of life cheap to appease hunger. Instead of cheap poetry we give you cheap pork, mutton, or beef, as your appetite craves. I also have some fine residence property; one special bargain, new 8-room house and ¼ acre land, 2 blocks from depot, only $1,500; will sell on payments monthly or will rent. Address FRED. M. WOODS, Downer's Grove, Ill.

TAKE LINCOLN-AVENUE STREET-CARS.

One of the most pleasant rides in the city, passing in front of Lincoln Park and along a finely-shaded avenue.

The location is unexcelled, fronting on the two great main avenues just north of the city limits, Lincoln and Diversy-avs., with high, dry, and rich ground, good drainage, good water, near schools, churches, parks, and street-cars. Only a pleasant ride from the centre of the city. Lots the same distance out on the South Side, and not nearly as pleasantly located, cost from five to ten times more. Those who buy now will soon double their money. The lots are surrounded by a double row of trees, and full-width sidewalks, and many fine buildings are in process of erection on all sides of the property.

We shall make it a Fine Success and Model Subdivision before the summer is over.

The Buffalo Winners.

The Buffalo meeting, that in times gone by was the great trotting event of the year, came to an end Friday, and, with the single exception of the mile in 2:12¼ paced by Buffalo Girl, nothing to excel the records made at Chicago and Cleveland was done. It is a singular fact that, although undoubtedly the fastest of all the pacers now before the public, Buffalo Girl has thus far been unable to win a race in her class. At Chicago she won the first two heats in 2:14, 2:14¼, but in the third was carried so fast and far by Mattie Hunter that she broke when inside the distance flag, and thereafter was of no account in the race, which was won by Bay Billy. At Cleveland she was made favorit over the field in the pool-selling, but in spite of her regular driver being taken out and Orrin Hickok put up in his place, she was unable to do better than win a heat in 2:17, the race finally falling to Lucy. At Buffalo she paced the fastest heat of the season thus far, 2:12¼, but Flora Belle was the winner of the race. Thus far, it will be seen, the two best pacers of the lot—Buffalo Girl and Mattie Hunter—have failed to win a race in the big circuit, as at each place in the line they have worn themselves out in the earlier stages of the race, leaving the victory to slower horses.

Of the trotters at Buffalo it may be said that Clingstone, Aldine, and Wilson were the only ones to repeat their Cleveland victories. In the hands of Peter V. Johnson Aldine has proven herself one of the fastest and most reliable mares in the country, and at Cleveland was the third of Almont's get to beat 2:20, Piedmont and Fanny Witherspoon having preceded her. The last-named mare also reduced her record at Buffalo, winning the third heat of her race in 2:19, but was beaten for first money by Adele Gould, a nice-looking daughter of Jay Gould, who is the first of his get to trot better than 2:20. Another horse that made a fast record at Buffalo was the bay stallion Abe Downing, who, driven by Peter V. Johnson, captured the first heat of the 2:20 class in 2:20¾, but was beaten for first money by the California gelding Overman, who took the second heat in 2:20¼, with Abe Downing second, and thereafter was able to win in comparatively slow time, Johnson's horse not being dangerous in the last two heats of the race. Downing is a very handsome little horse, but was not considered to have much speed when Johnson took him in hand. In the early part of the season he showed so little speed that it was not thought worth while to enter him at the Chicago meeting, but after those entries had closed he began to improve rapidly, and is now capable of beating 2:20 a little when everything is favorable. Of the heat won by him at Buffalo the Express of that city says: "On the turn St. Cloud took the lead, Little Billy second, Abe third, Overman fourth, and the field gradually straggling out, though close up all of them. St. Cloud left his feet several times on the turn, but had settled at the quarter-pole, which was passed in 34¾, and was trotting an even race, with Abe Downing second. Rolla had in the meantime got his feet and had passed Big Ike, who was last. Overman was in fifth place and London seventh. St. Cloud and Downing cut out the pace up the stretch, and at the half in 1:10 were nip and tuck, Hickok's entry had then pulled into third place, and Little Billy fourth. In this order they passed the three-quarters in 1:45½. As they came into the stretch Overman was called and rapidly closed up on the leaders. St. Cloud dropped into third, but a good third, Overman and Abe Downing trotted neck and neck from the distance-stand in, and as they neared the wire Hickok made a grand effort to lift the chestnut to the front. It was a failure, however, and Abe Downing won by a head in 2:20¾."

The table of winners is as follows:

Name.	Sire.	Am't won.	Record.

Trotting at the Chicago Horse Fair.

At the great Horse Fair, to be held at the Chicago Driving-Park Sept. 16 to 23 inclusive, there will be trotting every day, and Secretary D. L. Hall has announced the following speed program:

First day, Saturday, Sept. 16—Purse $350, for 2-year-olds; $200 to first, $100 to second, $50 to third; mile heats, two in three. Purse $500, for 3-year-olds; $250 to first, $125 to second, $75 to third, $50 to fourth. Purse $1,000, 2:45 class; $500 to first, $250 to second, $150 to third, $100 to fourth.

Second day, Monday, Sept. 18—Purse $1,000, 2:25 class; $500 to first, $250 to second, $150 to third, $100 to fourth. Purse $1,000, 2:21 class; $500 to first, $250 to second, $150 to third, $100 to fourth.

Third day, Tuesday, Sept. 19—Purse $1,000, 2:25 pacing class; $500 to first, $250 to second, $150 to third, $100 to fourth. Purse $1,000, 2:29 class; $500 to first, $250 to second, $150 to third, $100 to fourth.

Fourth day, Wednesday, Sept. 20—Purse $1,000, three-minute class; $500 to first, $250 to second, $150 to third, $100 to fourth. Purse $500, for 4-year-olds; $250 to first, $125 to second, $75 to third, $50 to fourth. (Phil Thompson, Farce, Bronze, Fred Crocker, Jay Eye See, and Waiting barred in this race.)

Fifth day, Thursday, Sept. 21—Purse $2,000, open to all stallions; $1,000 to first, $500 to second, $300 to third, $200 to fourth. Purse $1,000, 2:35 class; $500 to first, $250 to second, $150 to third, $100 to fourth.

Sixth day, Friday, Sept. 22—Purse $1,000, open to all pacers; $500 to first, $250 to second, $150 to third, $100 to fourth. Special 4-year-old stake, open to Phil Thompson, Farce, Bronze, Fred Crocker, Jay Eye See, and Waiting, and to any other colt or filly 4 years old or under. Entrance $250, one-half forfeit, which must accompany the nomination. At least three of the above-named 4-year-olds to enter and two to start. If two of those named start, $1,000 added by the association; if three, $1,500; if four or more, $2,000. Stakes and one-half added money to first horse, one-fourth added money to second, 15 per cent to third, 10 per cent to fourth.

Seventh day, Saturday, Sept. 23—Purse $1,000; 2:17 class; $500 to first, $250 to second, $150 to third, $100 to fourth. Special sensational purse to be announced on or about Sept. 1.

The entries close on Monday, Aug. 28, 1882, at 11 o'clock p. m., and addressed to D. L. Hall, Secretary, 116 Monroe street, Chicago, Ill. The entrance fee is 10 per cent of purse, 5 per cent of which is cash, and must positively accompany the entry; the other 5 per cent, from those who start only, is due and payable at the Secretary's office on the fair-grounds at 6 o'clock p. m. of the day previous to the race. No entry will be received and considered unless these conditions are fully complied with, and no entry will be held or liable for any amount beyond the first 5 per cent, but failure to pay the second 5 per cent at 6 o'clock on the evening previous to the race shall be considered a withdrawal, and shall disqualify the entry from competing in the race.

Some Inside Facts Regarding the Steals at Cleveland.

Mr. M. T. Grattan, who is going through the Central Circuit for the Breeders' Gazette of this city, is evidently not made of the green material of which so many turf reporters are constructed. In his review of the Cleveland meeting he lets in the light on a couple of "jobs" as follows:

There have been plenty of jobs, as there were at Chicago, but an occasional horse-race in spite of the corrupt gang. Said a well-known New York newspaper man to me yesterday: "I have done the big circuit a great many times, and have been intimately familiar with racing from boyhood, and I tell you the gang is worse this year than ever before; they have already got through with lots of unblushing, barefaced jobs." I asked him if this belief was founded upon suspicion or was he certain of his facts; his reply, "I know just what I am talking about," was uttered in the most sincere and convincing manner, and coincides with my own knowledge of the circuit thus far. My information about many of these matters is hampered by a sense of honor not to betray the secrets of others, freely confided with a full belief that there was no danger of betrayal. It was impossible to repress a chuckle of amusement as President Edwards read the anonymous warning from the crowd and expressed his contempt for such nonsense, when the note simply stated absolute facts as to an arrangement made the day before, and which was being deliberately carried out before his face and eyes. True, the gang had to change their tactics a little towards the end, because of Lucy, but a change of drivers on either Mattie Hunter or Buffalo Girl would have ended the race the day before.

"The comical ending of one job brought grief and anger to many. In a class which shall be nameless, the drivers of the fastest pair agreed with each other which should win, selecting the slowest one, as the other was a hot favorit. The driver of the slow one hustled $540 of his own money into the box and immediately notified his intimate friends of the sure thing; some of them invested every cent they had, one man, for himself and another, put in $2,200. They stood to win an enormous sum, about $10 for $1, and were already investing the proceeds in their mind's eye. So as not to give a clew as to who the parties are, I will simply say that the fellow with the fastest trotter drove it out on them, gave them the double cross; but in so doing he certainly endangered his life. His irate brother hunted him out, cornered him and said: '——— ——— now I am going to kill you, if I die for it in a minute.' His deadly intention was only too apparent, and it required the most prompt and vigorous intervention to keep the affair out of the criminal courts. The story was so good that I intimated my intention to give it to the public, but was begged 'for heaven's sake don't do that; it would ruin ——; he has cooled off now, and no one need know of it.' I consented not to give it away, and think no one will guess the parties save some of the gentlemen who arrived with full pockets, and in consequence of a friendly 'steer' for a 'sure thing' borrowed money to get home. Such a betrayal of trust between drivers is not to be regretted by the general public; it results in an honest race, and tends to break up that freemasonry among drivers by virtue of which jobs have become the rule rather than the exception. The average professional driver regards the general public as Philistines whom the Lord has sent his way to be spoiled; he calls them by the pet name of 'suckers,' which is in a great measure merited; for a man is in fact a sucker who will fill up a pool box to tempt some driver, by the simple relaxation of a line, a pail of water, or a feed of hay, to steal it without danger of any legal penalty, or for that matter, much danger of any penalty whatever."

More Facts About the Crooked Judging at Boston.

The Boston Herald has been investigating the curious decisions given not long ago by the judges of two races at Beacon Park, full particulars of which have appeared in THE TRIBUNE, and concludes that the affair looks very fishy. One of the judges writes to the Herald as follows:

To the Editor of the Herald: Having been wrongfully accused of being connected with the other judges of last Friday's races at Beacon Park in a big fraud, I feel it my duty to the public to make a true statement of the facts. I was asked to go into the stand to judge the races according to the rules for trotting, and I was assured the races were to be trotted on their merits. Soon as I had been selected, and before having gone into the stand, I was approached by two of the owners of horses in the races, and asked if I would suppress the time three or four seconds, if they (the owners) would have their horses win their races. My answer was "No"; I was to judge the races as I thought was right. Before starting the races two of the drivers came into the stand, and said they could win the races, but would not unless we (the judges) suppressed the time and kept their horses in their respective classes. One of these drivers went so far as to say he only came to get second money, and that he wanted to take his mare up through the country and "skin them in the 2:40 class." Now, as to the first race, the 2:23 class, the story of the fourth heat is as follows: The two horses (Goldfinder and Gypsy) trotted very evenly the first half mile. On the road side, Goldfinder made a break, but, so far as I could see, gained nothing. On the homestretch, he made another break, but was soon trotting again. He came under the wire at least a neck ahead of Gypsy, as we (the judges) agreed. The only delay in deciding the heat was caused by the discussion of the question: "Can we set the stallion back for running?" The distance judge came while we were considering the matter, and said that he was at his post during the race; that Goldfinder was outtrotting Gypsy when he broke, and that he lost by his break half a length. As by the rules of trotting we could not set him back, he got the heat, that with consent of all the judges. In the 2:38 class we gave the third to Neil, and because her driver pulled her back in the stretch to give the heat to Zelda, having said he would not win the race; that he wanted only second money. Zelda beat Neil out, but she had done so much running she was set back, and the heat was given to Neil, I say, justly. The fifth heat was taken from Neil because her driver used his whip, not within the rule. The proceeding caused Zelda to break and lose a heat which I thought she could have easily won. For that offense Ellinwood was punished by taking the heat from Neil and giving it to Zelda. The judges were unanimous in the decision. Notwithstanding all that has been said by parties who had put their money in the pool-box on the wrong horse, and by the reporters, I am willing to stand by the decision of the Board of Appeals, to which the case has been appealed. I had not one dollar pending on the races and am not a pool-buyer, as the books will show. I am sorry to say most of the races are governed by the pool-box, and the sooner the latter is done away with the sooner horse-trotting will be on its merits and become a popular amusement.

Questions Answered.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Will you please decide the following wager: A bet B that Princess would pace better than 2:25. B claims the bet, as Flora Belle won the race, and consequently Princess got no record in the race, as she did not get a heat. A claims the bet on the ground that Princess was a close second in each heat, and one heat was trotted below 19, I believe. Who wins the bet?

Also please state at what age the horses race for the English Derby, and how old Parole was when he won the Derby. CONSTANT READER.

ANSWER.—B wins the bet regarding Princess.

The Derby is for 3-year-olds, and no horse of another age can take part in this race. Parole never won the English Derby. The only American horse successful in that race was Iroquois, who won it in 1881.

Close of the Trotting Meeting at Buffalo.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 5.—One heat in the no-record class had been won by Walnut Friday night in 2:22¼, and this class was first called this afternoon. The word was given on the third trial, Hetty Pearl and Golden Rule four lengths behind. This proved disastrous to Pearl, as she left her feet on the turn and had to trot a fast race even to save her distance. Neta Medium went into the air on the turn, and refused to either trot or run, and was badly distanced. Walnut led at the quarter in 35¼, Cornelia second, and Douglass third. The latter closed up and lapped Walnut's wheel at the half in 1:11. Then the gray left his feet and acted badly all the way round to the three-quarter post, being distanced. Cornelia made a rush for Walnut when squared away for home, and they came down neck and neck, making a dead heat. In the pools before the heat Walnut had the call at $30, Cornelia $11, Meta Medium $10, and the field $15. After the heat Cornelia had the call in the pools at $100 to $30 for the field. Splan was trailing when the word was given, but all well bunched. Walnut at once took the lead and held it by a length from Cornelia to the quarter in 36¾. Pearl closed up on Walnut on the stretch, and at the half, in 1:13½, was second by half a length. All well up. No change was made to the three-quarters in 1:49. Then Wilkes was called on and trotting around the entire field and challenged Walnut at the distance. It was a close struggle home, Walnut winning by half a length. In the pools the field now sold for $100 to $40 on Walnut. Cornelia at once took the lead in the turn and held it to the finish. Golden Rule was a good second to the half, when she left her feet and was passed by Walnut. The latter made a futile effort to overtake Cornelia on the stretch, but the mare was too speedy. Cornelia now sold at $25 to $10 for the field. Cornelia took the lead to the turn, but Walnut pulled up and trotted neck and neck with the mare until on the upper turn, then he quit badly and was passed by the entire field, Cornelia winning handily by two lengths. Only Walnut and Cornelia were left as starters in the sixth heat. Walnut cut in and took the lead at the pole, forcing Cornelia to a break, but she came on and easily won the heat and race. Summary:

Cornelia	4	0	3	1	1	1
Walnut	1	0	1	2	5	2
Golden Rule	6	3	5	3	2	ro

Time—2:22¼; 2:23; 2:22¼; 2:23; 2:24¼; 2:26¼.

Jennie Ivey, of Kansas, and Minnetta Williams, of Missouri, rode a ten-mile race during the afternoon. Ivey's saddle shifted at the half-mile pole on the tenth mile, giving her a bad header, and Williams won as she pleased in 24:07¾. The race was well contested during the last five miles.

A chariot-race filled in the afternoon of the extra day. The weather has been cloudy all the week, and the attendance as a consequence has been small. The sport has been first-class, and the only thing to mar the pleasure of the week has been the bad starts and decisions of the judges and the slowness with which the events were disposed of.

The Races at Monmouth Park.

MONMOUTH PARK, Aug. 5.—Second race, one and a quarter miles, Yorkshire first, Itaska second, Vampire third. Time, 2:13½.

Third race, one and a half miles, Glenmore first, Mary Anderson second, Priam third. Time, 2:38¾.

Fourth race, one mile, Giroflé first, Barrett second, Checkmate third. Time, 1:41½.

Fifth race, one and one-eighth miles, Marathon first, Victim second, Flower of Kildare third. Time, 2:00.

The steeplechase over the short course was won by Ike Bonham, John T. second, Bernardine third. Time, 3:17¼. Victory fell and broke his leg.

The Races at Coney Island.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y., Aug. 5.—First race, one mile and a furlong, Elector first, Manitou second, Moses third. Time, 2:00.

Second race, one mile, Topsey first, Ida B. second, Monk third. Time, 1:42¼.

Third race, five furlongs, Hickory Jim first, Garfield second, Marchioness third. Time, 1:02¼.

Fourth race, three-quarters of a mile, Lute Fogie first, Rob Roy second, Hotachamie third. Time, 1:17¾.

Hurdle race, one and a half miles, Jim Vanderveer first, Moscow second, Dalgasia third. Time, 2:50.

The Races at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 5.—The first race, three-fourths of a mile, was won by Little Phil, Disturbance second, and Gus Matthews third. Time, 1:15.

The second race, one and three-quarter miles, was won by Glidelia, Bend Or second, and Compensation third. Time, 3:01. Gen. Monroe finished second, but was sent back for fouling Bend Or.

The third race, a mile and a furlong, was won by Carley B., Jennie V. second, and John Sullivan third. Time, 1:55.

Change of Date Made.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 5.—The Louisville Fair Association has been obliged to change the date from October to Sept. 12. The meeting continues five days, with two trots each day, beginning with the Kentucky Stallion Purse for $1,000, Nutwood and Alexander being required to go to wagon. The program is said to be most extraordinary in attractions, and $1,200 of the premiums have been given by the business men of Louisville.

Track Talk.

The fall meeting of the Quincy (Ill.) Trotting Association will be held Aug. 22 to 25 inclusive, and the prospects for a liberal lot of entries and a week of fine sport are good.

The August edition of "Krik's Guide to the Turf" has just been issued. It wears its usual neat appearance, and contains all the races run in the United States to the end of July. By reference to its pages, all that is necessary to be known of each race will be found in concise shape, and presented in a very happy "multum in parvo" style. The price is 50 cents.

The brown filly Brambaletta (4), by imp. Bonnie Scotland, dam Ivy Leaf, by imp. Australian, out of Bayflower, by Lexington, broke down in a race at Saratoga a few days since. Brambaletta is a handsomely bred filly, and has to her credit a very reputable record on the turf. She was fast, and, though somewhat under size from her breeding, will, no doubt, be a desirable mare for breeding purposes.

The bay mare Kate Taylor, that got a record of 2:23¼ at Cleveland, is one of the famous band of trotters out of Col. Conover's noted broodmare Emeline, by H. B. Patchen—viz.: Adele Gould, 2:21, 6 years old, and Ray Gould, 7 years old, record 2:32, by Jay Gould; Augusta Schuyler, 8 years old, 2:37¼, and Kate Taylor, 9 years old, by Aberdeen. Col. Conover has left Augusta Schuyler at Cleveland to be bred to the stallion Majoca, brother to Wedgewood.

Mr. J. B. Abrams, of Savannah, Ga., writes under date of July 24: "I had the pleasure of seeing a horse colt which I think is the smallest specimen of the horse family in the world. It was foaled a few days before I saw it at the veterinary stables of Mr. H. Y. Farrell, and measures one and one-half inches in hight and three and one-quarter inches from top of nose to root of tail. This curious specimen of the equine genus is the produce of a Texas mare 6 years old belonging to Mr. W. Sneed, the editor of the Savannah Times, who takes pleasure in exhibiting it to his friends.

Col. A. H. Taylor, owner of the trotting stallion Florida, has just returned to Chicago from Orange County, New York, bringing with him a car-load of Florida stock, the following animals comprising the lot: Florida Chief, 3 years old, by Florida, dam by Sackett's Hambletonian; a 4-year-old stallion, by Florida, dam by Rysdyk's Hambletonian; a 5-year-old mare, by Florida, dam by Harry Clay; and a pair which he has sold to H. C. Rew, of this city. The bay gelding Walnut, by Florida, won the first heat of the three-minute race at Buffalo last Friday in 2:22, the fastest heat ever trotted in a race of that kind.

Runnymede's breakdown is in the back tendon of the near fore leg. The Dwyers had begun preparing him for the Sequel Stakes, but the leg, which had throughout shown signals of distress, went after his trial gallop of a mile and a quarter. The breakdown is not permanent, however, as the veterinary says rest will remedy the damage, and the colt will be out next season. Macduff's breakdown is confined to the sheath of the tendon. Dr. Farley, who made a close examination of the colt, says the tendon is sound, and that the colt will be as good as gold next season. The accident was most unfortunate, as there can be little doubt that Macduff would have shown himself the best 3-year-old of the season.

The Grand Prize of Paris for 1884 has closed with 356 nominations. America is well represented by the stables of Messrs. Lorillard and Keene. Mr. Lorillard nominates six colts—viz.: Pontiac, a black, by Pero Gomez—Agenoria (sister to Pizarro); Choctaw, a bay, by Saxon—Fannie Ludlow (grandam of Foxhall); Emperor, a brown, by Enquirer—Vesperlight (dam of Vandalite); De Soto, a chestnut, by Wanderer—Katie Pearce, he is a full brother to Lizzie S.; Manitoba, a bay, by Glenlyon—Marie Michon; and the brother to Hiawassee, Huron, a bay, by Saxon—Vandalite. Mr. Keene nominates four—viz.: a sister to Foxhall, by King Alfonso—Jamaica; a chestnut colt by King Alfonso—Hester; a bay colt by Virgil—Bonnform; and an English-bred colt by Blair Athol—Periwig. Several of the get of the American horse Preakness are entered, among them a colt named Littlefield, intended by the Duke or Hamilton, his nominator, as a compliment to Mr. Charles Littlefield, who trained Preakness in England.

The correspondent of the Spirit of the Times, writing from Cleveland, says: "I was favorably impressed with Hardwood, who trotted in second place all the way round, the second heat, and was only beaten a head in 2:21¼. He was fully described by your commissioner at Chicago, and I may add that his form, gait, breeding, and endurance indicate that he will train on. He has proved a good campaigner so far. P. V. Johnston is a master hand, especially with stallions, as Hardwood was 'on the shelf' last year, but Pete 'trained him in the way he should go' last spring, and now he has great hopes of developing another Monroe Chief. He has also got today's winner, Aldine, in his stable. She is a large, powerfully-made brown mare, by Almont, with the family gait and characteristics of form and disposition; but she is a little heavier-footed than most of them. She trotted the third heat in 2:19¾, and some watches made it 2:19. A bystander, from Kentucky, said to Pete Johnson, as the time was announced: 'You've won a new set of harness.' 'How's that?' inquired Peter. 'Why, Gen. Withers gives a new set to every Almont that beats 2:20.' 'Well, I've already planted two of them within that mark.'"

The third payment in the Blanchard $10,000 race for the 2:17 class, to be trotted at Boston in September, was due Aug. 1, and the result was that every one of the thirteen original nominators sent in his $250. It only remains for the final payments to be made Aug. 31, and it is a moral certainty that the number of thirteen will be maintained; and then the horses must be named, and there is not a shadow of doubt that a field will be disclosed not approached in the history of trotting. The explanation of the tenacity of the original nominators for this event is doubtless to be found in the feature of not naming the horses until the time of the final payment. The horses intended when the first payments were made have, in several cases, gone to the bad; but, on the other hand, there are such flyers as Black Cloud, Jerome Eddy, Clemmie G., Rosa Wilkes, Mattie Graham, and a half-dozen others we could name, not expected to be in the field, but whose services may be available. While Clingstone stands in the position of advance favorit, and it is doubtful whether he can be conquered, there will be great chances of even this result with such a superb field as will be arrayed against him; and, besides, the minor moneys of the big purse are very desirable. The owner of Clemmie G. has been offered $1,000 for the use of her for this race, and various other negotiations are in progress for other stars of the season. Not one of the first magnitude will fail to shine in the dazzling constellation at Beacon Park Sept. 14.

ART IN CHICAGO.

Something About the Modern Supply of "Old Masters."

Nearly every dealer in pictures has one or more old canvases to which is generally attached some story of romantic or historical interest, and as these paintings are not often procured in the regular way, but fall into the hands of the dealers through the misfortune, or folly, or cupidity of their owners, the story of their acquisition is often either purposely or otherwise surrounded with an air of mystery and indefinit information. Such pictures are seldom parted with through ignorance of their value, the owner usually placing an overestimate upon his possessions if the canvas is only old and cracked enough, no matter whether it is signed or not. Paintings attributed to Teniers, Van Dyck, De Vinci, Sir Joshua Reynolds, and many others are occasionally seen, to say nothing of those manufactured by clever but unscrupulous modern artists. It is told of Elkins that in the days of his extravagant prosperity he frequently resorted with great success to the trick of turning out valuable old masters. This he did by smoking them at the proper stage until they appeared sufficiently ancient. But then Elkins was a man of resources in those days, and he did not allow any absurd scruples to interfere with his business and art-school, which he ran principally for his own profit and not too much in the interest of the public. Of an old picture consisting of a solitary figure of remarkable merit, it is hinted that it once adorned one of the finest galleries in Europe, that it was cut out of its frame, stolen, brought to this country, and, after changing hands frequently, it is now covertly offered for sale at one-fourth the price it would bring if the owner dared to take it across the water. It is not unusual to hear of a person in reduced circumstances going to his "uncle" for assistance, but one could hardly hope to realize much from a decidedly wooden-looking great-great-grandfather on canvas, even though he wore a ruffled shirt-front and powdered hair and was painted by a famous artist. Family feelings, however, did not prevent a gentleman who had been "unlucky" from parting with several of his cherished ancestors for a consideration sufficient to set him up in business again. While some of these old paintings are doubtless genuine, the majority of them are either frauds or copies of original works, and can only be detected by an expert in the business. When M. Stornay, who is an admirable connoisseur and an excellent authority upon art matters, was in Chicago last spring with his autotype collection of old masters, he stated that in every city he had visited he was sent for frequently to pass judgment upon some alleged antiquity or valuable original, and that with the exception of a few rare instances, and those of no great importance, he found nothing genuine.

When any painting by a good artist can be authenticated, be sure it will not sell for a song, and this seems to be the case with four pictures placed in the hands of Mr. Bast for sale. Two of them are by Philip Wouverman, painted in 1640, and inherited by the owner, Mr. L. A. Schloesser, from his great grandfather, who purchased them direct from Wouverman. The canvases measure about twelve by eighteen inches, and are in a good state of preservation, the figures well drawn, and the colors unfaded. One of the paintings is entitled "The Falcon Hunt," and shows an old-fashioned inn or tavern, before which a hunting party has drawn up for refreshments. The horses and their riders, as well as the pack of hounds in the foreground, are carefully and minutely drawn, and accord with the descriptions of Woverman's style even to the introduction of the white horse that he is said to have been so fond of painting. The other picture represents "Haying Time," and contains some ten figures and a number of horses and dogs, all seemingly interested in loading up the hay. The owner claims to have refused 15,000 Prussian thalers each from a member of the royal family of Bavaria for these pictures, and now asks $16,000 cash for the pair. The two other paintings are "Scenes on the Rhine," by Van Valkenburg, and were presented to the father of the present owner as a mark of especial esteem by the King of Bavaria, and they still bear the number of his private gallery and the royal seal. Two thousand dollars each is the price of these small landscapes, which certainly do not look worth the money from an artistic point of view.

A Child of Genius and of Misfortune.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune.

In Thurber's picture gallery on Wabash avenue may be seen a fine but modest flower piece which would scarcely attract the attention of the passer-by unless indeed he be a connoisseur in art; then he would at once notice its peculiar merit and delicacy. It is a perpendicular panel, sixteen by twenty-eight inches in size. The background is a soft warm drab, shaded from light in the upper right corner to a darker hue in the lower left. The bunch of flowers lies in the middle of the canvas, the stems placed toward the left and curving gracefully. The fleur-de-lis are prominently of Nature's own lavender and purple, the bright yellow pollen being conspicuous. Above the lilies are stalks of corn-colored snap-dragon, and below, covering part of the stems, is a bunch of single white roses, with buds and leaves, the whole enlivened by trailings of fernlike green.

The history of the artist, Miss Helen Kate Powers, is interesting and one calculated to excite the keenest sympathy. She is about 26 years of age and a resident of Wellington, O. Eight years ago, while studying to prepare herself for a teacher, she was attacked with rheumatism in its most acute form, and is now almost helpless. She has no use of any of her limbs excepting the right arm from the elbow, the thumb and forefinger. The sight of one eye is almost entirely gone, and her food is received in a spoon through an aperture occasioned by two teeth drawn for the purpose. She cannot masticate any solid food on account of the ossification of the jaws. But her mind is unimpaired, as is shown by letters examined by the writer, and her patience and cheerfulness remarkable under this remarkable affliction. She sits at her work in a reclining-chair with her materials in her lap and holding her canvas in her hand. In this manner she paints in oils, on canvas, wax, or wood principally flowers and landscapes. Her parents—once in better circumstances—are now mainly supported by her work, the purchasers generally not knowing the condition of the artist. A lady well known for her quiet benevolences in this city procured the picture and hopes for a substantial recognition of its true merit among the lovers of fine art in Chicago. The family have their genealogy intact, and this child of genius confidently speaks of the great sculptor Hiram Powers as her ancestor.

Notes from the Galleries and Studios.

Douglas Volk, who is spending the summer at Geneva, Ill., has in his studio there the unfinished full-length, life-size portraits of Mr. George C. Miln and Col. John L. Burleigh. Burleigh, as Othello, is in the brilliant uniform of a General of the Venetian army, instead of that of a Moor, as most actors have hitherto dressed the character. Miln, in black plush cloak and cowl, stands for Hamlet in the act of addressing Yorick's skull. Burleigh's is well advanced, and the artist has done splendidly thus far. Miln's is but fairly begun.

Mr. Stiles, who was for many years a Chicago artist, writes from New York, where he has been located for two years past, that he has plenty to do, and that one year there is worth the ten or eleven spent here. He says it is too hot there to stay in his studio a great deal, but as he is near Central Park and Mount Morris he can go out any day and find the nicest little nooks and views for sketching that one can imagine.

Mr. D. F. Bigelow is now at Williamstown, Mass., engaged on a study for a large picture of the old home of Mr. Daniel Jones, of this city. He has also received an order from a gentleman from Philadelphia, a guest at the same hotel at Mount Dorset, Vt., with Mr. Bigelow. This artist's Exposition picture, which will arrive here in a few days, has been already sold to an Eastern admirer.

John Phillips has just commenced a portrait of John Wentworth, which will doubtless become as historical as its distinguished original. This artist recently completed a fine portrait of the wife of Prof. Jacobs, of Colorado, and is now engaged in painting the portrait of a son of Mr. Daniel Harris, of Quincy, Ill.

Gean Smith's latest work has been to paint a picture of a coach-dog belonging to Mr. Waterbury, of Calumet avenue. The animal is represented life-size, and appears to be having a little dispute over a plate of meat with a game rooster. Another recent painting depicts a flock of sheep.

Mr. Mulvaney, who is well known by his pictures of "The Trial of the Horse-Thief" and "The Death of Custer," was in Chicago last week, and contemplates bringing the latter painting here soon for exhibition.

Miss Lizzie Tuck has finished a very creditable little picture of a spitz-dog. His foxy face and shaggy white hair are finely reproduced, and he appears to look with much interest at the head of a gray cat, also done from life.

At Thurber's are two paintings by Baron L. Viard—one a passable little piece of still-life, the other a decidedly poor fruit-piece. It is quite evident that American fruit is beyond the Baron's grasp.

The Basic Steel Process in Court.

PITTSBURG, July 28.—The Pennsylvania Bessemer Steel Company of this city today filed a bill in equity in the Common Pleas Court No. 2 against Jacob Reese, of Pittsburg, inventor of the patent Basic process for manufacturing iron and steel direct from ore, and the Harrison Wire Company of St. Louis. The bill sets forth that in 1869 Reese entered into an agreement with the plaintiff company, and stipulated to transfer to them certain letters patent on the process, and also all future patents obtained relating to the same process. This agreement was supplemented Nov. 25, 1879, by another, in which the plaintiff company agreed to pay Reese $5,000 down, and a royalty of five cents per ton on the product, the limit being fixed at $10,000 per year. It is averred that, while the Pennsylvania Bessemer Steel Company filled its part of the bargain, Reese failed to do so, and has transferred certain of his patents to the Harrison Wire Company of St. Louis. The court is asked to issue an injunction restraining the defendants from using the patents and to prevent Reese from transferring them. Many steel men think that the Basic process will in time take the place of the Bessemer process, and regard the suit as of great importance, because if the Pennsylvania Bessemer Steel Company succeed it will be in the hands of the same monopoly that controlled the Bessemer patents. The Harrison Wire Company has projected an enormous plant in Illinois, and is said to have a capital stock of $3,000,000.

BETRAYED.

For The Chicago Tribune.

He was of proud and high descent—
She was a peasant-maid;
She loved too well—alas! alas!
A heavy price she paid.
O sob, ye winds, with solemn tone!
Sun, hide thy face from sight!
For she, so beautiful and fair,
Is dying with thy light!

O bright and sparkling was her eye,
With lips of rosy red,
And brow as pure as yonder snow,
And raven-curl crowned head.
So wan, so feeble, lies she now!
Birds, hush your warblings gay!
Her lovely form will sleep in death
Before another day!

Today he passed her cottage-door,
His proud wife by his side,
Nor recked if to this stricken lamb
Should good or ill betide.
'Neath gold he lulls his soul to rest—
His heart knows no dismay.
O sob, ye winds, for she so young
Is dying with the day!

A sad-eyed mother watches o'er
Her daughter's fading life;
She is her first-born still—although
A mother, but no wife.
She loved—she trusted—was deceived—
On her life fell the blight;
Aye, whisper low, ye sobbing winds,
For she will die tonight!

Clasp her hands o'er her bosom calm;
Brush smooth her silken hair;
Place her dead baby on her breast,
And kiss her brow so fair.
God knoweth all—He knoweth all
The wiles her love that won;
Aye, whisper low, ye sobbing winds—
Her earthly cares are done!

MICA AXLE GREASE Patented 1874.

Composed largely of powdered Mica or Isinglass, is the BEST and CHEAPEST lubricator in the world—the BEST because it does not gum, but forms a highly polished surface over the axle, reducing friction and lightening the draft; the CHEAPEST because it costs NO MORE than inferior brands, and one box will do the work of two of any other make. Answers as well for Harvesters, Mill Gearing, Threshing Machines, Corn-Planters, Carriages, Buggies, etc., as for Wagons. GUARANTEED to contain NO Petroleum. Sold by all dealers. ☞ Our Pocket Cyclopedia of Things Worth Knowing mailed free.
